DOMAIN OF PLEASURE.

Eli Perkins Entertains a Small Audience at Carnegie Hall,

WITH WIT, WISDOM AND PATHOS.

Two Good Free Concerts to be Given at the Same Place To-Day.

OBSERVANCES OF SOCIETY AMENITIES

Wit and humor, satire and pathos, were all used and diagnosed by Eli Perkins in his lecture at Carnegie Hall last evening.

The famous speaker and "exaggerator, as he calls himself, was introduced by S. U. Trent, Esq., of Ben Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., the lecture being given under the auspices of three councils, the Reliable No. 90, the Colonel J. B. Clark No. 286, and the Peerless, Jr. O. U. A. M. The audience, though small, represented the sale of enough tickets to pay all expenses and have a handsome balance beside to be applied to the debt of $2,000 yet remaining on the Washington monument, in Allegheny Park, to be dedicated February 22 next. The subject of Mr. Perkins' lecture was "American Humor," and he commenced by defining laughter. The cause of laughter, or the definition as given by various authorities, "a short-lived surprise," was ridiculed out of court by the speaker, as he said the victims of the dreadful Ashtabula disaster must have very much inclined to laugh, according to that, and he applied various other illustrations. Laughter, Mr. Perkins said, is the result of some abstract deformity of music, gesture, logic, theory or rhetoric, and then he proceeded to emphasize and illustrate the fact by the use of stories whose very age had deformed them. Humor, Mr. Perkins defined as being true to life, always; wit an exaggeration, always; and the stories util-ized in this part of the lecture were astounding, especially those with which be proved the latter assertion, and which doubtless have assisted in giving Eli Perkins the name of being a colossal prevaricator.

The very essence of wit, he said, was the brightest point of exaggeration, and lawyers and editors were the wittiest of men. A caricaturist was a witty man, because he always enlarged upon the original. Nast was king of caricaturists, and his sketches of Carl Schurz, in Harper's Weekly, during the Presidental election preceding the lust, were still fresh in the minds of many of the audience, but in the last campaign he did not caricature Carl Schurz, because they were brother mugwumps, and one mugwump wouldn't exaggerate another-he

While Mr. Perkins disclaimed any particular interest in temperance, he concluded his lecture with a most powerful temperance argument. Having just returned from Kansay, he gave the true state of affairs there, which was a very flattering advertisement for Kansas, and a plea for prohibition. Treating the subject scriously, he seemed to regret that fact, and immediately treated it cetiously, but none the less powerfully.

EXTRAORDINARY ATTRACTIONS

Prepared for the Thirty-Second Free Organ Recital, This Afternoon.

For the thirty-second free organ recital at Carnegie Hall this afternoon, City Organist Wales has prepared an unusually attractive programme. Beside his own organ numbers, Miss Bertha Galentine will sing twice, and Mrs. Leah Dickinson will delight the audience by whistling "Mocking Bird" and "Last Rose of Summer." Following is the 2. A PLEASANT REUNION

Planned by the Members of the Iron City Fishing Club.

The reunion of the Iron City Fishing Club will be held on the evening of Janwary 15 at the Pittsburg Female College. A number of the members who spent such a delightful month in Canada last summer very wisely made immortal some of the pretty scenes and views that constantly delighted the eye by the use of kodaks, and on this occasion of the reunion the memories of pleasant events, shady books, pretty lakes and enormous fish will be revived by the presentation of such in lantern slides form taken from photographs. Some of the gentlemen interested in that portion of the event are Messrs. Lee S. Smith, Dr. Simpson and Rev. Charles W. Smith. A delicious supper will be served, and the evening, as planned, will be a most enjoyable one.

A FINE WORK OF ART.

Pittsburgers Granted a Look at a Portrait of Veronese by Himself. Mr. Hermann Linde has just received an old portrait, which is of the highest interest to the student of art. It is likeness of Paolo Veronese, painted by himself, at the age of 54. The softness and transparency of the handling mars in no way the nobility and strength of character depicted in the feat-while there are a number of the artist's Evening portraits dating to a prior time in existence, as, for example, the three in the "Fesst at Cann," this is the only one which portrays him at an advanced age, being painted four years before his death. An additional point of interest is in the circumstances that in handling, size and execution it forms a "pendant" to the portrait of Tintoretto in the Louvre Gallery in Paris.

WORK OF SWEET CHARITY.

A Very Successful Bazaar and Supper Given Last Evening.

A very pretty and successful bazzar and supper was given last evening by the Heart and Hand Society, of the Third Presbyterian Church. The charitable work of this society is very extensive, and the proceeds of the affair will be devoted to a continuance

Among the ladies in charge of the affair were Mrs. E. P. Cowan, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, Miss Julia Nelson, Miss Maggie

Nelson, Mrs. J. C. Williams, Miss Mary Ewing, Mrs. Frank Moore, Mrs. M. E. Gable, Mrs. Atwood, Miss Elizabeth Dihm, Miss Ross and Miss A. Wallace.

THE LECTURE AND CONCERT

To be Given at Carnegie Music Hall This Evening.

The following is the programme prepared for the free lecture and musicale to be given at Carnegie Hall this evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Club, as the printed programmes read. The lecture is described as "a non-partisan, non-sectarian, non-suffrage address to young and old, touching on most of the vital issues of the day, and which may prove especially inter-esting to those who are thoughtfully inquir-'Watchman, what of the Republican ing, 'W
