UNITY OF VARIOUS INTERESTS.

Many Advantages of the Site Now Assured By the Action of the Pittsburg City Councils.

GOOD CAUSE FOR CONGRATULATION.

An Interesting Budget of News Items for the Lovers of the Art Divine.

Musical Pittsburg has reasons of its own for rejoicing now that Councils have at last tendered to the Carnegie Library Commission the unrestricted use of the Schenley Park entrance, and have thus removed what seems to have been the chief obstacle in the way of beginning actual work upon Mr. Carnegie's magnificent and much-delayed gift.

Discussion of the library proper has so occupied public attention as, perhaps, to obscure the importance of the Carnegie scheme, in its entirety, to other than literary, or bookish interests. Though, for that matter, musical circles have an especial stake in the library itself, in that the only provision yet known to be made toward filling the slielves consists in the purchase of the Karl Mera Musical Library for that ultimate purpose. With such a collection in hand, alreads ranking high among its fellows, and with the more or less immediate prospect of important additions that have been promised, it is not unreasonable to expect that the Pitts-burg Carnegie Library will open with a musical department worthy of comparison with any of its class on the continent. That means much to our musical progress.

The Need of a Music Hall. But, apart from the library proper, Mr. Carnegie's comprehensive plans are of the first importance in their direct relation to the musical community. Our cry for a large music hall has steadily gone forth for many years. What a drawback its absence has been, what a need exists for it, what a stimulus it would be to larger efforts for the musical evangelization of the masses—all this has found frequent and full ulterance in press and conversation. Now this aching wold is to be filled. The Carnegie scheme embraces, it is understood, a handsome music hall, seating at least 1,000 people, with a stage adapted for either concert or operatic use on the largest scale, and including a superb organ built on both sides of the proscenium arch so as to leave the stage clear.

What a vista of great choral festivals, orchestral concerts, opera seasons and popular organ recitals is opened up by the mere statement of this part of the plan!

Of direct importance to the musical side of the matter is, also, the proposal to afford in these buildings a commodious home for the Academy of Science and Art, with much inimportance in their direct relation to the these buildings a commodious home for the Academy of Science and Art, with much increased facilities for carrying out all its varied inces of higher activity. The academy at large has from the start pledged itself to fester music as an integral and essential part of its general activity and the Art Society, which is the section of the academy having particular jurisdiction over all the fine activity the present assists more than make that spot a veritable head center of American art. Still another main department of the group is the proposed museum, with all is stupendous; the ultimate co-relation of all its departments is remarkable. No single branch of it could have anything like the same pportunities for practical usefulness, were it ut off from the others. All the highest elecut off from the others. All the inguest elements of secular activity in this community must, in the nature of things, circulate around such a center as this, when provided; and the general public, which has already found its way to the new park, cannot fail to feel the drawing power of such an imposing aggregation of higher leftuonces.

The Value of Co-Operation. To preserve the completeness and solidarity of this noble plan should, in the writer's opinion, form the controlling consideration in family determining the site and other questions arising in its execution. It would be charming if an acre or two of land in the heart of the city could be bought for the purpose cheaply enough to leave ample funds for erecting saltable and sufficient insidings for all the departments. Since that cannot be done, it seems by all means best to locate the entire cluster on the land now freely offered and thus be able to devote the entire land to the erection of buildings sufficient to accommodate all the proposed departments for reperations to come. The epartments for generations to come. The our of the great masses of people the chief art of the advantages sought in their name y those who have urged a downtown site for y incess who have unject a downtown site for he library. The main library will, naturally, e largely composed of reference and schulical works; it will be rather the tudent's than the people's library, and s location at such a licadquarters of studious elivity as above cathined will really secure is greatest usefulness.

The value of co-operation among all these branches of higher activity has already been tested and proven in this first season of the Academy of Science and Art, which was formed the control of the cont by uniting the many different scientific and artistic societies with that very end in view. The accomplishment of this superb plan for an aggregation of buildings, books, specimens and facilities is but the working out of the same idea of mutual helpfulness upon a gigantic scale, and will form, in its entirety, a colossal estitute absolutely unique among the nations.

