WHEREAS, The German Catholic Church known as St. Joseph's was founded by Germans, who fostered it during all these many years of its existence, and Whereas, The membership of the church Whereas, The membership of the church now is largely made up of people who have sent their children to this church and school for the purpose of learning the religion, language and morals of their parents; Whereas, Our children have more ample op-portunites now for learning the English anguage than the German, therefore be it Exceluted That we corneally protest against Resolved, That we earnestly protest against e endeavor of our pastor to preach in En-

The resolutions were discussed and passed unanimously, after which another committhe was appointed for the purpose of visiting the pastor and ask him to rescind the action. In case he fails to do so, the committee will call on Bishap Phelan to have the English sermon idea abolished. It is stated upon the authority of one or two members of the congregation that unless Father Kaufmann changes his mind and returns to German services, he will lose a large number of children from his school. He has been pastor of our congre-gation for nearly 15 years, during which time he has demonstrated that he has a will of his own, and always sticks to what he starts out to do. In the next place, however, he did not go into this thing without having first consulted the Bishop and secured the latter's sanction. The great portion of the young folks in the congregation do not know as much about German as English, and I can see no good reason why there ould be so much fuss about a matter of this kind.

THEY HAVE HIGH HOPES.

Exposition Officials Say They Will Branch Out.

Vice President Bindley, of the Exposition Society, in speaking of that organization yesterday, said that the intention was to litt it above local limits and make it a national affair, something that would attract attention all over the country. He declined to say whether anything would be done in the matter of increasing facilities for next year, as he thought it would be premature or any of the officials to speak on this subject until after the annual election, but he said that it was the intention to use all the surplus in improvements, and intimated that something would be done for the season o. 1891.

In regard to rumors that some changes would be made in the management at the next election, he said he had heard of nothing of the sort. Some officials might not suit everyone in all particulars, but gen-eral results were what they were looking for, and so long as they were good he thought all parties concerned should be satIT PLEASED EVERYONE.

Weather That Delighted the People and Bore Earmarks of Indian Summer. The delightful weather of yesterday made the general run of enthusiastic comments quite fashionable, for it was about as fine as anything in that line experienced here during the late fall. Everyone seemed to enjoy it, and the streets were fail of people from morning until night. Judge Fetterman, who numbers among his many acquirements some good hardheaded ideas on weather, ventured the opinion that it was a touch of Indian summer. The Judge admitted that it was a little late for a spell of this kind, but he said our seasons were undergoing constant and notable changes. The winters notable changes. becoming shorter and more and the elements of snow steady low temperature were were open and becoming things of the past. He heaved a sigh as he remarked that the last really first-class winter that had been experienced here was in 1880-81. Then it froze up as of yore early in the game, and the snow came down in blankets until the earth was covered with a good thick blanket of the beau-tiful, and the air was musical with the sound of merry sleigh bells for weeks. On March 27 the Judge bought a cutter, and, although his triends laughed at him, he says he had several rides in it out at his country home before the season closed. Since then, he said, he had not used the sleigh half a dozen times. When asked how he accounted for the climatic changes, the Judge replied that the clearing away of the timber in these parts was mainly responsible in his opinion. The query seemed to brush aside a few cobwebs from the Judge's memory, and he was pluming himself for a few reminiscences of years ago, when a client came in and the conversation came to an untimely end.

Yesterday Prof. List, a musician and the correspondent of the newspapers that published the article, found their names on the trial list in 'Squire Edwards' court. Mr. Irvine has engaged E. F.
