THE WEEK OF PRAYER

Pittsburg and Allegheny Churches Will Observe the SEASON WITH SPECIAL EFFORTS.

Levival Services to Be Held in Most of Our City Churches.

GLEANINGS FROM CHURCH FIELDS

The first week of the new year, beginning January 4, will be observed as a week of prayer throughout the Christian world, This custom was inaugurated in the year 1857 at the request of the India missionaries and has now become an established institution in all Protestant churches of America.

It has come to be an established fact in Christian churches that the opening days of the new year should be devoted to spiritunl interests. In accordance with this sentiment the U. P. churches of Allegheny have secured the services of Major D. W. Whittle for a series of meetings to begin January 4. Following is the programme of meetings to be conducted by Major Whittie:

We have received solutions to the goats' dilemma from James K. Orr, A. W. Snider and W. H. H. S.
The following verse taken from the I. D. M. we think very appropriate:
To solve the "Goats' Dilemma" some time it took us,
But by the gentle hints of S. A. Lucas,
We got them free and now off home they go
With smiling faces and with hearts aglow,
Although they felt inclined to chew some
"cuddy,"

The goats at last are out of their "Brown" study.

J. P. GREY. CITY CHAMPIONSHIP.

The $25 has been deposited in the hands of THE DISPATCH, and now awaits Mr. Sherrow to cover Mr. Boyle's forfeit. As this was the plan suggested to the editor of this column by Mr. Sherrow's backer, and he said then they were ready even to the amount named by Mr. Peal, if there is delay they will be to blame. A SILVER MEDAL has been placed in our hands by a gentleman withholding his name, to be given to the winner of the first contest played for the championship of the city, and the party who wins it in three contests will be the owner.

DAMEH'S REMINISCENCES. When I sit down to the old draught-board, By memory's magic power— lke miser over his golden hoard—

I he miser over his golden hoard—
I people the passing hour
With those from whom my gains I've made,
And those who have gained from me,
As sitting opposed with disks arrayed,
We sought to force victory. I first recall that wonderful man, I first recall that wonderful man,
Of which each village has one—
Invincible chief of the draught-playing clan,
Who never was known to shun
A fair encounter with any foe—
Who never had met defeat.
And of sweet Dameh was held to know
The mysteries all complete.

It needs must be as a thing of course, That book playing he despised.
To prove it needless he'd talk himself hoarse.
Because he had analyzed—
At once and fully each opening known, As soon as presented to him. Thus oe'r no book had he need to groan,

But weefulest hour of a weeful day, But woefulest hour of a woeful day,
Fate made its descent at last
In the form of a youth who said he'd play
Some games until the train passed.
The champion gave o'er his specs a look
When the youth observed each rule,
And said, "I suppose you play by book?
I'll show you a different school,"

But alas! alack! He soon was in

As orrowful circumstance,
And squirmed on his seat as though a pin
Was used by his foe as a lance.
When "Sturges' first" by the youth was gained,
"This must," he said, "be a draw."
"Oh, no," his foe serenely explained,
"My school teaches different law." When "Anderson's second" came in play, "At least this is drawn," he said. "Oh, no, the books you despise all say,
That never was loss more dead."
When even the "Goose's Walk" was reached,
He knew not that he was there.
His strongest fortresses all were breached.
Then he quit in blank despair.

"Tis wondrous, this," the veteran cried,
While covertly smiled the youth.
"These forty years to learn I have tried.
How long have you—tell the truth?"
"A short time only," the youth replied,
Whose hearers were all agreed
That he who yaugished their village wild hat he who vanquished their village pride Was surely no broken Reed.

CHECKER NEWS. While passing along Market street, between Second and Third avenues, it was our good luck to witness a most novel game of checkers, played in a barber shop, between two of the tonsorial artists. It was a very spirited game, and neither had the advantage, though both seemed playing to win. But the novel feature was that they had their double corner to their left hand. So much for tonsorial knowledge of checkers.

checkers.

We called at the Soho checker headquarters, and made the acquaintance of Thomas O'Neil and James Buchanan, of Western Pennsylvania challenge fame. We found them to be very nice young men, but to all of our entreaties we could not induce them to play, though they could not induce them to play though they have promised to come down to checker head-quarters.

W. C. Brown has accepted W. H. Tyson's challenge to pisy for the championship of the State. Play to begin early in March.

There are some in this Western part ready to take up the gauntlet when the two central experts get through with each other.

J. P. Reed, it is rumored, is to visit Pittsburg shortly. While the great luminary will be in our midst, how insignificant will all of us feel, who pretend to be lights in this part of the State, of which he is the champion!

DESTROY THE DELTA.

Continued from Nineth Page have had only good effects. Study of the maps shows that the Fausse, Shreeve, Raccourci and Hommochitto cut-offs have been without sequent ill-effects of any kind; rather, it may be said that until these cut-offs were made, no improvement was possible. The present crooked channel between Bayou Sarah and Hickman should be rectified and damages paid to the cities and towns which might be injured.

No fear need be entertained that the channel would lengthen itself by eroding the banks to regain the length lost by the rectification. In the portable jetties we have means sufficiently powerful to confine the erosion to the shoals and bars. When the water passed over them into the bends it would be so saturated with silt and so diminished in velocity that its tendency would be ished in velocity that its tendency would be constructive—not destructive.

Neither need we fear to disturb the "regimen of the river." That is just what the Mississippi has never had—equilibrium in constructive and destructive effort. The art of man must so control the velocity of the stream as to establish that highly desirable stream as to establish that highly desirable condition of things.

