PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 CHICAGO, November 24 .- Telegrams were received all day from Western posts by General Miles, who directed the troops' movements. A larger force than has been mustered in the West since 1876-77 will be in the region about Pine Ridge by Wednesday. The reinforcements are sent by reason of the evidence received from General Brooke, who is disposed to take a very serious view of the situation.

The troops at every fort or army station it Missouri, Nebraska, Dakota, Minnesota, Montana and Wyoming will be drawn upon, and other detachments of the army are under orders to hold themselves in readiness. Instructions are to prevent trouble, i possible, by persuading the Indians to re turn to the avency.

The Exact Cause to be Ascertained. General Schofield has instructed General Miles to find out if the cause of the present dissatisfaction among the Indians is due more to lack of rations than to their belief in the coming of the new Messiah. In accordance with the instructions Colonel Heyl, Inspector General, left for the West this afternoon and will visit all the army posts and most of the agency stations. He is accompanied by an amanuensis who will take verbatim reports.

General Miles said to-day: "Before I say a word as to the situation in the turbulent Indian country in the Northwest let me say that I have no boys' play to deal with. I have the situation within my grasp. Good help the Indian who fires the first shot. I am in duty bound to protect lives and property, and I would have it distinctly under military department I propose to do my There are many matters of an official nature which I cannot disclose to the first hostile demonstration."

The Indian Messiah has been found. A letter received to-day by General Miles from an army officer at Los Angeles, Cal., tells the particulars. The letter says, I know it will be surprising when I say to you that I have found the Messiah and the story of my finding is a he would like to speak to the commanding General. I took him in the room and he gave a history of himself. He said his name was peacemaker among all Indians and the whites of Nevada where he lived. To substantiate his statement, he showed me a medal which he carried strung around his neck, on which was a legend to the effect that he was presented with the medal by some Christian society for his efforts toward doing wood to his fellow men, whether white or red He could talk very good English; was dressed like an ordinary laborer, but had the Indian way of wearing his hair. He told me he read knew the Bible; that he was desirous of making peace with every one, and that was why he was named the Peacemaker. He said that Indians had come from afar off to see him, and he polled out a pipe, such as are made by the Northern Indians, which pipe was recognized

Origin of All the Trouble.

I firmly believe that this is the good-natured Indian who has caused all this trouble; that he has taught the members of his tribe the story of Christ or the Messiah, and the time when he will once more visit the earth, as it has been taught him by the Christian people interested in his welfare. He has told all these visiting Indians of the paradise in store for all people when the Son shall once more visit the earth, and the lindian's paradise is whatever his imagination may lead him to believe, the same as a white man. He has no doubt delivered the story in its true light, and the Indians retelling it have warped and woven it according to their understanding.

The latter claims to have conversed with the Indian Messiah's followers recently, and they tald him that the white men had his Messiah, and the Indian could have his; that the Indian could have his; that the Indian did not stop the white man from worshiping his Great Spirit, and that if the white man tried to stop the Indian, he would fight and kill all the whites that come near. He only wanted to be left alone to dance, and no whites must come about; and further, that if the Great Father sent

The concensus of opinion at Pierre, S. D., is that affairs are at a critical stage among the Indians, and that the least thing will precipitate an outbreak, but it no interference is offered to the fanatics, they may subside, and then the excitement will pass off.

PHILADELPHIA, November 24.-Financial circles had another surprise to-day in the disappearance of Colonel John R. Baker, Jr., prominent in society, and a well-known stock operator, who has figured in the street for over five years past as a "plunger" on the bull side of the market. With his disappearance all sorts of ugly rumors have been put in circulation. The immediate cause of his disappearance, however, is believed to have been large losses incurred in the manipulation of Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company stock. Baker, with one or wo others, some time ago undertook to form pool to raise the price of stock, and thus ealize a large profit. All the operations were conducted in Baker's name, and whatever osses were incurred have been by nimself. His efforts to bull the stock proved futile in the general depression that has been in vogue for nearly a month. As the stock declined Baker continued to make extensive purchases of the stock. Democrats are Getting Worried Over the Apportionment Bill.

