Pittsburg's Death Rate From Consumption Surprisingly Low, BEING AWAY BELOW MOST CITIES.

GIVEN THE CREDIT BY DR. ENGLISH

Since the announcement that Prof. Koch had discovered a cure for that dread disease, consumption, the interest awakened in this city, as elsewhere throughout the civilized world, has been extremely great.

Leading members of the recognized schools of medicine in Pittsburg have, as a rule, looked upon the discovery with considerable favor, though here and there misgivings have been uttered, and they seem to be on the increase daily.

From a few statistics that have been published it would seem that deaths from consumption in this city are fewer than in many places. In Philadelphia, for instance, the percentage of deaths from the disease as the total mortality has averaged 13.6 during the last ten years.

Consumption after pneumonia. Among all the causes of death enumerated in the list, pneumonia leads with the number of victims, 47, and consumption comes next with 33, making a total of 80.

Some reliable statistics. Dr. T. English, of this city, has given the subject of consumption very careful study, and for nearly two years has been collecting some valuable facts and statistics, which the public may hear of in the future.

Value of electric lights. Last, but not least, on the doctor's list of beneficial agencies, was the incandescent electric light, which has been substituted to a very large extent for the old artificial gas jets.

That noble baryard fowl, the North American turkey, said by some historians to be a clear blood relation of the proud bird of freedom, cut a decided figure almost yesterday.

In many instances his life had been sacrificed to perpetuate one of the beautiful customs of the country, and he looked rather barren of any distinctive features of glory.

TURKEY'S DROP A BIT. It would be a difficult matter to say just how many turkeys were landed in Pittsburg yesterday, but it was roughly estimated that the stock on hand was increased at least 50,000 pounds.
