PARIS. Feb. 3 .- Michael Eyraud, the murderer of Gouffe, paid the penalty of his crime this morning at about 7 o'clock in the Place De La Roquette. The news of the approach of the execution had been kept a secret from everybody except the police and the journalists, to whom notice was given last night at about 11 o'clock, while the police de sure had been notified at 5 o'clock in the afternoon to hold themselves in readi-

Owing to the great secrecy observed, there were only a few members of the public at La Roquette, and the consequent scandals of former executions, the presence of crowds passing the night at the scene of the execution were not repeated. The street was barred at both extremities by a cordon of police, and Gardes Republicaines who were mounted, Only 100 people who were furnished with tickets were allowed to pene-

In spite of the great cold and fog which prevailed at 4 o'clock this morning, nearly a hundred of those who were privileged to be present had taken up their positions sur-be present had taken up their positions surrounding the square wooden balustrade which marked the site of the guillotine. At 5 o'clock two conveyances appeared on the scene. These contained the various parts of the instrument of death. One was larger than the other, but they both resembled the traveling caravans of strolling jugglers. From one was taken the large zine basket which was shortly to receive the headless body of the murderer. Regarding this, a reporter heard a policeman remark to a colleague, "When Eyraud catches sight of that he will fanny it is the trunk in which he stowed away Gouffe's body."

At this moment a flacre, No. 3,568, drove up bringing the Abbe Faure, the chaplain of La Roquette, who quickly disappeared inside the walls of the prison. The coachman was drunk, and without loss of time he began negotiations for the roof of his cab to these spectators who were not already sufficiently well stationed. He asked 9 sous for each place, and apparently got what he wanted. Some moments later nine people were perched on the top of the vehicle. The public endured, without too great a show of impatience, the long hours of expectation. There was no shouting, singing or squabbling, and the rowdy portion kept at a respectful distance.

Testing the Working of the Guillotine.

Testing the Working of the Guillotine. At last the guillotine rose in its place under the supervision of Diebler, who, with an umbrella tucked under his arm, had the appearance of a respectable landlord supervising some work of an interesting nature on his property. Then his assistants tried the working of the triangular-shaped knife several times in order to see that it riided properly. The onlockers watched the instrument of death with almost breathless interest as it swiftly went up and down in the groove.

At 7 o'clock there was perfect daylight.
Shortly afterward the gendarmes unsheathed their swords, the gates of La Roquette opened their swords, the gates of La Roquette opened and Eyraud emerged from between them. The collar of his shirt was cut very low, and he shuddered slightly under the chilling effect of the sharp morning air. The color of his face was yellow rather than white. He took in the surroundings at a glance which had in it no trace of fear. He walked or rather shuffled in the direction of the guillotine as fast as his bonds allowed him. The Abbe Faure supported him on the left, and, at a distance of two paces from the guillotine, Eyraud paused. The chaplain believing that the supreme moment had arrived, approached the condemned man for arrived, approached the condemned man for the final embrace, but Eyraud, with a signifi-cant sbrug of the shoulders, repelled him, and, in a vibrating voice, cried, "Constans is an assassin! He is much more an assassin than i!"

The Knife Quickly Falls. At the very first words the executioner's assistants had pushed Eyraud on the bascule, and the last words were pronounced just as the knife descended. The execution was performed with almost incredible rapidity. Your reporter counted only 29 seconds from the time when the prison gates opened to the moment when the headdless corpse was hastily thrust into the rinc basket, while the head dropped into the wooden pail. The official report, which is the duty of the Commissioner of Police of the quarter Boquette to draw up as a process verbal of every execution, is as follows: "Copy of the documents setting forth the detail of Evraud's execution.

"We Haron, Commissioner of Police, ad interim, on this 3d of February having received an order to proceed to La Roquette for the carrying out of the execution of Michael Eyraud, we repaired in the morning to the cell in which the condemned man lay, accompanied by Monsieur Beauquesme, the Director of the Prison; Monsieur Louiche, Judge d'Instruction; Monsieur Louiche, Judg counted only 29 seconds from the time when the Under the supervision of Diebler the guillotine had been erected. At 7 o'clock we repaired to cell No. 1, occupied by the condemned man." Ready for the Execution.

