THE WAR ON DISEASE.

No Prediction Too Extravagant in Light of Recent Events.

DR. FLINT'S HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

An Automatic Contrivance for Bringing Down Runaway Horses.

NEW WAY OF ENLARGING THE LUNGS

PREPARED FOR THE DISPATOR. Dr. Austin Flint about two years ago published an article on "A Possible Revolution in Medicine," in which he said: "The science and practice of medicine and surgery are undergoing a revolution of such magnitude and importance that its limits can hardly be conceived. Looking into the future in the light of recent discoveries, it does not seem impossible that a time may come when the cause of every infections disease will be known; when all such diseases will be preventable or easily curable; when protection can be afforded against all diseases, such as scarlet fever, measles, yellow fever, whooping cough, etc., in which one attack secures immunity from such contagion; when, in short, no constitutional dis-case will be incurable and such scourges as epidemics will be unknown."

It would certainly seem that this prediction is on the eve of verification. Dr. Flint now returns to the subject, and reviews the ground covered by the Koch experiments, which are supposed to be in course of continustion and extension for the purpose of finding a cure for typus and typhoid, scarlet fever, measles and diphtheria. It is possible that the line of research to be adopted will be in the direction of finding a special poison, produced by micro-organisms pecu-liar to each infectious disease, which will act upon these micro-organisms and the dis-eased parts as the curative lymph has been found to act upon tubercle bacilli and tuber-culous tissue.

Based on this supposition, Dr. Flint hazards another speculation as to develop-ments in medicine that may soon be looked for. It is shown to be possible that in the near future many curative lymphs will be discovered, each produced by the special micro-organism of a particular disease. It will not, considering what has recently been accomplished by Dr. Koch, be too much to expect that these agents will promptly arrest the different diseases to promptly arrest the director example, which they are applicable. For example, the typhoid lymph, the diphtheritic lymph, the typhoid lymph, that for scarlet the lymph for measles, that for scarlet fever and so on, will promptly arrest these diseases and save patients from the degenera-tions and the accidents which are liable to occur when morbid processes are allowed to run their course; and convaiescence will be prompt, because the diseases will not have produced damage which can be repaired only by time. "Truly," Dr. Flint says, this would be a revolution in medicine, and it now seems to be impending."

Separable Ocean Steamers

Among the great industries that are growing up in the heart of our continent is the building of ships, and a new era in the ship-building business of this country has been marked by the construction for our coast carrying trade of our large steel steamers built upon island lakes 1,000 miles from the Atlantic. The difficulties in the idea have been great from the fact that the locks of the Welland Canal cannot accommodate vessels of any considerable length.

This obstacle has been overcome in a novel manner. It has been shown to be quite feasible to cut a vessel in two, and put the parts together again on reaching the open sea, and furthermore, that the contingent expense of such a plan is more than building vessels in the heart of the coal and fron district of the country. A vessel con-structed on the shores of Lake Michigan was recently floated down to sea in two sections. The course was through the Weland Canal, down Lake Ontario, and on to Montreal, which was reached in 11 days. The after section of the ship, containing the machinery, had steam in one boiler and backed at the rate of 70 revolutions per minute, steaming stern first, while the forward section followed in charge of two tugs. On arriving at Montreal the two sections were placed on greased ways in a dry dock, and when the parts were closed in upon each other the butts came together so closely that a knife blade could not be inserted between the plates. The re-riveting was accomplished with facility in the usual way and the vessel was floated out of the clock a complete hull, defying the eye of any expert to tell where the junction had been made. As an instance of the proportions to which the shipbuilding industry at the lake ports has attained, it may be mentioned that the tonnage of the vessels built on the lakes during the last two years is only eight tons less than the aggregate of ship-building on the entire seaboard of the country, while the average size of the vestimes that of those built on the seaboard The extent to which the traffic in iron, coal and grain is increasing points to the prob-ability that before long the building of ships in the lake ports will be developed into a Developing the Lungs. A device recently invented for the promotion of deep breathing is likely to be of value to flat-chested, round-shouldered and weak-lunged people. If the means utilized in this invention shall induce the full, deep respiration of which so many people are absolutely ignorant, it will prove a welcome addition to our hygienic appliances. The device is a small belt or cord which encircles the chest at the point of its greatest expausion, and a take-up mechanism to which the ends of the belt or cord are attached. The take-up mechanism consists of a coiled spring, adapted to tighten the belt at intervals, and a train of wheels, by which the speed of the spring in taking up belt may be regulated. Upon exhalation of the breath, after the full expansion of the lungs, the chest re-turns to the size natural to it in ordinary breathing, thus leaving the belt loose. Immediately the take-up mechanism begins to gather in the slack of the belt, which it continues to gather, and finally it tightens the belt about the chest, until the pressure is uncomfortable to the wearer, and compels him to take another full inspiration, thus lengthening the belt. This lengthening is accomplished by the withdrawal of the strap the case, which act again coils the spring. The spring in turn, when the breath is exhaled and the chest resumes its natural size, again begins to gather up the sluck of the belt. These processes are con-tinued as long as the device is worn. It is claimed that the use of the device induces full breaths at intervals, and thus naturally strengthens and enlarges the lungs and