THE LEGISLATION WAITING ACTION

IFROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.I WASHINGTON, November 24 .- Defeat, or something else, appears to have cooled the energy of the mass of the Republican members of the House, for with less than a week intervening before the meeting of Congress, comparatively few of the majority are in town, and the leading Republicans who are here are losing hope as to their ability to muster a quorum till after the holiday recess. However, it does not look as if there would be any serious contest before that time which will require the majority to marshal their full force. The appropriation bill for the District and possibly one other will be reported almost immediately after assembling, and with this bill and the numerous bills of a minor character on the calendar, which are crying for con-sideration, the time of the House could be fully occupied for the short space before

DEMOCRATS ARE GETTING WORRIED. The Democrats who are on the ground seem to be growing more anxious about the ap-portionment bill than all else. They question the correctness of the census itself in the first place, and in the second place sus-pect the Republicans of designing to so manipulate the apportionment as to put the manipulate the apportionment as to put the Democrats at a disadvantage. They profess to beheve that there was no attempt at an accurate enumeration of the population of the whole country, and that consequently they have been deprived of a gain of some 15 or 20 Congressmen, which they expected. They expect that the Republicans will attempt to put them out of several other Congressmen, by the method of reapportionment, and they are prepared to enter into a vigorous and protracted exhibition of "kicking."

pared to enter into a vigorous and protracted exhibition of "kicking."

An investigation of the method of taking the census will be demanded by the Democrats soon after Congress meets, and every effort will be made to prove to the public the correctness of the assumption of unfairness in the census. If the Repuplicans of the House regard the "whip" sent out from the White House, urging their attendance upon the session of the House, and Mr. Reed succeeds in holding a quorum of his own party, nothing can be done to prevent the passage there of such an apportionment bill as the majority decide upon, but the absence of a quorum of their own will be fatal to their plans. The Democrats believe that they can prevent the Democrats believe that they can prevent the passage through the Senate of any apportion-ment bill which they regard as unfair.

PROGRAMME OF THE REPUBLICANS. There are other measures besides the apportionment and elections bills which make it desirable for Republicans to have a full attendance of their party. They have constructed their programme for this session on a pretty large plan, and it will take hard work and promptness to carry it ant. It is regarded by some of the leaders as very important that two ess to carry it out. It is regarded by some of the leaders as very important that two steamship subsidy bills and several railroad and land bills be passed during the session, and there are many other measures on the calendar which they are anxious to get rid of,... The chances are, while the Democrats will deteat the appropriation bilis for purpose of necessitating an extra session, that all of these bills will receive very full discus-sion, the purpose of the minority being to show that the Republicans have been extravagant, This, and the defense of the majority, is liable to take up considerable time. The pension ap-propriation bill and the deficiency for pensions propriation bill and the deficiency for pensions will provoke particularly earnest discussion. The silver men will be on hand with another proposition for free coinage. The battle over the compound lard and pure food bills promises to open up actively. Mr. Blair has his labor bills still before the Senate, and Mr. Edmunds his anti-Mormon bills. The revenumarine transfer, the bill for the relief of the Supreme Court, the bankruptcy bill, the copyright bill and many other measures of greater or less importance will put in a claim for time during the session.

He then went on to say that during the past week there had been exposed in the law courts a most scandalous case of immorality, connected with an Irishman who had been a leader of his people. The reverend gentleman added that the greatest qualification a man could possess as a leader of his people was morality, and when this man was first charged he loudly protested his innocence, and had a complete answer to the accusa tion ready. But when the time came for the trial he was silent, and thereby he landed the Irish people in a quagmire of mmorality. When the priest had reached this point When the priest had reached this point some of the congregation arose and walked out, while one man got up in his seat and shouted at the ton of his voice: "Mind your own business." To this the Reverend Father Bannin answered back: "That is what I am doing. It is my business to teach morality." Then the man quivering with excitement and anger, called fouldly: "Don't interfere with politics." The verger and several of the congregation endeavored to expel the disturber, but were ordered to desist by the priest, who said: "Let the man alone; don't touch him. He has a right to speak."

PARISHIONERS DENOUNCE THE PRIEST. The excitement was intense. The congregation arose almost en masse and most of them were loudly denouncing the man for the interruption. Father Bannin continued protesting that he was not speaking of politics; he was referring merely to a question of morality, adding: "This man was a leader of the people, and ing: "This man was a leader of the people, and yet he had debauched the wife of a man who was his friend, he had brought ruin upon an entire family."

Here there was marked evidence of restrained applause, and as the only culprit the vergers could discover was an aged female, who was placifly thumping the floor with her umbrella, they promptly seized and hustled her out of the sacred structure. When quiet had been restored, the preacher went on: "Let the Irish remember that they have had the Protestants of all denominations on their side, and they will all withdraw from the support of the Irish cause if the Irish people retain this

Three Birmingham Physicians Tell What They Saw of the Koch Cure.

THY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY.1 LONDON, November 24.-The whole of the medical profession in England is being agitated by the question "What is the practical value of Prof. Koch's cure?" Three physicians of Birmingham, who went to study the matter at headquarters, have written a letter to a Birmingham paper, in which they say some cases of phthisis and of lupus vulgaris have unquestionably improved under the treatment, but with respect to the latter, nothing was seen that might not be due to the relative and a very large. to the relatively favorable hygienic condition nder which they were placed. The other cases up to the present have derived marked benefit, but it must be remem-bered that the first case of phthisis was inlected as recently as September 15 last, and the reat majority of cases much later.

