children by the State free of charge?"

Pattison Is Giad the Republicans Are Co islature to crack there is also a political hurr to open. It is the subject of apportion ment. The United States Senate has not yet fixed the number of new Congressmen under the new apportionment, so that nothing along that line has yet been attempted here. But Representative the State. William R. Leeds, of Philadelphia, is noderstood to be taking considerable interest in logislative apportionment. It is said he will be the chief player in the apportionment game, and will make some good moves on the Senatorial and Representative checker board when it is uncovered. There is much speculation as to whether any apportionment bill can be passed by this Republican Legislature which will meet with the approval of the Democratic Governor. That is the rock on which Governor Pattison and the Legislature split in former years. If Pattison should take it into his head to veto any apportionment bills sent him by the Legislature, they could tison had intended to reappoint to the posinot be passed over his veto in spite of the tion he had so acceptably filled, has created large majority the Republicans have in Harrisburg this year. The reason is that the Republicans lack just a few votes of having the requisite two-thirds majority. Some radical Republicaus insist it is no use trying apportionment this year because Pattison will surely take a partisan view it and use the veto ax. They think it might be write to hold over legislative apportion-ment for two years, when the Legislature will surely possess the two-thirds Republican majoraty.

The Change Badly Needed.

But the great majority of Republicans be-lieved an honest effort should be made at this session for legislative apportionment. They say the growth of the State demands a change badly. The Senatorial districts as now constituted were made in 1874, and based upon the census taken in 1879, 20 years ago. The growth of population in that time has made an extraordinary disproportion in the size of some of the dis-tricts. While one has a population of more than 171,000, another elects a Senator on 45,000. The Senatorial ratio under the present census is 105,160. This, however, does not apply to Philadelphia, which, under the Constitution, can have no more than eight Senators, ro matter what its population.

There are now one-fourth of the whole number of districts whose population falls many thousands short of the ratio, while there are an equal number with a population which has considerably outgrown it. There are not more than 12 of the districts, as at present constituted, which are anywhere near the ratio, and scarcely more than six that come close enough to be entirely fair. Robinson the Leader.

The week's events in the Senate have made it a little more certain who the Republican leader is to be in that branch of the Legislature. Early indications were that the distinction would fall upon the shoulders of either General Gobin, of Lebanon county; Congressman-elect "Jack" Robinson, of Delaware, or Senator Thompson, of Dauphin county. Rob-inson has no doubt been pulling to the front. He is full of tact, and shrewd in his political maneuvering. Essentially, thereinre, he is a parliamentarian equal to an energency, while he at the same time is nu orator of bright language, crisp ideas and keen repartee. He is well worthy the leadership, which seems to have been about accorded him by common consent. He will only be in the State Senate until March, when he resigns to take his sent in Congress, and after that General Gobin will be the Republican leader, L. E. STOFIEL.
