Koch Tells Al! About His Remarkable Lymph and of What It is Composed.

A GLYCERINE EXTRACT,

Derived From a Pure Cultivation of the Tubercle Bacilli.

EFFECTS LEARNEDLY DESCRIBED.

How the Troublesome Organisms Are Gradnally Destroyed.

BERLIN, Jan. 15 .- The secret of the composition of lymph, so long jealously guarded by Dr. Koch, has at last been revealed by the Doctor himself in a communication to a medical paper. He says it consists of a glycerine extract derived from the pure cultivation of the tubercle bacilli. Prof. Koch

Since publishing, two months ago, the results of my experiments with the new remedy for tuberculosis, many physicians who received the preparation have been enabled to become acquainted with its properties through their own experiments. So far as I have been able to review the statements published and the communications received by letter, my indications have been fully and completely confirmed.

The Effects of the Lymph Treatment. "The general concensus of opinion is that the remedy has a specific effect upon tupercular tissues, and is therefore applicable as a very delicate and sure scent for discovering latent Regarding the curative effects of the remedy, most reports agree that, despite the comparatively short duration of its application, many patients have shown more or less pronounced improvement. It has been affirmed that in not a lew cases even a cure has been establish "Standing by itself is the assertion that the remeity may not only be dangerous in cases which have advanced too far—a fact which may forthwith be conceded—butalso that it actually forthwith be conceded—but also that it actually promotes the tuberculous process, being therefore injurious. Further the past six weeks I have had opportunity to bring together further experiences touching the curative effects and diagnostic application of the remedy in the cases of about 150 sufferers from tuberculosis, of the most varied types in this city and the hospitals. I can only say that everything I have latterly seen accords with my previous observations. There has been nothing to modify in what I before reported."

The Story of the Discovery Told. Anything intended to exercise a healing effect on the tuberculous process must be a soluble substance which would be lixivated to a certain extent by the fluids of the body floating around the tubercle bacilli and be transferred in a fairly rapid manner to the juices of the body, while the substance producing sup-puration apparently remains behind in the tubercular bacilli or dissolves but very slowly. The orly important point, therefore, was to insuce outside the body the process going on inside, if possible, and to extract from the tubercular hacilit alone the curative substance. This demanded time and toil, until I finally succeeded, with the aid of a 40 or 50 percent solution of glycerine, in obtaining an effective substance from the tubercular bacillit. With the fluid so obtained I made further experiments on animals and finally on human beings. These fluids were given to other physicians to enable them to repeat the experiments. Tans to enable them to repeat the experiment The remedy which is used in the new treatment onsists of a glycorine extract derived from the use cultivation of tubercle bacilli.

It contains a certain quantity of mineral salts, coloring substances and other unknown extractive matters. Some of these substances can be removed from it tolerably easily. The effective substance is insoluble in absolute alcohol. It can be precipitated by it, though not indeed, in a pure condition, but still, combined with the other extractive matter, which is likewise insoluble in alcohol, the coloring matter may also be removed.

The Power of the Drug.

Regarding the constituents of the more effective substances, only surmises may, for the present, be expressed. It appears to me to be derivative from albuminous bodies, having a close affinity to them. It does not belong to the group of so-called toxalbumens, because he group of so-called toxalbumens, because I bears high temperatures, and goes easily and unckly through the gangrene. The proportion of the substance in the extract, to all appearance, is very small. It is estimated at fractions of I per cent, which, if correct, we should have to do with a matter whose effect upon aganisms attacked with tuberculosis goes far syand what is known to us of the strongest trues.

legarding the matter in which the specific action of the remedy on thierculous tissue is to be represented, various hypotheses may be naturally put forward. Without wishing to affirm that my view affords the best explanation, I represent the process myself in the following manner: The tubercle bacilli produced when growing in living tissues, the same as in artificial cultivations, contain certain substances which variously and Unfavorably Influence Living Elements in their vicinity. Among these is a substance ich, in a certain degree of concentration, kills, or so alters living protoplasm that it ses into a condition that Weigert describes as coagulation necrosis. In tissue thus become necrotic, the bacilius finds such unfavorable conditions of nourishment that it can grow no more, and sometimes dies. This explains the remarkable phenomenon that in organs newly altocked with tuberculosis—for instance, in gumea pig.' spleen and liver, which then are covered with gray bodies—a number of bacilli are found, whereas they are rare or wholly absent when the enormously eularged spleen consists almost entirely of whitish substance in a condition of coagulative necrosis, such as is often found in cases of natural death in tuberculosis of gumea pigs. The single bacillus cannot, therefore, induce necrosis at a great distance, for as soon as necrosis attains a certain extension the growth of the bacillus subsides, and therewith the production of the enditions of nouriskment that it can grow no sides, and therewith the production of the necrotising substance. A kind of reciprocal compensation thus occurs, causing the vegets tion of i-olated bacilli to remain so extraord narily restricted, as, for instance, in lupus scrofulous glands.

