THE TRIALS OF A POSTMASTER.

Almost Killed and Then Arrested for an Unheard-of Crime.

AN ASTOUNDING STORY FROM FLORIDA.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH: NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Fred. D. Peer, of the United States Secret Service, has concluded his investigation of a remarkable case in Hamilton county, Florida, the details of which indicate that "Dark America" is located in that section of the State where else. It was not for documentary evidence that Mr. Peer has secured and brought back with him, it would not be believed that such a crime could be committed in a civilized country.

The chief features of the story involve the attempted assassination of a postmaster by a boy 18 years of age, a plot hatched later to get rid of the postmaster and secure his office, by causing his arrest on a spurious document, charging him with "mauldustry and malfeasance of public favor," the confinement of the postoffice and the appointment of a new postmaster by a so-called detective, whose authority came from a bogus detective agency in Kansas.

A Very Strange Document. Of course there is no such office as "mauldustry," and no such word in the English language, but the document upon which the arrest was made—it cannot be called a warrant—set forth in ridiculous phraseology that it is "one of the unpardonable crimes of this country," and the bogus officer is commanded to "proceed forthwith, and immediately, as instantly, in the name of the State of Kansas and the lovers of peace and harmony universally, to the town of White Springs, capture, seize and arrest and strongly hold the said C. L. Morrison, a Union soldier, and the scene is laid on the Suwannee river, at White Springs, Fla. Some years ago Morrison went South to reside in the town of White Springs, and as a political sentiment was at a high tension in White Springs, he had some acrimonious words with his Democratic neighbor, Morrison was not very discreet in his utterances, not, perhaps, appreciating the intensity of political feeling in the community, and not long after he was looked upon as a very obnoxious citizen. He was frequently threatened, and in March, 1888, a boy named Cone, 18 years of age, stepped up behind him and fired a bullet into his skull.

Morrison Drops the Case. Morrison had a close call for his life, but he pulled through. While he was very low, his wife procured a warrant for young Cone's arrest, and he was locked up for trial. Morrison got well, and yielding to the entreaties of the boy's parents and their friends, and on account, too, of the age of his assailant, he consented to drop the case. Matters went along in White Springs until Morrison was appointed postmaster. There was a general breaking out of the old scores. It is a part of the record of the case in the United States Court at Jacksonville, where it will soon come up for trial, that certain citizens entered into a conspiracy to drive the postmaster out of office, and for no other reason than that his politics were objectionable to them. The names of these persons are Long, Paxton, Cone, Lewis, Skippworth, Morgan, and Williams. It is in this plot that the bogus detective figures, with the absurd document, alleging "mauldustry," issued by the Kansas Detective Bureau. This document, which was only set forth and charged the crimes as above, but it also gave to the detective power to appoint a new postmaster. "We will," says the document, "have the appointment of Morrison's successor to your custody, and we feel sure that you will not select anyone who is unworthy."

Strict Secrecy is Enjoined. It concludes: "You know that upon your success in this matter depends your reputation as a detective, and unless you strictly performed immediately we will order your badge and commission taken from you. By order of the department from Washington, this day received the signatures of DuLaney, Chief Detective, and witness "Don Quixote." A supplemental document, signed and witnessed by the same parties, to the strict secrecy—"say nothing to nobody."

The new-dedged detective who was intrusted with this delicate business was Philip H. Lewis, and it appears that he sent $500 to the detective agency in Wichita, Kan., and been duly commissioned by that concern. Whether the document upon which he started was a forgery or not is not known. The supposition is that it was trumped up in White Springs. Lewis swore in Leon F. Morgan, of 301 Madison, as an assistant, and O. L. Paxton, a notary public, of White Springs, affixed his notarial seal to the certificate of appointment, hence Notary Paxton has been indicted along with the other alleged conspirators.

The story now goes back to Postmaster Morrison, who was arrested by Lewis and his assistant, Morgan, and taken to Lake City, a neighboring town, where they locked him up, stating to Postmaster Bush, of that place, and others that Morrison had committed "mauldustry and malfeasance of public favor," which were unpardonable crimes in this country, and that in arresting him they had done a great thing for society.