Eyraud was fully dressed and seated upon his bed. As ordinarily the warders on duty are relieved at 6:30 in the morning, the failure to do so on the present occasion was a notification to the condemed that the day of execution had at lastarrived. Monsieur Beauquesne informed Eyraud that the appeal for clemency had been rejected, and added, "Courage, Evraud." to which the latter replied, "Bien j'en aurari." He then undressed without assistance, and exchanged the prison clothes for his former attire and a pair of white canvas shoes. The director of the prison inquired of Eyraud whether he had any revelations to make. He replied in he had any revelations to make. He replied in the negative.

The Abbe then asked if there was any message for his wife and daughter, "Certainly I have. Bid them adien. May they be happy." The Abbe then offered him some brandy, which he declined, saying it would make him ill. Supported by two gendarnes he was conducted to the hall, where the toilette des condamnes was scraminzed by the bystanders. Evraud at length broke the silence by addressing Monsieur Beauquesne. He said: "May I ask that my body shall not be sent for dissection. But if it is so, where will it be sent?"

The abbe assured him that his body would be handed to his family, and be thanked the Abbe. Then with a firm countenance and in a lond voice, Eyraud exclaimed: "Constans a euraison. It a gagee son affaire et elle est jolic celle la il decorara Gabrielle." Then turning to the warden, he said: "You are hurting my fingers; don't clutch so tightly." He then thrust aside the abbe who again offered him some brandy.

The Head and Trunk Buried.

The Head and Trunk Buried.

The body was placed in a special van immediately after the execution and conveyed to the Cemetery D'Ivry, under an escort of four gendames with drawn swords. The van with its event reached the convergence of the c gendarmes with drawn swords. The van with its escort reached the cemetery at 820. It was there met by a van containing the representa-tives of the faculty of medicine, who demanded the body of the criminal for the purpose of dissection according to the customary practice, but being notified by Monsieur Geron that the body had been claimed by the family, they re-tired.

One of Deibler's assistants then opened the hasket, took out the body and the lead, one after the other. The two sentions of the neck presented jagged edges of Fleeding flesh, and the sawdust at the bettom of the basket was saturated with blood. The expression of the face was calm. The eyes were closed, the mouth was distorted by a slight grimace. The assistant lifted the head by one of the ears and placed it in the coffin of white wood where the body already lay. The coffin was then lowered into the grave which awaited it alongside the graves of Prade and Praerzini.

LARGE PETROLEUM TERRITORY AT

erable Activity in That Promising Field-An Interview With an Independent Delegate From the Warren Meeting-News From the Various Oil

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCEL CORAOPOLIS, Feb. 3.-Coraopolis stock, as outlined some time ago by THE DIS-PATCH in discussing the field situation, is destined to come to the front with a boom. Since then a number of good wells have de-veloped a large scope of territory, and several sales of considerable magnitude have been con-summated. It was rumored yesterday that Fine-gan, Downing & Co. had sold their Coraopolis property to the Forest Oil Company. Upon investigation by THE DISTATCH scout it was learned that negotiations were pending and that they would be concluded before the day was over. The property consists of 1,050 acres, with 15 producing and drilling wells and a daily production of about 300 barrels.

While it is not definitely known how much was paid for the property, the consideration is thought to be between $175,000 and $200,000. Another party paid $1,000 for an option on this same property, which expired Monday night.

The Coraopolis Field Operations. Activity marks the path of progress in the Coraopolis field. Its boundaries are gradually being extended, and from the present outlook the day is not far distant when developments will embrace a large acreage. In the town will embrace a large acreage. In the town Louden Brothers have just completed a 20-barrel well. On the Watson property J. M. Patterson has a well in the sand which is showing for a well, while Galley Bros. & Guffy, on Seven Mile Island, have two rigs ready for the drill. On the Reed farm Carnehan & Young are drilling in the sait sand, and Patterson & Co. will bring in their well on the Brecht to-morrow or next day. On the Morrison the same parties have a well drilling at 1,400 feet.

By the last of the week the Duquesne Oll Company will bring in their No. 2, Gass farm, Yesterday Emerson & Black were lucky in getting a good well on the Snowhite. On the Meenor farm the Orion Oil Company are starting a rig, and have another about completed en the Schwartz. The Forest Oil Company are drilling at 450 feet on Hog Island. Finegan & Downing brought in their No.1 Snowhite yesterday, which is good for 90 barrels a day. The following are the gauges of some of the important wells:

The P. P. A. Organization. A delegate of one of the local assemblies. Pittsburg, who attended the meeting of the P. P. A. at Warren, was approached by THE Dis-PATCH scout to-day, and in answer to an in-PATCH scout to-day, and in answer to an inquiry as to what was done, said that, owing to the vows he had taken, he was not at liberty to give any information that would compromise his honor. He finally admitted that the consideration of T. W. Phillips' eligibility to membership was deferred until another meeting of the delegates or Executive Board, which will be called by the President at any time he may elect. Mr. Phillips at present is on his way to the Pacific coast on a pleasure trip, and will not return for some time.