How the Lymph Destroys Bacilli. In such cases the necrosis generally extends to one part of the cells, which then, with further growth, assumes the peculiar form of further growth, assumes the peculiar form of eyescu zelle, or giant cell. Thus, in this interpretation, follow first the explanation Weigert gives of the production of giant cells.

If, now, one increased artificially in the vicinity of the bacillus the amount of necrotizing substance in the tissue, the necrosis would spread a greater distance. The conditions of nourishment for the bacillus would, thereby, become more unfavorable than usual. In the first place, the tissue, which had become necrotic over a large extent, would decay and detach itself, and, where such were possible, would carry off the enclosed bacilli and eject them outwardly, so far disturbing their vegetation that they would much more speedily be killed than under ordinary circumstances.

It is just in looking at such changes that the It is just in looking at such changes that the effect of the remedy appears to consist. It contains a certain quantity of necrotizing substance, a correspondingly large dose of which injures certain tissue elements, even in a healthy person, and perhaps the white blood corpuscies or adjacent cells, thereby Producing Fever and Complication I symptoms; whereas, with tuberculous na tients, a much smaller quantity suffices to induce at certain places, namely, where tubercle bacilli are vegetating and have already impregnated the adjacent region with the same pregnated the adjacent region with the same necrotizing matter, more or less extensive necrosis of the cells, with the phenomena in the whole organism which result from and are connected with it. Thus, for the present, at least, at its impossible to explain the specific infinence which the remedy, in accurately defined doses, exercises upon tuberculous tissue, and the possibility of increasing the doses with such remarkable rapidity and the remedial effects which have unquestionably been produced under not too favorable circumstances.

Prof. Koch concludes with a reference to the duration of the remedy. Of the con-sumptive patients whom he described as temporarily cared, two bave returned to the Moabit Hospital for further observation No pacilli have appeared in their sputum or the part three months, and their phthisisymptoms have gradually and completely disappeared.

At the house of Rodgers & Sons, where 300 men are employed, the workmen have received intimation that in consequence of the serious effects of the American tariff, it will be necessary to make a similar reduction. The best class of wares for which the firm is renowned will not be af-fected prejudicially, but the medium quali-ties will almost be driven from the

FOUR PERSONS NAMED FOR THE TOGA

HARRISHURG, Jan. 15 .- For a time today it looked like an exciting crisis in the Senate, which threatened to result in a clash between the Republican Legislature and the incoming Democratic Governor at the very outset of his administration. Mr. Pattison himself was not a party to the trouble. It was known that at to-day's session of the Senate Governor Beaver would send to the body a voluminous list of appointments which he has made during the year and a half since the last Legislature adjourned. To confirm such appointments in the Senate, a two-thirds vote is required. That is 34. This year there are 19 Democrats in the Senate and 31 Republicans. The Republicans, therefore, lack three votes of ssessing the two-thirds majority. Knowing this well, the Democratic Senators held a secret caucus this morning, and decided that until the new Governor is in charge of the State administration they would oppose the confirmation of all the retiring Govern-or's appointments except notaries and magistrates

Beginning of the Trouble. The Senate began its session, and after other business had been disposed of, the printed list of Governor Beaver's appointments during the year was taken up. A great many notaries and aldermen were confirmed without a murmur, and at last Sena-tor Robinson moved that the appointment of William M. Martin, of Chester, as Factory Inspector of the State for a term of three years, be confirmed. Instantly Senator Ross, the leader of the Democrats, slipped over to Robinson's seat and informed him quietly of the intentions of the Democratic nembers of the Senate. Robinson at once recognized the gravity of the position and hastily withdrew his motion. Confronted by the fact that if the Democrats were in earnest the 31 Republi-can Senators were absolutely powerless, the Republicans made an adroit move. It had been intended to adjourn the Senate until Tuesday next, but this dilemma stopped all that, for that was equivalent to laying over Beaver's appointments until Pattison became Governor. A recess was therefore taken until to-morrow morning at 11

To make matters worse, six of the Republican Senators were not in the city. They were Messrs. Showalter, Critchfield, Porter, Newell, Upperman and Flinn. The Democrats were all present but two.

A Republican Caucus Convened. The Republican Senators therefore immedistely called a caucus for 3 P. M. The pro-ceedings of this gathering are kept secret, but it was ascertained that it was decided to telegraph for the six absentees to be in Har-risburg by morning. The attempt to confirm the appointments will then be renewed, and the caucus decided that if the Democrats then persist in objecting to the confirmations that they, the Republicans, will resort to a retaliatory course with the very first appointments which Governor Pattison sends to the Senate.

