

AN INSANE BULLDOG Cuts Up Once Too Often and Meets With a Very Sudden Death.

HE WAS GUARDIAN OF A RAILWAY, Allowing No Train to Pass Without His Personal Inspection.

OFTEN KNOCKED OUT BY THE TRAINS

Anatomists claim that a certain amount of brain and culture is necessary to enable an animal, whether human or brute, to become insane, and that the prevalence of insanity in a nation is a tribute to mentality.

A crazy bulldog at Erving's Mills has furnished a noted exception. In his early youth this bulldog was noted for amiability of character and temperament, but one day he was noticed to be wrathfully at a loop...

Up to this right angle, the dog's owner, Mr. Erving, regarded the brute's antics with amusement, and the people around the mill noticed as each train passed to see the fun, but yesterday the dog took it into his head to stop not only trains, but people from passing along the railway, which, in the present condition of the season, is the only thoroughfare that is passable.

At a meeting of the Employees of the Pennsylvania Lead Company, March 4, 1891, The following preamble, and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who ordereth all things wisely, we nevertheless cherish the conviction that the rights of man are inalienable, and that the rights of man are inalienable, and that the rights of man are inalienable...

Resolved, That these resolutions be suitably framed and placed in the office of our late Superintendent; that a copy thereof be presented to the family; that they be published in the Pittsburgh papers, in the Mansfield Item, and in the papers of his former home, Andover, Mass.

Resolved, That while we are deeply sensitive to our own loss, we are equally sensitive to those of those who have lost their loved ones, and that we tenderly condole with the family of our departed friend in the hour of their affliction...

Resolved, That these resolutions be suitably framed and placed in the office of our late Superintendent; that a copy thereof be presented to the family; that they be published in the Pittsburgh papers, in the Mansfield Item, and in the papers of his former home, Andover, Mass.
