MR. MALONE REMOVED.

THE POSTOFFICE BUILDING HAS A NEW SUPERINTENDENT. Joseph S. Pattison Appointed to Look After the Government's Interest in Pittsburgh—He was Formerly the Building Inspector of the Department.

At last the new postoffice question has come to a crisis. A telegram last night from Washington stated that M. L. Malone had been removed from the position of supervising architect of the building, and in place of him Joseph S. Pattison would hold the position.

A DISPATCH reporter called upon Mr. Malone shortly before midnight and found him still in his library. He had not yet been informed of the change and seemed rather surprised, but would make no statement.

THE CAUSE OF HIS FAILURE.

"The firm is embarrassed. This state of affairs was brought about by various causes. For three or four years the coal business has been bad, but we would have risen superior to this handicap had not other matters over which we had no control confronted us. The firm owns property in the shape of coal lands, land, buildings, etc., for which we have something left. This property, even if some of our property had to be sold under the hammer, though our course we cannot give away what we have and come out even."

NOT LONG A PRISONER.

Squire Longfry Prefers a Heavier Fine and Less Restricted Freedom. Saturday was a prolific one for scenes in the Criminal Court. In addition to the little piece played by Messrs. Longfry, Corcoran, and the other defendants, the Squire was charged with assaulting and battering his ex-consort, and being a pest to the police.

NO FEARS BY FINANCIERS.

One of the best evidences of the embarrassment of the firm had created no stir in financial circles was found when a reporter entered the Germania Savings Bank. The officials, from top to bottom, were entirely ignorant of the trouble of the firm.

NO FEARS BY FINANCIERS.

There is plenty of money in Pittsburgh, and the conservative methods of our bankers, it is not being put out very extensively. I don't know much about the money market, but I know that it is not a factor in financial circles.

HE ALSO GAVE HIM THE NADDIE.

He also gave him the naddie, which weighed but 20 ounces, and the hite and white cap, still the same color as that one, and it is thought cherishes as valuable souvenirs of his early turf experience. In speaking of Mr. Belmont, last night he said his orders were to win always, and if any of his horses failed to do so he took the blame on himself, and if any of his horses did not win, he was a good loser.