While the members of the Independent organization are reticent upon the subject of Mr. Phillips' membership to the P. P. A., the general impression prevails that he is no longer 'in it.' The delegate further said that he could see no harm in stating that harmony characterized the deliberations of the assembly throughout, and that the results attained were far beyond the expectations of the most sanguine member of the organization.

A Supposed Dry Hole Turns Out Splendidly.

A Supposed Dry Hole Turns Out Splendidly. BELMONT-Interest has again been revived in the old Archie Forks well, owned by Mandein the old Archie Forks well, owned by Mandeville & Co., and located six miles north from Ackerley & Sammel's developments on the Hendershot farm. This well has previously been reported dry, or nearly so, and at best was only a diminutive producer. The well was shot Saturday in the Berea grit, and authentic information from the venture to night says it made 24 inches in the first 25 hours, or about 60 harrels. It has now leaked out that the owners mystified the well for two reasons. First, because there was some defect in the title of a number of leases they held in this locality. There was also some territory they wanted to secure, which, if the true status of the well had been made known, could not have been obtained.

been made known, could not have been obtained.

Between this well and the Hendershot developments there has been one or two dry holes drilled, but not on a northeast and southwest line. The opinion of a number of practical producers in this field is that the Mandeville well is likely to open a distinct pool in the Berea formation.

The much-talked-of Tom Cat well, located on the Virginia side, two miles southeast of St. Marry's, up French creek, is also attracting some attention. The well was completed some two months ago, as fluished and a gasser. From a reliable source it now transpires that the caloric fluid was found in Big Injun sand, and that a good showing of oil was struck in the top of the B. Further operation was suspended and the well plugged. What the drill will reveal when business is again resumed cannot be predicted.

Opening Territory West of Wildwood. but, as is usually the case, it will require another day's drilling to find the pay, J. M. Guffy and the Forest Oil Company No. 3 is nine feet in the sand to-night. Kress No. 6 is 16 feet in, and the indications at his writing are good. Griffith & Co.'s No. 2, Ringheisen, is on top of the sand.

Some operators are of the opinion that west of Wildwood there is some good territory, and to test this theory a number of rigs are building. The Heidleberger well is down 16 feet, and unknown parties have started a rig on the adjoining farm north.

Cure of a Distressing Skin Disease Gratefully Acknowledged by a New York Gentleman.

My little grandson having been cured of an eczema by the Cuticuta Remedies, I was prevailed upon by my wife and daughters to try it myself for a distressing skin malady that has been the bane of my life for twenty years.

If required a good deal of persuasion to get me to try it, for I argued that a man seventy years of age could not be cured by the same remedy that a two-year-old child was. I was perfectly astonished at the result, however. In one week my eruption had nearly disappeared, and in two weeks there was not a vestige of it left. A transformation took place from a leprous to a fine, healthy skin. My head, before I commenced the use of the Cuti-Cuta Remedies, was covered with scales and patches of dead okin, which I could pail off in pleces the size of a dime, while from my elbows, knees and other parts of my body. I could detach at the size of a half dollar. My head had such an appearance that I avoided society, but now, thanks to the Cutticuta Remedies, I can once more go out with comfort, and enjoy all the pleasure of society with a satisfaction I was long a stranger to.

in the sand the first show was found. The sec-ond pay was at 35 feet, and the third was tapped at 50 feet in. The well is now 53 feet in the sand, and another pay is expected before the well is finished. Pleased over the result of No. 2 the company has located No. 3 about 590 feet northeast from No. 1, and on a line with the Pussey well, which is making 100 barrels a day. The Barney Forst well, on the Anderson farm, is panning out 125 barrels a day.

CALLERY-Forest, Bishop & Co.'s well, on the George Marburger farm, located 100 feet northeast from Geohring No. 2, is reported 60 feet in the sand, and in its present condition will only make a small well. There is still a good chance for improvement, and when the sand has been penetrated further it will be no surprise to hear of an Al producer.