Device for Stopping Runaways. An iugenious contrivance has been de vised which, when attached to a vehicle will stop a runaway horse or speedily arres a victous or frightened animal. It consists of a removable sleeve which acts in conjunction with a central pulley and side levers, which are under the immediate control of the driver, and by which an instant rearward revolution of the central pulley can be effected. A substantial band, preferably of leather, is secured around the central pulley and extends forwardly, its extremity having lateral straps attached to it and also to the bits of the horses, so that the revolution in a direction away from the horses will shorten the band and pull the heads of the horses downward and rearward in a forcible manner, throwing the animals upon their haunches and quickly arresting their forward movement. Provision is also made for automatically locking the central pulley, so that the tension of the horses will not be removed if they back up. This pressure, however, can be readily removed by the driver's pressing with his foot on the treadle when it is desired to control a team of fractious horses with trammeled heads.

Reform in Rallway Construction

Oberlin Smith, in summarizing the various elements which are likely to enter into the coming reform in railway construction says that the locomotive is probably destined to be supplemed by electro motors attached to the car axles; the weight of even the lightest cars, supplemented by that of the passengers, being ample for tractive pur-poses. The speeds attainable would be per-haps two or three times greater than can be as a pulling machine. In regard to the actual is a pulling machine. In regard to the actual tightening of the cars themselves, it is possi-ble that inture designers may, after per-sistent study and experiment, put into the best possible shape, for strength and light-ness, some combination of steel, aluminum, india rubber, leather and paper which will make a more scientific car than the joint product of the foundryman, coach builder, house carpenter and upholsterer that is at present in use. Electric cars are now running with a total dead weight per capita of less than 600 pounds when but half loaded. There can be no question about the practi-cability of reducing this weight to 500 pounds, and it seems probable that, with the refinements of construction above indicated, we may at some time get these figures down to 400 pounds or lower. If it shall prove practicable to use rubber tires upon the wheels we may expect, not only very high speeds, but an almost ideal smoothness of notion. We shall then look back, Mr Smith says, to the railway car of to-day and find that its construction and action com-pare with those of the new vehicle somewhat as a navvy's wheelbarrow compares with lady's tricycle.

Economy in Cookery.

There is no process of cooking which re quires so much care and is so often neglected as boiling. This is the most extravagant method of cooking any meat if the water in which the meat is cooked is not utilized as stock, Of necessity no meat can be boiled without losing some of its nourishing qualities and enriching the water in which it is cooked. The French process of braising, by means of which meat is closely covered and slowly boiled in a stock which becomes gradually absorbed by the meat, is the only one by which the meat does not suffer actual loss. There should be a slight ebullition at the edge of the pot, nothing more. This ebullition should be kept up steadily until the meat is tender, and no longer, as nothing is more injurious to any boiled dish than to allow the boiling to stop,

A novel door, specially intended for the economy of space, has just been patented. The door is an adaptation of the principle of the roller-top desk and cover, and consists of a series of slats about one and one half inches wide and three-quarters of an inch thick, joined together by wooden spindles, one revolving within another. In the roller-top desk the slats are joined by rib-bons of steel or canvas. When the door is opened it is wound upon a spiral drum at top and bottom, and all is enclosed within the door casing. A three-foot door winds up in a roll seven inches in diameter. Ordinarily a three-foot door occupies about 14 square feet in swinging, and the new rolling door enables the builder to economize all that space.

Tin From Dye Waters.

A prize has been given in France by the Society for the Encouragement of National Industry, for a process for recovering tin contained in the wash of water from silks which have been treated with bichloride of tin, for the purpose of giving weight. By adding milk of lime to the water, and by properly agitating, the tin settles down in a few hours in the state of oxide, which can be readily collected and disposed of.

HE ARRANGED HIS OWN FUNERAL Warner Miller Will Deliver the Address at His Request.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 .- The body of Genral F. F. Spinner, who died in Jackson ville, Fla., arrived in Jersey City to-day over the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Adams Express Company had charge of the body, which was transferred to the National Express Company's office at Weehawken for transportation to Mohawk, N. Y. At 8:30 o'clock to-night the body was forwarded to Mohawk, where the interment will take place to-morrow at 2 P. M. Several of the friends of the deceased accompanied the remains to their final resting place. Mohawk

THE WORLD-FAMOUS SIGNATURE. The signature of General Spinuer is per-haps more familiar to the people of the United States than that of any other man, United States than that of any other man, living or dead. In making this signature the General stabled his old pen, with its three points, down into the pudding-like ink, which stuck to the bottom of the broken-noned pitcher, and proceeded to pile it up in ridiculous little heaps on cross angles. The result of his piling was his signature. It was considered a great triumph to seeme the General's autograph.

