Certain Natural Laws.

Well as the Safest and Most Speedy

Method to Effect a Cure.

There are certain natural laws, the wor

derful workings of which are as yet but partially understood, affecting life and health, climate and vegetation, to an extent which is quite incredible to those who are uninformed as to their far-reaching effects. In order to convey to the reader a clear understanding of the subject in question, it is ecessary to explain some of the mysterious,

Heat is always passing from the warmer

to the colder body of matter in nearest proximity, whether it be earth, air, animal or water. If the disparity in temperature be slight, the draft of heat from the warmer to the colder body is slight. If the disparity of temperature be large, the heat current is increased accordingly. Distance is no bar to this law. Heat will go with electrical speed to the colder body of matter, and its current will continue until equalization of temperature between the warmer and the colder bodies is effected. Water is endowed by the creative power with the capacity of holding more heat, in an insensible condi-tion, than any other natural substance.

One hundred and eighty units of heat will raise the temperature of one pound of water from 32° to 212° F., while the same application to the condition of mankind, and the earth we inhabit, has been sadly

During the summers of 1889 and 1890, the flow of ice from the polar regions into the Atlantic was of unusual magnitude and, indeed, in 1888 it was quite heavy. Ice-bergs of extraordinary dimensions, and large fields of floating ice reached further south than is usual. So late as the 12th of

October last THE DISPATCH published a statement from the Caplain of an incoming condition, as nearly as can be ascertained

from the few tests which have been observed

by the writer.
This being the condition of the ocean

The Winter Here and in Europe

The past winter in Europe was a cold one, the heat currents generally passed from the ocean to the continent and the people there experienced but little of the grin. Recently the temperature has risen above the cold waters of the Atlantic, and the mysterious

BUILDING A NATION.

Genuine Patriotism the Only Antidote for Sectionalism.

LOCAL JEALOUSIES GOING OU!

In America Before the Influences Drawing People Together.

THE RACE BECOMING MORE FLEXIBLE

WRITTEN FOR THE DISPATOR 1

The American in England is constantly struck with the fact that not merely is the union between England and Ireland still coming), but that existing between England and Scotland is almost as imperfect. He often hears Englishmen of education and standing speak of both these other parts of the nationality as if they were occupied by alien races. Dr. Johnson grudgingly admitted, 100 years ago, that something might be made of a Scotchman if he were caught young; and Matthew Arnold, while satirizing the extreme absurdity of an American's having an opinion of his own upon any matter of style or language, points a moral by telling a story of similar conceit as once manifested by a Scotchman.

All this might seem childish enough in view of the fact that students now go beyond English-speaking world itself and find the best authorities on the English language in the German universities; and that the most important philological study of Shakespeare is to be found in Schmidt's Shakespeare-Lexicon. But the point most important to Americans is this: If among the inhabitants of a little island, traversed in its whole length by a railway journey of a dozen or fifteen hours, these petty local what are we to expect in a nation which spreads from the Atlantic to the Pacific?

Passing Away of Sectionalism. The answer is that we have already become, by a change of climate and a greater variety of admixture, a far more flexible and adaptable race than our fathers. Unwilling as Matthew Arnold was to admit it, that "added drop of nervous fluid" makes itself more perceptible year by year in its consequences; and renders us, now that the one great source of contention is removed, ss and less liable to sectional differences Whether for good or for evil, our blood is already too widely intermingled for us to keep up the old English habit of internal antagonism.

Theodore Roosevelt pever rendered :

greater service in public life than when he once said before an audience, "Here am I, representing seven generations of descent n this continent, yet without a drop of English blood in my veins." It was a conclusive object lesson, a crucial experiment as to the foliy of local or racial prejudices among Americans. The Civil War itself was finally a factor in the same direction. When visiting the field of Gettysburg with a party of veterans representing many states, a man at my elbow said, "What olly is all this talk about Eastern and Western regiments! The greater part of every Western command consisted of men who had migrated from the Atlantic States or whose fathers had,"

Accentuating the Common Tie. Even the great division between Union and Confederate forces only accentuated the common tie. I myself, a Massachusetts man, had five own cousins born in Virginia. ad dear to me from childhood. Four of them. women, had husbands in the Confederate army; while their only brother was a surgeon in the regular army of the Union roughout the war. Such instances occurred in almost every family connection. Since the war, all influences are rapidly ining out minor distinctions of habits and pronunciation. The Pullman car, an abolutely national institution, runs like a steam-roller over all flocal prejudices. In every corner of the land we fee the same black porter to teach us the self-same code of traveling manners. The dialect of Lowell's 'Bigelow Papers" is fast becoming a thing of the past; and so are some of the pretty South Carolina and Georgia intonations. Constantly changing our residences, we adapt ourselves to an universal, perhaps an ave-

Meeting last summer among the hills of New Hampshire a typical Western Colonel, loud-voiced, decisive, generous, open-handed, I chanced to inquire his birthplace, and found that he, like myself, was born under the shadow of Harvard University. How much has that great institution itself done for the young colleges of the West, but how much has it received in re-All the modern transformation which has made it a new institution really took its rise from the alumni oration de-livered by Rev. F. H. Hedge on "University Reform" in 1886-before the inauguration of President Eliot-in which he held up the State University of Michigan as the only American example of a true university, and said frankly "Compared with this, our other colleges are provincial."