The first appointments of Governor Patticabinet, viz: Secretary of the Common-wealth, Attorney General, Adjutant Gen-cral, and their various deputies. These will come into the Senate for confirmation on the very day Pattison is inaugurated. Tuesday next. It is equally within the power of the Republicans to prevent the confirmation of these men as it is for the Democrats to pre-

All interest centers on to-morrow's session, over in the city to witness the struggle George Handy Smith and Republican Sena-tors generally laugh at the sudden move of the Democrats as one of the most impolitic steps ever taken at Harrisburg.

Merely a Display of Power. They accredit it to two things, one that the Democrats knowing the lack of a constitutional majority on the Republican side, simply wanted to make the majority party realize how the minority is able to worry it this winter. The other theory is that the leading spirits in the movement are factional enemies of Governor Pattison, and took this method of placing him in an embarrassing position at the outset. It is a fact that Pattison bas not got a personal representative, authorized as such, yet on the floor of the Senate. How many enemies he has remains to be seen. On the other hand, Senator Ross explains that the inwardness of the movement is this: There may not be a single appointee of Governor Beaver whom the Democrats may wish to vote against, but it is deemed wisest to delay executive matters of this kind until the policy of the new Governor is sufficiently toreshadowed to indicate his wishes and until the policy of the Legislature toward Pattison is also indicated.

Read between the lines, and it would Read between the lines, and it would seem as though the Democrats are making a high-handed effort to "hold up" the Republicans until some compromise is offered the minority party by which they may secure fair treatment in this Legislature. More Conservative Counsels Prevail.

At a late hour to-night there were unmistakable signs that the Democrats were weakening. Senator Ross says that if Republimean what they threaten, then manifestly neither side can gain anything, and it s the farthest from his mind to antagonize the majority party and thus embarrass Governor Pattison. He says, however, no formal action will be taken to-night other than what the Democratic caucus resolved upon in the morning, but he intimates a further caucus may possibly be held to-morrow. He says the Republicans did exactly the same thing with Pattison's appointments when Beaver took hold, and they simply requested a like courtesy.

Beaver which were delayed confirmation

The American Association adjourned late his afternoon, after coming to an understanding in regard to the course to be pursued tomorrow. Toledo, Rechester and Syracuse will be bought out, notwithstanding the position of President Parsons, of Louisville. The Association, however, will wait for the National League before taking any decisive step. The Association wants to know what action will be taken in the Boston matter before going ahead. The League will meet to-morrow at 11 o'clock and the Association at 12 o'clock. The meeting of the Players' League will be held tomorrow morning, and all the delegates are on hand to-night. It is stated that J. Palmer O'Neil will represent Pittsburg, he having effected a combination in that city, and Anson and Jim Hart appear for Chicago, Irwin and Wagner said last night that the Players had no intention of dissolving their League, and that later developments might assonish somebody.

Mr. Kearns will also introduce two other important bills—one creating a new court in Allegheny county to be known as the Court of Common Pleas No. 3, and the other amending the conspiracy laws, so as to remove the misdemeanor feature, which prevents public meetings by strikers. Confirmed as Notaries. HARRISBURG, Jan. 15 .- Among the no taries public confirmed to-day were the following: W. A. Blakeley and Louis Rien-Allegheny; Charles A. Woods and

PECK ON THE BENNETT LAW.

WISCONSIN'S NEW GOVERNOR ANXIOUS FOR ITS REPEAL.

He Says the Underlying Principle of the Measure is the Strong Government Theory-It Destroys Parental Rights to Educate Children in Private Schools.

MADISON, WIS., Jan. 15 .- In reference to the Bennett compulsory school law, in his message delivered to-day, the Governor

Chapter 519 of the laws of 1889 has been the source of much discussion and dissension. In my judgment, this act, so far as it refers to cational matters, is unwise and unneces sary. In many of its provisions it is an arbitrary and unjustifiable interference with parental rights, individual freedom and the parental rights, individual freedom and the liberty of conscience, and I therefore recommend its prompt repeal. The real underlying principle of this law is not compulsory attendance at school, nor a wise advancement of popular education, but we assertion of the "strong government" theory as opposed to that dearly-prized principle of personal liberty which is the true foundation of our Government.

Misrepresentations have been made in the Misrepresentations have been made in the heat of political controversy by its defenders, both as to the law itself and as to the motives and principles of those who oppose it, which have tended to bring our State into disrepute among those far from the scene of conflict and ignorant of the real matters in dispute. The principle applied in this piece of legislation would not only destroy some of our private schools, but would establish the right of the State, or the dominant party in the State, to dictate what, and what alone, all the children within its borders should be taught, leaving to the minority, however large, no discretion of freedom in the matter. A principle more subversive of the most important protection to individual liberiy and the rights of conscience could scarcely be imagined. The right of the clitzen to aducate his child in accordance with the dictates of his conscience, without interference on the part of the State, should be recognized and defended.
