A COSTLY CHRISTMAS

Much Longer Pocketbooks Needed Than for Many Years Past.

PLENTY OF GOOD POULTRY TO EAT,

But the Trimmings for Turkey and Goose Are Pretty Dear.

SOME PREPARATIONS FOR TO-MORROW

Christmas, though very differently observed now from the tashion in vogue in Merrie England in days of vore, is still an occasion of merriment and feasting, but the menu has undergone a radical change, and the distinctively American bird has supplanted roast bee'; capon, mince pie, plum pudding, and coffee, tea or chocolate largely take the place of ale and eider. England, as well as the United States, has adopted the turkey for Christmas.

The gastronomy of to-morrow will be more extensive than on any former occasion in these cities and county, for people generally have been well employed and have money to spend, and the population has been largely increased in late years. But the feast will cost more than on any occasion since the days of resumption of specie payments.

Commission men do not expect to handle as much poultry as they did on the day before Thanksgiving and during a number of subsequent days, and they express themselves well satisfied with the prospect of small supplies, as poultry became a puisance following Thanksgiving Day.

But though commission men may not wrecked the car, but no one was hurt. handle so much, the aggregate arrivals from the near-by county are nonsually large, the sellers disposing of it themselves in the public markets or to bucksters and retail grocers, and wanting prices above those paid by commission merchants. On the Montour Railway alone, but 12 miles long, as Montour Run runs, and but seven as the crow flies, there were between 1,500 and 1,600 turkeys brought in yesterday, to say nothing of grese, ducks and chickens.

In England, goose and apple sauce are on the bill of fare on Michaelmas Day, but in this country tastes are omniverous, and not so conventionial as in the land where precedent reigns, and we take to turkey, of manuscript work in arithmetic, language chicken, duck, goose, or Irish turkey, in-discriminately, according to taste or power commendation. of purse. The latter is by far the cheapest ment offered, a 25 pound one being procurable for $2.25 and $2.50.

The most conservative estimate places the number of turkeys that will be eaten in this scrutiny and evidenced thorough and sys-county to-morrow at 35,000. This allows ten people to a turkey, but there are others who hold that the proportion should be five to a turkey, and they estimate the number of victims at 50,000 to 75,000. Taking the highest number, and allowing five to the bird, would leave 150,000 people to dine off something else.

COST OF POULTRY AND GAME. The cost of poultry will be about the same as it was previous to Thanksgiving Day, and about the same as it was last year, turkevs retailing from 17 to 20 cents a pound. The same may be said of game. Quail are plentier, but pneasants (ruffled grouse) are Trade was brisk in the Diamond Market rday, and it was mainly in ponitry. Irs. Hearst said she expected to sell 3,000 turkeys alone, and other fowls were going at the usual rate. There is an impression that people are more given to the consumption now of poultry than formerly, but a member of Brahm & Son stated that the holiday consumption of beef, mutten and pork is nearly twice what it was ten years materially altered, and the pressure population on the limits of the market bouses is what makes the consumption of fowl appear out of proportion. Poultry has the call, always, during the holidays.

But while the main dish will not cost more than usual of late years, the side dishes will have a decidedly specie flavor. Celery is about twice as dear as it was a year ago and cranberries are 33 per cent higher than then, while those who dine off goose will find the accompanying apple sauce cost about three times what it did last Christmas,

The scarcity and cost of fruit have exceed

DOAST BEEF A FAVORITE.

That some people still ancher to rosst beet is evident by the fact that two butchering tirms have contracted for tour over aggregating in weight about 10,000 pounds, and nearly all the choice pieces of these bottine elephants have been spoken for in advance. It is the opinion of many people that meat will be much cheaper between now and spring, but the quality may not be of the best. Grain is high-priced and many will slaughter their stock and sell it, and the feed that would otherwise enter into it, of the advantages of the Everett club, or of the advantages of the Everett club, or on the feed that would otherwise enter into it, and nearly all the choice pieces of these as grain at present prices, pays better when sold in the raw state than when converted into animal food-that is, it brings more ready cash, though the land is robbed of fertilizing material, the value of which the average American farmer has not yet dis-