Wholesale Liquor Dealers Charged With Doing a

THIRTEEN MEN ARRESTED.

The Police Confident That They Have Good Cases Against Them.

WORKING THE LITTLE TIN BUCKET.

Mothers Teaching Their Children to Drink Whisky and Beer.

RESULT OF SEVERAL MONTHS' WORK

A new crusade has been started by the Department of Public Safety. This time it is directed against the holders of wholesale liquor licenses who persist in dispensing seductive beverages at retail, and, in addition, allow the purchasers to drink it upon the premises. The campaign was commenced simultaneously in the first and third police distriets. The first district includes the first 13 wards, while the third district takes in the whole of the Southside. As a result of the latest move 13 (an unlucky number) wholesalers were arrested yesterday, charged with selling liquor without license. For several months past Inspectors Me-Aleese and McKelvy have had men at work looking up the manner in which wholesalers were conducting their establishments. This action was rendered necessary by the numerous complaints turned in to police headquarters. It was asserted that in many of these places anyone-man, woman or child-could buy liquor in any quantity, from a nickel's worth up. In a number of these establishments tables were provided for customers, who could sit and drink until they fell off their chairs. Then the proprietor would drag the unconscious inebriate into a corner and let him or her, as the case might be, sleep off the effect of the liquor.

A BIG INDUCEMENT. A few places had rooms upstairs where the fair sex could take a nip or two in privacy. Of course, the inducements held out by these establishments far outweighed those offered by saloons, whose keepers generally try to obey the provisions of the Brooks' law. It looked much more recherche to walk boldly into the entrance of a wholesale liquor store than to sneak in at the side door of a saloon. Inspector McAleese said last evening, in referring to the matter: "We have only just begun this work. We may make some more arrests during the night, and to-morrow we expect to gather in quite a number. We will not arrest a man unless we have sufficient positive evidence to convict him, and we are confident that we have in every case. My experience leads me to believe that not one out of ten of the wholesale liquor dealtailing. It stands to reason that there is not enough legitimate business for all of them. We have several wholesalers who do a first-class business, and I do not include "The manner in which many of these places are conducted has caused them to become eye-sores to the community. Little children are sent in with tin buckets to buy 5 or 10 cents' worth of whisky and beer, the children, who are there taught to drink, and all come out staggering upon the street, It is my honest opinion that one of these places are more harmful to the community than ten saloons," The bottling houses are also to be closely crutinized. Many of these places allow quor to be sold on the premises. The ooks law specifies no penalty for this, but against wholesalers, for selling without license had been made before Alderman Succep, and about 9:30 in the evening the fun began. James Donahue, of 1413 Carson street, was the first to arrive at the station house, and from that time on until 10:30 the wagon came and went regularly until seven liquor men had been lodged in the station. A host of friends followed in the wake of each man arrested. The scene at the station was funereal in its aspect. The houor men, nearly all of them rell known on the Southside, entered the station between the two wagon-men and marched stolidly to the cell-room, generally with finshed faces, but some evidently seemed to take it as a good joke, though they said tittle. Alderman Succep was on hand to make out hall bonds, and was soon kept bosy. A number of the friends of each prisoner came to see him through. The bond in each case was placed at 8500, and Alderman Succop now has seven half dollars on deposit from bondholders. The wholessiers departed quietly, and in nearly every case went direct home in the company of their friends or wives.

After being assured that his plans were working all right in the district covered by the Twenty-eighth ward station force, Inspector McKelyy and Special Officer Carrigan drove down to the West End, and two more prisoners were added to the list. Two others, James Miller and William Snodgrass, for whom informations had been made, were not at home when the officers called.

Inspector McKelvy and Special Officer Carrigan arrived from the West End in time to hear the Doxology sung at the Twenty-eighth hear the Doxology sung at the Twenty-eighth ward station and see the last prisoner of the first wholesalers' raid march out of the station. The pronouncing of the benediction in each case was deferred by Alderman Succept until next Wednesslay at f.P. M.

The inspector said he had at least six witnesses in each case, and that it was only the beginning of the suppression of illegal selling by wholesalers. He has effectually cleared the Southside of illegal retail dealers, and now proposes that the wholesalers shall toe the mark. Inspector McAleese coincided with McKelvy with regard to the First district, and the raids were made simultaneously.

"The evidence," said Inspector McKelvy, "Is clear against those now arrested. The bottlers who sella bottle of beer and allow it to be drank on the premises will have to be handled differently. They evade the law, but do not sell without a license. In their cases it is only necessary that they be arrested and brought into court for keeping disorderly houses for instance. It can then be proven that they at
