DISPATCH, SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1891. PITTSBURG THE

elsewhere in all the world. It is a great, an incalculably great and precious heritage of pure and inspiring fame, to which, as an American, he was born. To name only two, where in the history of mankind are the to be found better names of patriot and statesman than are our own American Washington and Webster.

A Voice We Cannot Disregard.

But Abraham Lincoln, too, is a name that cries out in our ears with a voice which we cannot disregard. Read the life of Washington, read the many eulogies in which his transcendent virtues have been set forth and idolized, read his "Farewell Address" to his fellow-countrymen, and be proud, and glad, and thankful that you, too, are an American. Of the eulogies, too many to be named, I may mention the cele-brated one of Edward Everett's, which that accomplished orator delivered in numerous places all over the Union, devoting the proceeds of his disinterested toil to the re-demption of Mount Version from threatened decay, and the consecration of it for a na-tional Mecca to reverent pilgrims from every quarter of the globe. Read the full two-volume life of Webster, by G. T. Curtis, and, above all, read the six volumes of Webster's speeches—or if not all these, then E. P. Whipple's selection from them, entitled "Webster's Great Speeches." Trust no defamation that you may meet of his memory, but know him bimself, and his great works. Such a man is a treasure for you to help keep sacred. Suffer no one to rob you of it by false words spoken against his fame. Read Abraham Lincoln's inaugural address, his Gettysburg oration-comparable, and not inferior to the funeral oration of Pericles over the Athenian dead direction of strengthening the party ma-chinery, and will also suggest methods for a stringent enforcement of the law and a pros-ecution to the end of all the violators.

A YOUNG COUNTESS ABDUCTED.

The Deed Was Done by a Woman for

that Count George Szirnoy, of Austro-Hungary, has been in this city three weeks hunting vainly for his 17-year-old daughter, who was stolen from a convent abroad by woman who thus sought revenge. Traces of the young Countess have been found in the low dens of Thompson street, where it is believed her abductor placed there, but for various causes many carelessly embark upon the dangerous river which rises in its upper part. Down the stream they drift on pleasure or business, careless of their destination and thoughtless of the results. On they go, past the City of Despond-ency, still thoughtless. Now they round a dangerous bend, and, looking down the stream, ency, still thoughless. Now they found a dabgerous bend, and, looking down the stream, they see the towers of the Forlorn City. Careless traveler, why will you captinue? Stop and take the first train on this Air Line Railroad back to the City of Health. And yet how few stop. Here the current widens and other rivers pour in their floods. What is this land through which the river now runs? It is low, marshy and cold. How different from the scenery of the State of Good Health. Why journey farther? Look! directly ahead is the City of Wee. But the trains from this locality do not run so frequently as for the run the river and wat you can be taken threadily head. But hat' What is that ahead is the City of Wee. But the trains from this locality do not run so frequently as farther up the river, and yet you can be taken speedily back. But hark! What is that noise—that sullen roar? It sounds like falls, and the swift current shows too blainly that such is the case. "Can we not land now?" they ask in despair. No. The current is too swift, the falls too near, the power of resistance too feeble. Over the falls, down to the depths! Surely it must be death for all. But no, here are a few, a very few, who have struggied to the shore, and with despairing efforts have clambered upon its banks. How desolate they are, and yet just below is the City of Last Hope. Few ever reach it to re-turn, few who go over the falls survive, while the on-rushing torrent, eruel and cold, rolls down to the dark Ses of Death.

We want to advance "Dameth" in every possible way, and we invite correspondence on all matters pertaining to draughts, so that there is really no student of Dameth but will find something that will be of interest to others, and it is such material we want. If someone shows us our game could have been stronger played, by this or that move, let us prove it, and it is use material we want. It someone shows us our game could have been stronger played, by this or that move, let us prove it, and if orrect, let us adopt it the next time we play. In this way we will gain a knowledge of the gamp of draughts. SOLUTION TO POSITION NO. 24.
