If this item is to pay for unpaved street work, and thus save the enterties it is hald it would be seen as the more set of the secure of abroad. Rev. C. V. Wilson also delivered a short address on the general work done by completing contracts. If this item is to pay for unpaved street work, and thus save the contractors, it is held it would be such a precedent that the general fund would con-tinually have to be drawn upon to pay for such work, despite any legislation, curative or otherwise. Mayor Gourley's recent stand on the necessity of receiving reports of the various departments and bureaus figured down to the smallest detail, leads very strongly to the belief that he objected to the approat the close of the services. priation ordinance largely on account of its indefinitness. The Mayor does not believe in Councils voting away large sums o money to various departments without some idea of what they are to be used for, and in his message to-day he will embody that feature very prominently, insisting on a detailed statement of the estimates before he can conscientiously affix his signature to the bill. Councils will convene at 2 o'clock this afternoon. After the reading of the Mayor's message, the appropriation ordinance will be taken up. There is scarcely nuv doubt that the ordinance will be passed over the veto by a large vote. Even the Mayor does not expect anything else. His message, however, will doubtless find some supporters among the Councilmen, and a pirited discussion is anticipated.

A New Feature of the Muddle.

The debates at the meeting of the Committee on Legislation Saturday night brought out a new feature in the present municipal perplexity. Under the circumstances the passage of Senator Flinn's wharf bill cannot be secured in time to save Chief Bigelow considerable annoyance. Last fall suits were brought against the Chief because he was filling up the Allegheny wnarf, along Duquesne way, to make a park of it. The court decided the case in favor of the prosecutor, but sentence was delerred on Mr. Bigelow six months, on the plea of the City Attorney that legislation would be secured in that time making the filling of the what: legal. The six months will be up within 30 days, and unless the Chief can secure further postponement from the court, the sentence will be imposed. Senators Neeb and Flinn both state that there is no possible chance of passing the wharf bill in time to save the Chief, City Attorney W. C. Moreland left for Philadelphia last evening, to hold a conference with the legal representatives of that city about the proposed street legislation for Pittsburg. Mr. Moreland was in a very od and feit sure when he excheerful n plained all the features to the Philadelphia people that no opposition will be made from that quarter. Mr. Moreland said:

Philadelphia Not in Tronble.

"The Supreme Court decision does not invalidate the street laws of Philadelphia. That is the only city that escaped. I wish to show them that in the curative legislation suggested for Pittsburg there is nothing that will interfere with the Philadelphia street acts. If there was, of course, we could expect considerable opposition from the Philadelphia delegation. I have looked over their laws very carefully, and in what is proposed to re-lieve Pittsburg there is nothing lieve Pittsburg there is nothing that will conflict with their street regulations. We expect to receive the cordial sup-port of the Quaker City people. I think with a little patience that the city will comout of this street muddle without much trouble." Moreland rather hinted that with the Philadelphia delegation in line and in co-operation with the Allegheny county represeptatives, that the balance of the State could easily be won over. He was anxious to correct any misapprehensions the Philadelphia people might have, and thus pre-vent a fight in advance.