A Misnomer in Opera.

came the following: The Royal Italian Opera, London, will re-open on Monday. The title is somewhat of a missionner. Five of the prime donne are Amer-ican, two are British and two Italian; while of ican, two are British and two Italian; while of the leading artists ten are French or Fedran, six Germans, three Poles, and three are also representatives of Russia, Roumania, Sweden and Spain. There are all operas in the repertory, of which if are by Italians, if by Germans, seven by Frenchmen and one by an Englishman. Great interest is taken in the production of "Faust" on Tuesday, when Miss Eames, the young American soprano who has been trained in Paris and has for some time past been singing at the Grand Opera, will make her English debut as Marquevite. Miss Eames will also appear on Saturday as Etsa to the Lohengrin of Jean de Reexie.

Crotchets and Quavers.

Miss Kate Kern will give a concert next Thursday evening at Turner Hall, Forty-sixth street, for the benefit of the St. Vincent de MRS. GENEVEA JOHNSTONE-BISHOP and

Miss Ethel Herr Jones gave an enjoyable pro-gramme at the Pennsylvania College for Women last Tuesday afternoon. FRANZ RUMMEL won a really great triumph

THE Marine Band began its tour last week Comprehensive Character of the Carnegie Library Scheme as at

in New England, and simultaneously Mr. E.
E. Rinehart began rehearsing his 300 picked school children so as to be ready when the band gets to Pittsburg, May 2. THE mandolin and glee clubs of Franklin and Marshall College were received with well-earned plaudits at their concert here last week. After the entertaining programme was con-cluded the "boys" were entertained at the Press Club.

MAY festival matters are moving. To-morrow the contractors will begin the work of re-modeling Mechanical Hall into a fine, large auditorium. The drawing of boxes will soon be held and the plan of seats be open to the public. Six weeks is not far off. AT the great banquet given in New York last Thursday evening in honor of Messrs.

Stanton and Seldl, those heroes of the German opera campaigna, Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, Mr. William Steinway and M. H. E. Krebbiel were the chief speakers, It seems to have been a most delightful occasion. THE continued phenomenal success of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on its present symptony Oronestra on its present spring tour gives richest promise for the Mozart Club concerts of April 80 and May I, when our foremost choral organization will be assisted by this, the country's foremost orchestra. Mr. Nikisch gave an entire Wagner programme at Baltimore last week, and earned superlative praise on all hands.

THE signal success of Art Society's action in endering the reception to Mr. Charles Stanley Reinhart and giving the public exhibition of his works (to be continued for another week or two) is matter of congratulation as well to the musical as to the pictorial portion of that valued organization. It has brought home to the entire cultured public the fact that Pittsburg possesses a wide-awake, well-organized society, having the momentum of 15 years young and artistic prestice and now resolved to social and artistic prestige, and now resolved to carry on its object of cultivating music, painting, sculpture and the other fine arts in a wider and more public sphere. Such exploitation of Art Society's name and character ought to result in large additions to membership and a general increase in usefulness.

MR. JOSEPH H. GITTINGS announces two concerts to be given at the Pennsylvania College for Women on Monday afternoon and evening of this week. He has secured the Bernhard Listemann Club, of Boston, a much-admired quintet, including the famous violinist whose name it bears, and the equally celebrated violoncellist, Mr. Fritz Giese, Mrs. Giese, who is a soprano of high repute, will assist on Monday afternoon, while in the evening Miss May Beesley and Mr. Gittings himseif will render like service. The Listemann Club's programmes are of greater musical excellence than those of most traveling concert parties.
Monday evening's programme includes portions of Beethoven's C minor Quartet, Op. 18 and of Grieg's G miner Quartet, besides Mendelssohn's entire Trio (in D minor; Op. 49) for violin, violoncelle and pianoforte.

An altogether meritorious publication relege for Women on Monday afternoon and even-

An altogether meritorious publication re-ceived for review is entitled "Handel and Hayda for the Sunday School," comprising nearly a score of selections from the works of these masters, adapted and arranged by Ed-ward Howe, organist of Bethany Presbyterian Church, New York. Mr. Howe has succeeded in bringing these noble musical thoughts within the reach of children's voices, and at the same time preserving much of their inherent beauty and elevation of spirit. It is good to hear that such pure, good music has been commonly used for some vears in the Sunday monly used for some years in the Sunday school of the church named; better yet to have the opportunity afforded for other schools to follow the example. To fill children with the sentimental inanities and musical monstrosities of the "Gospel Hymns" and their ilk is a crime, whether religious or artistic considerations govern. The remedy lies along the line of this admirable effort by Mr. Howe.

