SCHOOLS FOR TRADES.

The Exposition Society's Plan for Polytechnic Institutions

FAVORED BY LOCAL BUILDERS.

Report of the Committee Appointed to Look Up the Matter.

MECHANICS' - LIEN BILL INDORSED

The Builders' Exchange held an important meeting yesterday afternoon at which was considered a proposition from the Exposition Society to have established in connection with that institution polytechnic training schools. The matter has been under consideration with the Exposition Society for some time, because there is a provision in their charter compelling them to have something of the sort connected with the Exposition. The subject was first brought to the attention of the Builders' Exchange through the following self-explanatory communications:

OFFICE OF THE WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA EXPOSITION SOCIETY,
PITTSBURG, P.A., March 5, 1891.
To the President of the Builders' Exchange: DEAR SIR-Our people are taking up the matter of establishing polytechnic schools, and by request of Mr W. B. Lupton, of our directory, I enclose you a copy of the report of a committee appointed to look into the subject, which may be of some value to your boay. The matter is at present in an embryotic state and any suggestions you may have to offer will be gladly considered. Yours, troly,

T. J. FITZPATRICK,

Assistant Secretary,

The following is the report:

Report of the Committee

To the President and Board of Directors of the Pittsburg Exposition Society: GENTLEMEN-The committee appointed by you to report on the matter of trades schools, in submitting their report, wish to say that after a very careful inspection of some of the best schools in the land, and much information gathered from other sources in Boston, New York, Worcester and Brooklyn, we are satisfied that such education is desirable and possible; but as to how it should be carried out in the present financial condition of your association, your committee does not assume to point out or suggest.

towing report:

True shillanthopy helps the needy to help themselves. Enforced idleness is one of the great evils of the day. The youth of both sexes who possess natural abdity, both physical and mental, should be so trained as to fully desed mental, should be so trained as to finly de-velop that ability, that the idividual first and the community next, should receive the full benefit of such strength. The public school, as now conducted, does not afford the remedy. The knowledge of letters, "good in its place," does not qualify for the practical duties of the masses.

does not qualify for the practical duties of the masses.

The increasing millions in our cities without coportunity to cultivate the soil, must depend on either common labor, often overcrowded, and always poorly paid, or on the knowledge and amplication of some mechanical occupation. For the latter, there is no open door. As a rule no possibility of a training. A very few are admitted to the trades. Another few may by dint of application and perseverance, by hook and crook, pick up imperfectly such knowledge as will enable them to squeeze through. But there is still a multitude left helpless, lost for want of an opportunity. Such has been the case, and such it must continue to be, until some well digested plan shall take shape and come to the resone.

Reforms the Result of Great Wrongs.

Reforms the Result of Great Wrongs. Great reforms are always the result of the knowledge of great wrongs, and often come of necessity more or less pressing. The foremost thinkers of the day are earnestly at work to devise some plan for the supply of this want. devise some plan for the supply of this want. Among them is the system of schools of science and arts, too high, too slow and too expensive for the masses, but valuable as far as they cango. Next, and what seems nest to your committee is the "school of trades," not necessarily connected with any high school or university, (Perhaps for the most common classes, better separated). This simply calls for a sultable low, cheap building, with rough workbenches, forges, tables, lathes, etc., with suitable tools and implements for large classes, and each trade to have one or more suitable instructors, with blackboard, drawing instruments, blue prints, etc., of the cheapest kind, raw materials, wood, fron, lead, paint, bricks and mortar and other suitable material for boys. While for the girls the arrangement must be for such facilities and material as will suit their trades. Needles, thread, cloth, sewing machines, type-for the girls the arrangement must be for such facilities and material as will suit their trades. Needles, thread cloth, sewing machines type-writers, cooking apparatus and the like. Add to this the comisorts of a lecture room, library, models and such other helps as the founders may feel able to produce. The number of trades can only be limited by the inability of the directory to go farther. The common trades should receive the first attention.

