NEW OIL TERRITORY

In West Virginia Being Developed by Pittsburg Capital.

Captain Moore Enthusiastic Over His New-Found Gusher.

RESULT OF A WILDCAT VENTURE.

NOT WILLING TO SELL HIS BONANZA

Captain "Jim" Moore, one of the best known men about town in Pittsburg, returned from a trip to the new oil field in Ritchie county, West Virginia, yesterday. To say that the Captain is enthusiastic over the prospects of that section is putting it mild. He is fairly boiling over with glowing reports of the territory, and says List of the Cases to be Called by the the excitement down there can only be compared to that which ruled the old oil country years ago. Some time since the Captain, who has had considerable experience in the oil business, went into partnership with a gentleman named Allen, who lives in Buffalo, and a well-known gentleman of Pittsburg, for the purpose of developing some territory in the State men-

Readers of THE DISPATCH will remember that a few days ago an item was published in these columns to the effect that a big oil well had been brought in at Pennsborough, Ritchie county. This was a wildcat venture on the part of the Captain and his companions, and the first they had

CONSIDERED A GREAT STRIKE.

In speaking of the well yesterday Captain Moore said: "Every expert who has seen the well declares that this is the greatest strike ever made in the State. We have plugged the well three times now, but every time she has blown out. I just received a telegram saying that she blew out again last night. The will be up into the thousands of barrels day beyond question. You never saw any thing like the excitement there is down there Standard Oil people, scouts and oil men gen-rally from all parts of the country are flock-"We have niready had offers for the oil 25

"We have already had offers for the oil 25 cents a barrel above the ordinary price from independent refiners in Cleveland and Cincinnati. The samples that have been tested are pronounced superior to anything ever struck in the State, being of a better quality than that found at St. Mary's."

"How made territory have you under lease?"

"Well, we have one strip nearly six miles long, which is located on both sides of the Pennsylvania and Ritchie Railroad. You would have laughed had you seen the oil men when have laughed had you seen the oil men when they got into the territory. They were simply domfounded to find us with so many leases, and actually accused us of wanting the earth. If things pan out as well as they look now, we will have a little bit of it before we get through. THEY DO NOT PROPOSE TO SELL.

"Our first venture is located on what is known as the Wilson farm. Mr. Wilson owns an eighth interest, and he was made a bona fide offer of $50,000 for it, but promptly refused the same. We have also had some big offers, but do not want to sell. We think we are strictly 'in it,' and propose to stay. We have a big gang of men at work building tanks, and will lay a line of our own to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, about three and a half miles

"Are you making arrangements to do more "Just as rapidly as possible. Timber is already on the ground for more derricks, and we will put down wells as rapidly as possible. We drilled LSI? feet for the one now in. Aside from our leases many more have been made by various parties, and rigs are going up all around us. To show you what the oil men think of the prospects, I will tell you of the Ferguson farm that joins the Wilson farm. Ferguson was effered $1,000 down, $1 a month per acre for the farm and a quarter interest, with an agreement that he should be paid an additional $1,000 when the first 20-barrel well came in. This is as true as gospel."

1 "What is the nearest developed field to you?"

The nearest is at Cairo, and the nearest well is seven miles distant."

The Captain tells some rather amounts. rom our leases many more have been made h is seven miles distant."

The Capitain tells some rather amusing stories of his partners, who are entirely new to rough experiences of the oil country. They all live at a small and modest farm house some distance from the scene oil operations, and do not take very kindly to gum boots and country mud. The water down there is good, however, and by spring he thinks they will be rugged enough to eat hay. The Capitain will return to the field on Thursday to be absent for a long time. He was being numerously congratulated about town yesterday.

THE BLAME IS FIXED

Coroner's Jury Holds Two Road Supervisors Responsible for

THE DEATH OF ANDREW CAUGHEY.

Prosecutions of the Officers to be Made by Deceased's Father.

Coroner Heber McDowell vesterday concluded the inquest in the case of Andrew D. Caughey. The jury found that the man's leath was due to the negligence of Frank Bryan and William Gast, road supervisors of Stowe township. As a result, John Caughey, father of the deceased, will make the road supervisors answer to a charge of manslaughter in the courts. At the inquest, Jonathan Aiken, William Aikin, D. L. McGeary, A. P. Cleaver and a number of others of the best known residents in Stowe and Robinson townships, testified that the road was in such a condition as to be a constant menace to life. One of them had seen men on the road fill up the chuck-holes with mud, into which the wagons sank as soon as one of these places was

THE COST OF A BAD ROAD. Frank Bryan, one of the supervisors, said about $7,000 of road taxes were collected each year. He said he had never been notified that the road was in bad condition, but he had not been over it since September. Another witness said there had been a broken culvert on the road ever since last April and the supervisors had been notified, but did not The verdict returned was as follows: "Andrew D. Caughey, aged about 29 years, came to his death on Friday, December 12, 1890, about 6 o'clock P. M., while driving a four-horse wagon through Stowe township, near Cleaver's farm. From all the evidence, the jury find said accident was due to negligence on the part of Frank Bryan and William Gast, supervisors of said township, in not giving proper attention to said roads, and we recommend that legislation be procured making it compulsory upon all taxable persons to keep their roads in repair under direction of a road commissioner appointed by the Governor of Pennsylvania."

Immediately after the inquest John Caughey asked legal advice on the matter, and when he learned that the commissioners could be held criminally responsible, he decided to make a charge of manslaughter against them. Concerning the matter Mr. Caughey said: The verdict returned was as follows: "An

THE FATHER WELL SATISFIED. "I am well satisfied with the verdict, and I will have the people who allowed the roads to be in such a condition pushed as far as I can. I believe they are responsible for the death of I believe they are responsible for the death of my son, but that is not all. The lives of everybody who travels over these roads are in danger. We must make an example of these men."

Coroner McDowell said the verdict was a good one. Said he: "In these days of rapid transit we must expect violent deaths in the cities, but now, when almost every month we are called on to inquire into the death of men who are killed on the country roads, it is appalling, and it is time that some change be made in the method of making roads. I hope the Legislature will act in this matter, for the present country roads are dangerous to life."

lature will act in this matter, for the present country roads are dangerous to life."

The general road laws of the State plainly set forth the duties of supervisors, and hold them liable to indictment for negligence. Where loss of life has resulted from negligence on the part of the road supervisors the Supreme Court has decided the supervisors were criminally responsible. The law also declares it is not necessary to give supervisors notice to repair a read, the condition of the road itself being considered sufficient notice.