THE indorsement of the French pitch (C-522) innes of higher activity. The academy at large his from the start pledged itself to foster music as an integral and essential part of its general activity and the Art Society, which is the section of the academy having particular jurisdiction over all the fine arts, has within the present season more than ever before demonstrated its enterprise and under the discussion at the dinner of the Priano Manufacturers' Association last Tues day in New York, foll reports of which have not vet been received. This important reform shaded for full discussion at the dinner of the Priano Manufacturers' Association last Tues and urging its universal adoption by the National League of Musicians at their recent annual meeting. The same question was slated for full discussion at the dinner of the Priano Manufacturers' Association last Tues annual meeting. The same question was slated for full discussion at and urging its universal adoption seems to

MR. VICTOR BENHAM, planist, who has put recently returned from Europe, where he has had a series of brilliant successes, will make is varied collections, historical, ethnographi. his first appearance here about April 15 at Reits varied collections, historical, ethnographical artistic and scientific. Near by is to be located, moreover, the spleudid greenhouse donated by Mr. Charles J. Clarke, Doubtless the now embryonic zoological garden in Schenley Park will in time deserve to be reckoned among the valuable scientific departments—to say nething of the more general, but readily-apparent advantages that will accrue to the whole scheme through a situation at the entrance to the people's great pleasure ground, And it is not to be forgotten that every one of these branches—the library and the museum, in their various subdivisions, the art gallery and the music hall, the greenhouses and the 'zoo'—will find, among the various sections of the Academy of Science and Art, its own particular corerie of students and connoiseurs already organized to make the most and the best mes of it.

The comprehensiveness of this whole scheme is supendous; the ultimate co-relation of all

SOUTHERN COAL TRADE.

Competition With Pittsburg Opened by the Georgia Pacific. ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., April 4.—The Georgia Pacific Railroad has opened a barge line between Greenville, Miss., and New Orleans, for carrying Alabama coal, the first shipment of 6,000 tons being made to-day. The continued increase in the output of coal here has made a wider market an absolute necessity to relieve the glut. This is the first effort made for the river markets, except by rail, through to New Orleans, and Pittsburg has held her own against that competition.

The railroad announces that it will make the contest in all points below Cairo. Coal men here look on it as a contest which they must win, or stop further development ex cept through the Gulf trade. The new route involves a haul of over 200 miles across

WASHINGTON, April 4 .- The Immigrant Inspector at Newport, Vt., has reported to the Treasury Department that the present superficial inspection of immigrants om Canada does not prevent the admission of large numbers of immigrants from Euro-pean countries, who, in his opinion, are either under contract to labor in some of the interior States, or who are likely to become charges on the public.

He says that he expects 8,000 of this class of immigrants to enter his district alone during the next four months, and that an equally large number will enter through By special cable from London last night | equally large and long last night | the district of St. Albans Island and Beecher

This is one way of making furniture. A visit to our warerooms will show goods of a different manufacture, "fashioned in beauty and made to wear." This is the banner after which all reputable manufacturers make their product. Right here we wish to call your attention to the great difference between furniture, as it should be made and that which is made only for a low selling price. Such goods, where quality is not considered, are not worthy of a purchaser.

Artistic Millinery! It's a positive treat nowadays to happen into a Millinery Department that has no dead places, no warmed over styles; and this is exactly our position; we've got no corners for drift and trash; every table is loaded with the prettiest conceits and latest creations in Ladies' and Misses' Hats and Bonnets. And our Ribbons, well, it's impossible to describe them; we've got all the tints and colors of the Rainbow, besides a great many lovely hues and combinations, utterly independent of the Rainbow; also, rich and beautiful Millinery Trimmings. In fact, everything in this connection that the heart of woman turns to, while our Floral Display is a perfect revelation to these two cities this season. Everything conceivable and inconceivable in the Flowery Kingdom is here in all its beauty and loveli-