Nor need we fear to so augment the velocity that the river will be difficult of navigation; the slope and consequent velocity of the river will be very much less than it now is in a great many piaces, and its ascent will be accomplished with less fuel than is now required.

Nor will we lose the reservoir effect of those portions of the channel cut off. These, when low enough, would serve as reservoirs for the local flood waters; and when suitably improved and connected by locks with the improved and connected by locks with the main river would be most valuable arteries of commerce, avenues of a thriving trade, harbors of refuge during flood periods and sources of pleasure and profit in a thousand ways.

We need to lose that fear generally in spired by this hitherto untamed giant, and remember that it is subject to the laws of flowing water, the same as any rivulet; and that knowledge, courage, persistent labor and good common sense will successfully apply the laws of nature, and restrain and reclaim this mighty agent to the use of men. Further, we must devote part of our thoughts to the people whom the river is to serve.

Mere uninterrupted avenues of communication, mere land and water, mere masses of population, mere grubbing and grinding, these things do not make the people great, or augment commerce. Brains, culture, ambition, inventiveness, skill, well-directed effort, brilliant management—these are the things that make vast and profitable trade; and when did an unhealthy or a perturbed people have these things?

The example of our Northern lakes, rivers and canals shows that seven or eight months of navigation, through a prosperous and highly cultivated country, is vastly more pro-fitable than uninterrupted traffic in a country desolate or but crude and limited in devel ment. To reclaim to use the marvelously rich lands now swamps and sloughs, to ensure security from disaster, to improve the public health, to provide good water trans-portation routes free to all the people, will so vastly augment the population and the productive capacity of each unit thereof that there will set in an era of prosperity overmounting the borders of the bottom lands, spreading its influence continent

Physicians.

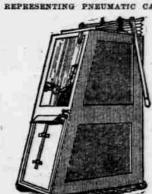

The papers are so full at present of accounts of Dr. Koch's new method of treating consumption by hypodermic injections that one is apt to lose sight of the old and approved method of pneumatic differentiation. This treatment has been in vogue now about six years, and I have yet to hear of a single physician once using the cabinet who has discarded it for any other method. I have publicly advocated the binet treatment for lung troubles but very little the past two years, for the reason that patients generally wait until their lungs are so full of holes that one could turn his fist in them before coming to me, and then when they die in a few weeks or months, as die they must, I am charged by envious physicians with hurrying them hence, which always hurts my reputation in that neighborhood. Besides, I can make more money treating catarrh at $5 a month, as I can treat a dozen catarrh patients while I am treating one in the cabinet, and it is human nature to work in that field which offers the greatest financial returns.

Wm. C. Byers, M. D., No. LettPenn Ave., Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist.

But I am still a firm believer in the pneumatic cabinet treatment, and use it daily in my practice. The diseases in which it seems most available are bronchitis, laryngitis, asthma, consumption in its first and second stages and remains of chronic colds and all pneumonias. By the cabinet treatment autiseptic or germ destroying sprays are brought into direct contact with the lung tissue, penetrating into the abscesses and pores, killing the germs, and cleansing and applying medicine immediately to the diseased parts. This treatment causes a greater respiratory power, gives greater exyto the diseased parts. This treatment causes a greater respiratory power, gives greater oxygenation to the blood and a system of lung exercise identical with that given the muscles by clubs, dumbbells and weights. This, aided by my system of medication, alimentation and regimen, which includes the rational use of food, exercise and everything essential to the building up of the strength of the patient, makes my claim that "I care consumption," when the disease has not progressed too far, a perfectly tenable one.

CUT REPRESENTING PNEUMATIC CABINET.

OPINIONS OF DISTINGUISED PHYSICIANS. Dr. Sidney Fox, of Brooklyn, N. Y., after an experience of four years with the cabinet, during which time he treated in it two hundred patients for lung trouble, says:

"I am familiar with other modes of treatment, having been an interne of two of New York's large hospitals; have seen about all the medicines of the pharmicopelia that are used in lung troubles prescribed; and am also familiar with the injection of cavities with the tincture of lodine and other drugs, and in private practice with Borieau's apparatus, invate practice with Berjean's apparatus, inhalers, the oxygen treatment and other methods; but I have discarded all and clung to the cabinet, regarding it as the only instrument ever devised that meets all the requirements for which it was intended."

Dr. J. T. Whittaker, of Cincinnati, says: "I regard it as of inestimable value, and would rather part with any instrument in my office than with my Pneumatic Cabinet."

Dr. Bowditch, Boston, Mass.: "I believe it to be a step forward in the treatment of one of the most formidable diseases with which we have to contend."

Prof. A. L. Loomis, New York: "Instead of sending patients to high altitudes it may be possible to accomplish, by properly arranged apparatus, what can be obtained by change of climate."

N. B.—References by permission of patients furnished upon application at my office, of prominent Pittsburg citizens treated by me during the past four years, all testifying to the benefits derived from preumatic cabinet treatment. Fees for cabinet inhalations greatly reduced, $1 each or $5 per week for daily treatment; medicine furnished, $5 per month. CATARRH TREATMENT 85 A MONTH. CATARRH TREATMENT to A MONTH.

I continue to treat catarrh by the Besaler spray method and the application and administration of such medicine as each case indicates, for $5 a month. Bear this fact in mind, catarrh can only be thoroughly eradicated by combined local and internal treatment, and those trying any other course are simply wasting their time and money and jeopardizing their health and even lives. For out-of town patients I have devised a system of home treatment, combining both local and internal medication. Write for symptoms blank. DR.