The Detectives Levy Tribute. Postmaster Dush saw there was something decidedly wrong in the proceedings, and for the interest he took in the matter the two detectives also looked him up. Then they proceeded about the town demanding cigars and whisky in the name of the United States Government, and were finally locked up themselves for disorderly conduct. The postmasters were released, and when Morrison got back home he found the postoffice had been removed into Notary Paxton's store and a man named J. H. Long installed as postmaster.

Long had been appointed by Detective Lewis on the strength of the Kansas document, and the certificate of appointment he witnessed again before Notary O. L. Paxton. Long had taken an oath to support the Constitution and Government of the United States, and had likewise been sworn to before Paxton. Morrison has again been arrested by the regular State officers on a charge of compounding a crime, and the certificate of appointment he witnessed again before Notary O. L. Paxton. IDEAS OF GOVERNORS

As to the Effect of Mr. Cleveland's Silver Letter Upon 1892.

ANSWERS FROM NINE DEMOCRATS.

Four Are Against Grover, Three Dodge and Two Stand by Him.

TILLMAN IS PARTICULARLY RADICAL.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 15.—In response to telegraphic requests for their opinions of Ex-President Cleveland's stand on the silver question, Democratic Governors in the West and South wired the Enquirer as follows: Governor Campbell, of Ohio. COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14.—Replying to your message, I must say that to intelligently and fully convey my opinion of Mr. Cleveland's position upon the free coinage of silver would require more time than I can spare this afternoon, and more space in your paper than you would expect me to occupy. I may add that I commend the frankness and positiveness with which he expresses himself. JAMES E. CAMPBELL.

Governor Peck, of Wisconsin. MADISON, Feb. 14.—I consider Mr. Cleveland's position on the silver question sound. GEO. W. PECK. Governor Boyd, of Nebraska. LINCOLN, Feb. 14.—I may not coin him the Presidency in 1892, but I doubt it. I admire the man because of his consistency. He has the courage of his convictions. JAMES E. BOYD.

Governor Winans, of Michigan. LANSING, Mich., Feb. 14.—I consider Mr. Cleveland's silver letter as equivalent to declining the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. EDWIN B. WINANS. Governor Tillman, of South Carolina. COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 13.—Governor Tillman, when asked for his opinion of the probable effect of Cleveland's anti-silver letter on the Presidential aspirations, spoke as follows: "Mr. Cleveland's letter does and ought to take him out of the field as a Democratic candidate for President. More hard results to the South and West from the financial policy of the Government than from all other causes combined, and until we have a larger circulating medium, based on a bi-metallic standard, the producing classes of the country will find themselves between the upper and lower millstones. The Alliance can not and will not, in my judgment, support Mr. Cleveland or any other candidate, as long as he maintains his sympathy with Wall street, and in the interest of Eastern capitalists and monopolists."

FOOLISH WOMEN. Why Will They Be So Thoughtless and Careless Even About Matters Which Concern Their Beauty? The plain features become pretty when clothed with a fresh, velvety skin. It is in the power of every woman to have a soft, fine skin, and adding much to her charms, if she will devote a little time and care to her toilet. It should be a duty as well as a pleasure to every woman to enhance her powers of attractiveness. So says the highest authority in London. But nothing is so absurd than for any lady to try and be beautiful simply by powdering the face, or applying cream or ointment. These things are necessary, it is true, but something else is more important. Good refreshing sleep. Warm circulating blood. And, above all, plenty of food. Keep the blood moving by some gentle stimulant, and for this purpose nothing is equal to pure whiskey. Not the whiskey one commonly hears of, but the questionable kind that is drunk by gross men in grosser places, but something pure, palatable and pleasing. This is precisely what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is, and what has made it so immediately popular. The best doctors in the land prescribe it. The finest scientists endorse it. In nothing is so true as the saying which makes it a great friend to women. It relieves the suffering to which they are so subjected, and counteracts the wearing effects which so often cause women to grow old prematurely.
