NEW FINDS OF COAL

Railroad Surveys in West Virginia Unearth Many Rich Veins.

CAPITAL RUSHING TO THE FIRLD.

Several Men are Injured in an Explosion of a Dynamite Stick.

MINOR NEWS FROM THE THREE STATES

INPECIAL TELEGRAN TO THE DISPATOR. CHARLESTON, Dec. 16 .- A very striking illustration of the mineral wealth of West Virginia is afforded in recent discoveries by railroad engineers running a line through Boone county. On the face of a mountain on the Pond Fork of Coal river, where but two veius of coal were supposed to exist, the engineers developed the outcrop of no less than 11 veins, ranging from 2 feet 7 inches to 20 feet in thickness, and aggregating 68 feet 11 inches. One vein is pure cannel coal 42 inches thick, another has 34 inches of pure cannel coal, overlaid with splint coal, and another vein of bituminous coal is 20 feet thick, with two feeet of "parting" seven feet from the bottom. This gigantic seam thus presents 18 feet of clear solid coal, of the best quality.

Railroad engineers, in crossing, and recrossing the mountains of this State, during the past year or two, have done much to demonstrate the practical value of the great coal fields of West Virginia. They have lately traced the Pocahontas field of coking coal from the head of Guyan river, where it wa supposed to end, across Indian Ridge to Pinnacle, Otter and Barker, across all the forks of Guyan river, through Wyoming county, across into Raleigh, and following the Piney valley through Fayette county into the familiar New river coal country. Through this entire section there are from two to five workable veins of there are from two to five workable veins of coal, one of them 10 feet thick. In some places they dip a little below the water level, but the outcroppings, as a general thing, are to be seen on the mountain sides.

"There is one thing about this Pocahoutas coking field," said an engineer to your correspondent, "which, until recently, seems to have been generally overlooked, but which gives it incalculable value—and that is its proximity to the iron ore fields of Virginia. The Pocahoutas coking coal field, extending from Webster and Nicholas counties, W. Va., to Tazewell and Russell counties, in Virginia, is the only field of coking coal of any size in the United States, outside of Connellsville, Pa. On this field not only does the South draw, but the West and Southwest."

Immense tracts of coal and timber land are being bought up by capitalists. A short time ago Morgan, Drexel & Co., of Philadelphia, representing the Vanderbilt interests, purchased 50,000 acres of coking coal land in Raleigh county, and nave already completed a railroad aurvey. The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company has also bought large tracts, and has an engineering corps out, laying down a new railroad line. The Baltimore and Ohio people are also eddeavoring to get a share of this undeveloped wealth, and have purchased 76,000 acres of coal lands from ex-Senator J. N. Camden. The syndicate represented by James G. Blaine, Senator Gorman, ex-Senator Henry G Davis, and others, have also made large purchases, and many smaller purchases of 10,000 and 20,000-acre tracts are constantly being made throughout the coal and timber regions of the State. Immense tracts of coal and timber land are

A UNION GENERAL DEAD.

Major General Alfred H. Terry Dies After a Lingering Illness. New Haven, Dec. 16.—Brevet Major General Alfred H. Terry, of the United States army, died at his residence in this city at 4 o'clock this morning.
General Terry, as Colonel of the Seventh

Connecticut Regiment, was with General Sherman in his expedition against Fort Royal, and remained on duty in the Cotton Islands until 1864, when he commanded the First division of the Tenth in the corps under Major General Ben Butler. In January, 1865, he was sent to command a portion of the Tenth corps, and with the corporation of General Entler's with the co-operation of General Butler's forces captured Fort Fischer. For this he was made Brigadier General of the regular army. made Brigadier General of the regular army. At the end of the war he was placed in command in the South, and afterward sent to St. Paul, where he commanded the Department of Dakota. He was promoted to the Major Generalship March 3, 1886, and placed in command of the Division of the Missouri, with headquarters at Chicago. He retited from the service April 5, 1888, not being able to attend to the duties on account of sickness. He was 64 years of age.

the duties on account of sickness. He was 64 years of age.

For three years General Terry has been a sufferer from Bright's disease, and for a long time before his death he knew the inevitable result of the malady, and death did not come unexpectedly. He was afflicted with poor health ever since his visit here on Monument Day, June 17, 1887, and has been breaking down ever since. The winter following he spent in Florida, after which he returned to New Haven. He lived with his sisters ever since, Twenty-four hours before death the near end was apparent, and his brothers and sisters at Englewood, N. J., Knoxville, Tenn., and St. Paul, were notified.