This is what he himself once wrote about his wonderful signature:

This is what he himself once wrote about his wonderful signature:

I first practiced on it while in the Sheriff's office, say, in 1835. I used it while commissioner for building the State Lunatic Asylum at Utica, in 1831, and as cashier and President of the Mohawk Valley Bank, and for franking while in Congress. It was brought to the highest perfection while I was Treasurer.

AWAKENED BY AN IMPRESSION. It is told of General Spinner that before he began sleeping in the Treasury building he was awakened in the night by a strong impression that something was wrong in the department. He lay for a long time tossing uneasily upon his bed and trying to close his eyes and convince himself that it was a mere freak of an overtaxed brain; but it would not be driven away.

At last, about 2 o'clock in the morning, in order to assure himself that his impression was at fault, be arose, hastily dressed sion was at fault, he arose, hastily dressed and set out for the Treasury. On his way he met a watchman from the department, hastening to arouse him, with the information that the door of one of the vaults had just been found standing wide open. A careless clerk, whose duty it was to close and lock the door, had failed to perform his duty that night, and the watchman, in going his rounds, had discovered the neglect.

WHEN RICHMOND PELL. This incident is also characteristic of the General: The news of the fall of Richmond was flashed over the wires, reaching Washington about 11 o'clock in the morning, and just after the day's business in the Treasurer's office had fairly begun. The General hastily came to the counter in the cashier's room, and, in a voice fairly tremulous with repressed excitement, called out so that all could hear the peremptory command:

"Put that eash into the vault, boys, and get out from here as soon as you can! I want you all to yell! We've got Richmond!" No order was ever obeyed more quickly or perfectly, and, in the tremendous shouts of excitement and exultation, General Spin-ner's voice was heard, loud and clear, every

Noticing a large war-club hanging up in the chief's tepee, Mr. Post said he would like to have it. Sitting Bull mentioned the fact that the club was an old relic, had been in service over 40 years passed through numerous bat-tles, and because of its curiosity he would give it to him.

The club is a vicious looking weapon, about 2½ feet long, with a buffale horn firmly secured in the club or heavy end, and bears the signs of having seen a large amount of service. Mr. Dickerson has the necessary credentials to prove conclusively that the club was the only one ever used by that the club was the only one ever used by Sitting Bull, and that it is the one used by this chief during his career. Mr. Dickerson recently received two different communications from the Smithsonian Institution, a Washington, D. C., relative to the purchase of the relic, but has not yet disposed of it.

THE LAZY MAN'S PIPE.

All Be Has to Do Is to Press the Button, It Does the Rest.

New York Herald.] The most curious pipe of the year is the lazy man's pipe. As its name expresses, this is a pipe requiring the minimum of exertion to use it. Naturally, it is of a some what complicated design, consisting of a what complicated design, consisting of a tube to hold the tobacco, and a stem run-ning crosswise of this for the mouth. The pipe is held by passing the two first fingers of the hand through two rings, one on either side of the bowl stem, and the mouthpiece being placed in the mouth, the pressure of a small valve that lies just under the thumb sets the ingenious mechanism juside to work, and the smoke is forced automatically into the mouth.

It is more than probable that this pipe will be taken up by the medical profession for use in throat and lung disease.

SCOOPS NOT APPRECIATED.

He opened the door of the editorial room in a hesitating sort of way, and stood gazing about him in uncertainty. He was dressed in garments redolent of hay, and his boots were badly spattered with yellow mud. After a couple minutes of embarrassed hesitation, during which nobody seemed to take any notice of him, he inquired, "Is—is— this the place where you take the news?"

He was informed that it was.

A RARE OLD INSTRUMENT.

A Costly Violin in the Hands of a Souther Gentleman.

Hon. D. P. Wells, the Representative from Marion county, has in his possession one the finest and rarest violins in the country, says the Sayannah News. It bears the stamp of the far-famed Stradivarius and the date of 1716. These Stradivarius violins are so very rare that one in perfect order recently sold in Europe for $10,000, and they are eagerly sought after by all violinists, but a genuine one is seldom found. Mr. Wells does not know the history of the violin before it came into his hands. He bought it from a tobacco hauler who came through the country with a caravan of wagons from Virginia.

Since he has had the instrument it has been examined and played by many fine judges of the points of a violin, and they have all pronounced it a remarkably fine specimen. He recently had it examined by in expert, who pronounced it a genuine Stradivarius. Its tone is remarkably strong and sweet, and with the exception of a smatt crack on one side it is in perfect order. Mr. Wells says it is not for sale, but thinks that an offer of $10,000, such as was recently paid for a Stradivarius abroad, might induce him to part with it.