In the opinion of your committee such an enterorise well conducted in our city would meet with public favor and gain strength with age. The fact that your board can supply valuable buildings, with, possibly, light, heat and power, from your own supply of gas, would be a valuable start, which we believe can be supplemented with the necessary funds to begin on a plant scale.

This is not an experiment but is in fall.

This is not an experiment, but is in full operation in several places both in this country operation in several places both in this country operation. operation in several places both in the results, and in Europe with highly satisfactory results. In conclusion, we further believe that our great manufacturing city would be immensely benefited by such schools, by converting a now almost useless element into most valuable artisans and workinen in our great factories, and at the same time confer a lasting blessing on a large and believe and at the same time confer a lasting blessing on a large and helpiess class of worthy citizens of both sexes. Respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM MCCLEERY,
D. G. RIPLEY,
Committee.

Heartily in Favor of the Scheme. The Exchange discussed the proposition fully, and quite a number expressed themselves as being heartily in favor of helping to establish the schools, and accordingly the Secretary was instructed to notify the Exposition Society that whenever the latter was ready to go ahead with the scheme the latter would be ready to co-operate and do anything in its power to make the entertrise a success.

The Walton bill, No. 230, known as the mechanics' lien bill, now before the Legis-lature, was also discussed, and a motion to indorse it was passed unanimously. This is the bill being pushed by the Builders' Exchange of Philadelphia, and which makes the contractor practical owner of the ground upon which new buildings are to be J. G. Snyder, representing the Building Trades' Council, who has been in Harris-burg for the last week working against the bill, said last night he did not see how the bill could pass, although he had heard the representatives of the Philadelphia Ex-change say they would spend $10,000 before they would see it deleated. Members of the House think it is an unconstitutional measure, according to Mr. Suyder. There was no action taken by the Ex-

A Recommendation From Tennessee. It is more than likely that many readers of The Dispatch will agree with H. B. Wayne, of Whiteville, Tenn., in his opinion of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says:
"I take pleasure in recommending it to the public as being a medicine of great worth and merit. The manufacturers of that remedy certainly have been great benefac-tors to suffering humanity." One of the most valuable properties of this remedy is in its power of loosening and relieving a cold and freeing the system of any bad effects of the cold. For sale by druggists, wsu

Protect Your Horse.

Horseshoeing being a most important opera-tion, it is necessary that all shoers should understand the construction and diseases of the foot. The want of knowledge and skill of shoeing often generates many diseases, such as corns, quarter and center crack, which are very annoying. Attenuon given road, track and interfering horses. I also manufacture a HOOF OINTMENT, guaranteed to keep horses' feet in good con-dition.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

You can't possibly get a new hat too soon. The new one will afford you all the protection that the old, dusty and greasy one does, and prices will be no lower a month hence than now. We have in stock every shape hat that's manufactured that's in style. We can sell you the Knox, Youman or Dunlap shape, made on the same block, made by the same men, and save you at least a third of the price asked by exclusive hatters.

We illustrate herewith three of the leading styles this spring. The top one goes by the name of the "Manhattan," and can be obtained in different heights of crown and widths of brim. It is a popular hat with gentlemen of the metropolis, and you'll soon see a great many of them on the streets of

The center one-is one of the most sensible shapes in the market today. We've named it the "Gusky." We secured 100 dozen of these from a party who supplies a well-known hat manufacturer whose goods are never offered at retail for less than $5. Last Saturday, to commence the hat business with a rush, we offered them at the low price of

They were called for in great numbers. We will continue to sell them at this price during Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. If you want to get one of these at about half their real value, come quick.

The lower cut is an illustration of the "Fifth Avenue" Silk, the shape which stylish dressers will wear this season.

Children's Hats. Altogether, we sell more hats than any other three stores in this city. There must be a reason for this. It lies in the fact that we give better
