

BOATING IN BOATS.

Allegheny Citizens Have Considerable Difficulty in Reaching Polling Places.

WATER BOND ISSUE DEFEATED.

Lively Voting on the Northside, but a Pretty Generally Quiet Time in Pittsburgh.

MEADVILLE GOES HEAVILY DEMOCRATIC

The Committee of Fifty is Daily Keenly Out at the Philadelphia Election.

The Allegheny Councilmanic contests are over. The reformers did not appear at the polls to any great extent. Some new faces will appear in the Council Chambers, but as a rule all the successful men are ones who are in sympathy with the present body.

Familiarly apparent contempt in the vote for the extension of the water works system, for the total was only homeopathic.

About the regulation men were elected, but hardly in the regulation way, for the election was only a secondary feature in the history of yesterday in Allegheny.

Walking Under Great Difficulties.

Being about the same, in some places the Australian ballot system prevailed, but only through necessity. In the First, Second and Third precincts under water, and, as the polling places could not be moved outside the precincts, voting had to be done in boats.

Going to the Polls in Boats.

The old-time hustlers, with carriages, were at a disadvantage, and the man who could either row or was the owner of a boat was at a premium.

The voters were rushed into boats and rowed to the first ward schoolhouse, where the elections were being held. Early in the day the boats were kept in the first floor, but later were removed to the second.

The fourth ward, too, furnished a number of strange incidents. In the first five precincts the polling places had to be changed.

Under their arms and wading through the water, a large number of voters were seen.

Pennsylvania Company Employees Refused an Advance in Wages.

RIGHT-HOUR MOVEMENT UNSETTLED

The sensation expected at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Castle Shannon Railroad Company yesterday developed in a very mild form, and yet with sufficient strength to convince the directors for the delay in the completion of the new line where it belongs.

Ever since it was discovered that a mistake had been made in the construction of the machinery for the new line, those responsible for the mistake have been able to shift the blame from one to another until it has seemed impossible for the directors to ascertain who was at fault.

Results of an Investigation.

An investigation was at once instituted, and it was found that Robinson, Rea & Co. had followed the contract and that no blame could rest upon the builders of the machinery.
