THE BANK'S CASH WAS NOT REACHED

A bank robbery in Freeport, on the West Penn Railroad, yesterday, put the residents all along the line in a fever of excitement. A Number of Convictions and Some Few Nearly everybody seemed to have suffered. A reporter of THE DISPATCH was on the train that reaches Allegheny at 1:35, and he heard nothing else discussed after Freeport was passed except the bank robbery. The conductor on the train, W. H. Pillow, had $5,000 worth of negotiable bonds stolen, and the baggage master on the same train, William R. Flemming, was out 25 shares of Pennsylvania Railroad stock, 30 shares of Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghioghenv stock and a note for $700, amounting in all to over $3,500. Others on the train were losers to a more or less extent. They made an entrance through a back window early in the evening, and at once began their work of drilling at the vault They drilled a hole near the combination lock, and, placing in a screw bolt, forced the lock off on the mside. This opened the front door, and by doing the same thing with the inside door they were speedily admitted to the inside of the vault. Their Operations on the Inside. They then tried to drill the door of the inside safe, but it only turned their tools. They broke the combination lock, but were unable to open the small safe. Then they turned their attention to the interior of the large wault, which is filled with private boxes containing money, diamonds, etc. Quite a number of valuable negotiable papers were taken, among which are the following aper

MISSIONS AMONG INDIANS. A Minister Called Down for Saying That

They Were of No Benefit. The Presignerian Banner, of this city, has been looking into statements made in several newspapers by Rev. James Preston as to the failing of missionary work among the Indians. Mr. Preston claimed to have been a resident of Tucson, Arix, and that he had spent several years among the indians in that vicinity. The editor of the Remore was not satisfied with the statements credited to the preacher, and he wrote to Rev. Howard Billman, a minister of the Preshyterian Church and Superintendent of the Tucson Indian Training School.

Mr. Billman, in his reply, states that he has been unable to find any of the oldest inhabitants of Tucson who had ever heard of the Rev. James Preston. Mr. Billman says that he may have lived somewhere in the West, and may have been engaged in mission work among the fulfians, but he has not lived at Tucson, neither has he been engaged in mission work in Southern Arizona. Judging from what Preston says about the Indians, Mr. Billman remarks that Tucson, Arix, and that he had spent several about the Indians, Mr. Billman remarks that

Verdict of $11,000 in a Case Brought for Deceit-Criminal Court Turns Out Quite a Grist-Only One Bill Ignored by the

New Grand Jury.

In the suit of J. M. Guffey against A. P. Clever and Charles Scarborough a verdiet was given yesterday for $11,091 97 for the plaintiff. The case was an action in deceit growing out of an oil lease. It was alleged that the defendant arranged to have a fictitious offer made for land in order to raise the price on Guffey, who had agreed to take the land at its market value, and thus compelling Guffey to pay $20,000 for land claimed to be worth outy $5,000.

CRIMINAL COURT WORK.

Sentences Handed Out. In the Criminal Court vesterday John Schmidt, an inmate of the County Home, was convicted of unlawfully cutting and wounding a watchman at the Home. He was sentenced two months to the workhouse. John Dough-orty and Philip Lynch were convicted of the larceny of two ducks from David Lynch. Sentence suspended. James Potter pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery on Thomas Hows. He was fined 6 cents and costs. Ignik Wignak was convicted of assault and battery on Martin Peters, and fined 55 and costs. John Cush and Peter Jack were convicted, and Joseph Plunkett acquitted, of robbing a peadler of some shirts, etc. Cush and Jack were sent three months each to the workhouse. Mary E. VOCATION NOT PROFESSION. Rev. Dr. Sutherland's Idea of What a Minister of the Gospel Should Be-He Should Study Man and Nature More and Books

Less. Rev. Dr. J. R. Sutherland, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, lectured yesterday at the Western Theological Seminary, taking for his subject "Self the Center of Power in the Preacher." The Doctor said that the ministry is wrongfully spoken of as a profession. It is a vocation and not a profession. By vocation is meant that the man is distinctly called of God to perform a certain work. Continuing Dr. Sutherland said:
"Assuming then that the prior necessity of the divine call to the ministry and the divine origin and character of the ministers' message origin and character of the ministers' message as well as the pledge of the divine presence and blessing with him, and upon his work, wherein does his power from a human point of view rest or center? In the first place it centers in what he is-physically, mentally, morally and spiritually the preacher's power centers in the second place, and no less truly, though perhaps not so manifestly, in what he has experienced.

"The third and last phase or element of self which contributes very largely to the preacher's power is what he has personally seen and heard—seen with his own eyes and heard with his own ears. The great preachers of the world, like Him who spoke as never man spoke, were in close communion with nature—read were in close communion with nature—read and interpreted her lessons for them-selves; did not take them second hand; and interpreted her lessons for themselves; did not take them second hand; were able to draw from her exhaustless sterehouse a vast amount of fresh material for the illustration and enforcement of gospel truth. The trouble is that as a rule we read too much and look and listen too little. We study nature in the library rather than in the fields and woods and running brooks.

"It will be generally conceded, I think, that the most effective pulpit orator of this age was the late pastor of Plymouth Church. No man could listen to him without feeling the spell of his matchless discourse. His hearers were swept along as if by a torrent unbroken and resistless, and yet he was not what would be called a great or dilligent reader of books. When he did read it was a mere dipping here and there for seed thoughts. But he studied man and nature in the originals, and thus gathered fresh material for use. The result was that old truths came from his lips in fresh and fascinating dress. It is both the duty and the privilege of the minister to tune and touch as with the fingers of a master the entire scale of the powers and the full compass of his ability."
