Judge Thomas Smith, of Warrenton, Va., who has been at the Duquesne for several days, left last evening, over the Baltimore and Ohio, for the South.

The Judge is one of the finest public speakers in his State, which has always had a reputation for its orators. In a chat about the future of the Farmers' Alliance, he said, saveastically:

"It is a good thing for the disciples of Agricola to organize, as long as they keep out of politics, but the instant they start a third party they are bound to come to grief. The farmers feel that they have been excluded from the counsels of the two great parties, and they now think if they are properly represented that they can quickly solve all the tough and puzzling problems of government. This feeling was born of brooding over their adversity, and they are even wild enough to imagine that if the conduct of affairs is left to them they can make the rain tall and the sun shine when either is wauted.

An Outlet for Disappointment.

"The chances are that disappointed men. who can't get anything in the Democratic or Republican parties, will rice the Farmers' Alliance for what it is worth. President Polk may be a very disinterested man, but he will look out for all the beneficial results. As a third party the Grangers will be inimical to Democrats and Republicans, and both parties will fight them. In this case it is only a question of time until they go to pieces

"I am a Democrat, but I think every good and honest Republican is opposed to the force bill. In the South we regard it as au attempt to force the whites into subordination to the negroes, and we will never consent to the rule of the blacks. We don't object to men of our own cuticle, and if this race were removed from us the South would be indifferent to the Federal law. Even if it is passed we will certainly devise some plan to circumvent its operation.

Bayonets and Sabers at the Polls.

"Intelligence would never submit to such an outrage. The idea of placing officers at the polls, with bayonets and drawn sabers. savors more of Russian tryanuy than the boasted American freedom. The attempt is not made to pass this bill out of love for the negro, but for the purpose of perpetuating Republicanism through him. The South-ers people do not object to the black man. acknowledge our dependence on him his worth in the commercial world as in employe, and yet we would gladly supum to-morrow with white labor.

"In Virginia we have always had a fair ballot. The colored people are indifferent to their rights to vote, and in the extreme South seldom exercise the prerogative. In several of the Southern States like Louisiana and Mississippi I believe they are in the majority. It makes us angry when Northins make charges against a I know are not true. I say frankly He Acted on Principle in Accord With His that the ballot is fairer and more honest in Virginia than in Pennsylvania, where white men, I am told, are bought for money and ed to vote according to dictation. When these men come to the South and talk about dishonest elections, is it any wonder that we are provoked!"

QUEEN ISABELLA ASSOCIATION. Branches of the Society Being Organized by Miss Hindman, Miss Matilda Hindman, who represents the Queen Isabella Association in Pennsylvania, is in the city, preparing to effect an organization of the society in this district. She said to a DISPATCH reporter yesterday: "The organization is to commemorate woman's work in the discovery of America in the erection of a Queen Isabella statue at a cost of $25,000. It is not to be sectarian, or of any political faction. The organization will also establish social headquarter in Chicago, where the members of the organization can meet during the fair." Miss Hindman will begin at once to or-ganize this Congressional district into so-cieties of the above dharacter. Meetings will be held for that purpose.

Manager Kelly, of the Monongahela House, is the fortunate possessor of a very valuable collection of rare, ancient and costly curios. He has always had a strong penchant for relic-hunting, and during his life, by adding a few specimens at a time, he has man-aged to accumulate a respectable museum at considerable expense. He has made a specialty of weapons, pottery, watches, coins and old letters and autographs. Mr. Kelly has arranged his collection in

Assistant Superintendent of Police O'Mara is not afraid of thieves taking advantage of dark days in Pittsburg. He said yesterday that the city is too well lit up now by electricity for the operations of footpads,

"Do you know," continued the Superiptendent, "we are not troubled much by thieves just now? It is probable that pickpockets will be on hand at the Cathedral tomarrow. Wherever there are crowds there you will find thieves. Perhaps you do not know that crocks keep a record of all the important events to come off in the United States which will attract large crowds, I have found these assignment books on several thieves I have captured at different

"The thieves' harvest comes every fourth year-during the Presidental campaign. They follow in the wake of the prominent speakers and gather in sheaves of pocketbooks and watches. They are especially delighted when Binine takes the stump. He draws immense crowds, and holds his audiences spell-bound by his oratory. Why, when Blaine was stumping the State for Beaver, and he spoke at Greensburg, 23 empty pocketbooks were found in one shed there after the meeting, and among the victims was State Chairman Cooper. We wook charge of Blaine when he came to Pittspurg, and carried the party through the rest of the campaign without loss. Conk-ling used to be a great card for thieves, and they are always sure of making money when Cleveland appears in public."

switchmen. Mr. Arrington Vigorously Defended. The following communication is self-explanatory. To the Editor of The Disputch: In one of your recent issues there was a put lication that at our meeting held on Tnesday, the 18th of the present month, we had de-nounced Louis Arrington and the co-operation system, is false. In the first place, the co operative plan does not emanate from Louis Arrington, and, what is more, we firmly believe

Arrington, and, what is more, we firmly believe be takes no stock in it. As regards to his being handled without gloves is all bosh. In fact, the whole story is a base and malicious fabrication, and actuated by some disappointed party to in-jure the fair name and reputation of Louis Arrington, whose actions for years have been of such a nature as to place him beyond the Sioux Indian in Dakota. The quiver was carried over the shoulder, and the mark could be plainly seen where it rubbed against the red's clothes. Mr. Kelly also has some of their very pretty and fancy trappilgs that are put on the horses on state occasions. Some of the relics are more than 2,000 years old, and it would be difficult to esti-mate the age of some of the specimens. Severial Etruscan lamps and pieces of pot-tery that have been uncarthed must be very tery that have been unearthed must be very old. A god of the mound-builders which was dug up in Ohio. Mr. Kelly says, is alone worth $1,500. He wouldn't part with it for that sum, and to the archeologist the study of these people is very interesting.

ANCIENT EGYPTIAN IMAGES Two Egyptian images were handed down in the tamily of a German baroness, and finally were sold by order of the court in settling up the estate. Mr. Kelly bought them. They surely were made long before the time of Christ, as their appearance demonstrates and history will bear out.

One relie is a great curiosity, in that it rep-resents a lost art. It is a wooden bowl made by the Japanese and covered with a thick coating of cinnabar which is highly orna-mental. Just how it is done, or by what process the preparation was made is one of the things that the shrewd Japs have for-

In the collection are two small monu ments made by the great Napoleon during his exile on St. Helena. They are well executed, and the sides are as smooth as if made by a sculptor. They only show that genius is many-sided, and if he had not been a great general he might have been a great artist in stone, SOME OTHER VALUABLE CURIOS.

Mr. Kelly also possesses four pictures of Napoleon's lieutenants which were presented to the commander by the men them-selves. In those days it was customary for the subalterns to have their pictures taken in various positions which were given to the head of the army as a mark of respect. The lamented Marshal Ney was one of them. In another part of the cabinet are several old paintings. One was on a piece of glass that was made in 1572, and is plainly of English origin. It represents the heads of a king and queen, and two armies in battle, using the long
