Statistics of Italian Murders

So some interesting statistics are in course of preparation that will bear with blunt directness upon the number of murders and outrages committed in recent years in the United States by members of the Mafia and other secret Italian organizations, and upon the vendettas that are imported into the United States, to the disturbance of the peace and involving of expense to our taxpayers in the prosecution of malefactors. Time is required to compile these facts, and the Department of State will ta .e the time, while taking care to clear its skirts of suspicion of undue delay. In high official circles here there has been no change in the opinion that the New Orleans matter is being manipulated in Italy to influence Italian politics. It is surmised that a brave show of indignant national feeling 1s being made, while it is known in Rome that Secretary Blaine's reply is near at hand, so that when it is made public the impression would be conveyed to the Italian popular mind that the United States had been overawed. game and speak candidly. Harrison and Blaine, before our Minister, who brought them the formal and peremptory note of the Marquis Di Rudini, showed in an admirable duct of Americanized buffoonery tears of sorrow on the poor victims, but in conclusion to Italy, in-suited and violated in the existing treatles, they gave no other satisfaction than Presi-dential and Ministerial tears. But treacherous tears, those of American Ministers included, are not current on the failian market. The most cunning Blaine, having once dried up his obligatory tears, thought that the facts of New Orleans could be setiled in an easy and friendly manner. But the New Orleans out-rage could not be so slightly put asude. It touched Italy directly, and is of immediate consequence to the whole of Europe. The slaughter at New Orleans and the be-havior of the Washington Government have raised in all the European Cabinets an avful question. The United States signed treatles with us, but when the occasion came to put them into action, they said they could not con-sider them, as they were bound by private en-gagements to their States. Can this ambiguity and violations of covenants last? All Europe has backed the note of the Marquis Di Rudini. The recent cable dispatch has proved to the American Government that the Italian Cabi-net is not joking and that it is quilt equal to the occasion in this emergency. The United States must learn that to hold a position among civilized mations it is not enough to have millions of doilars, but it is necessary as a first condition, sine qua non, to be honest.