Tendency Toward Tariff Reform.

So far as these jealousies remain and flourish, they are now based either on local interests or on social habits and feelings. The jealousies based on interest will be sus turned no doubt until the nation ceases to attempt by higher and higher tariffs, to balance one local claim against another-trying reconcile jarring claims, always at the expense of the consumer. On the other hand the tendency toward tariff reform, so strongly manifested at the late elections, points to a time when demand and supply will have fair and free play; and each portion of the country will produce what it can most CLOTHING COMPANY, corner Grant and country will produce what it can most

Most of the questions raised by such movements as the Farmers' Alliance or the Granger organizations are not really sectional, but are issues between classes; and representatives of each class are to be found in every State, though in some particular States the one or the other class may temporarily preponderate. While a State is poor, it naturally contains more of the debtor class, for instance; but as fast as it becomes rich, it has capitalists of its own and the ered for represented. Even the silver question is not properly a sectional question, when we consider that the St. Louis merchants, like those of the Atlantic cities, sent a delegation to Washington to remonstrate against any extreme measures. Southern Race Problem.

The race autagonisms of the Southern States have two powerful influences tending to mitigate them-education and emigration. The exodus of hundreds of colored families to Kansas a few years since, and their subsequent prosperity there, have done more than all possible legislation to adjust the Southern problem. No race will long tyrannige over another race which has the power of locomotion and which it cannot afford to

And so of local jealousies growing out of habits and education. All the foolish and disparaging things said by the Saturday Review about Americans may be matched by things equally silly, said by people in the Atlantic cities about "Westerners;" and all the over-sensitiveness manifested by Americans toward the Saturday Review can be equalled by the undue sensitiveness shown by "Westerners" toward residents in the Atlantic cities. It is all microscopical and parochial jealousies, and no more en titled to respect than the still smaller erlousies between the South End and the Vest End of any growing town; or the feeling which led a bousehold advertising for boarders, in the neighborhood of a certain city, to insert the warning "No family residing north of Arch street need

Patriotism the Antidote. The only true and American feeling, on the other hand, is that we are all one family, that the honors of one are the honors of ail; and that though a man be born at the utmost edge of the Aleutian Islands, so long as he is born and bred an American, ati New York and Chicago should stand ready to give honor and support to every Si0 suit and upward, at Saller & Co.'s, clothiers, hatters and furnishers, cor. Smithfield and Diamond streets. ready to give honor and support to every good thing he does. American society must make its own standards, only let them be worthy standards; and the American pres must also have its own modes and method limited by the same conditions.

That press is yet destined, as Irving long since wrote to Motley, to revise the judgments of the world. This can never be done by a merely local or parochial opinion, but by one which truly represents the spirit of a growing and united nation. The only antidote for sectionalism is a genuine patriot

FORGED A WIDOW'S WILL

Two Smart Alecks of Chicago Will Dwell

in the Penitentiary. CHICAGO, April 17 .- After a sensationa trial John C. Cosgrove and James R. McElli. gott were to-night found guilty of forging a rich woman's will, and were given nine and three years respectively in the panitentiary. The case is one of the most peculiar in the history of crime in this State. Cosgrove, a boot and shoe broker, roomed in a building owned by a wealthy widow, Mrs. Louisa A Jerome, and through this circum-stance made her acquaintance. She sought his advice in some matters of business, and he was able to post himself on the condition of her

When she died, about a year ago, no will When she died, about a year ago, no will could be found among her papers, but three months later Cosgrove came torward with what purported to be a will, bearing the signature of Mrs. Jerome and witnessed by himself and James R. McElligott. This will left money to a large number of relatives and friends and charitable institutions and a legacy of $30,000 to Cosgrove's two sons, who, it has since been proved, she had never seen. The relatives contested this will, alleging the signature was a forgery, and Judge Kohlsaat upheld them and refused to probate the document. Then Cosgrove and McElligott were arrested on the charge of conspiracy and forgery. Cosgrove claimed that Mrs. Jerome made the will and signed it in New York City two months before her death. Cosgrove was once an inmate of the Massachusetts State prison for a minor offense, and was pardoned by the Governor.

POPULATION OF CITIES.

Census Bulletin Showing How It Has Increased During the Century. WASHINGTON, April 17.-The Census Offic has issued a bulletin, giving the population of cities in the country containing 8,000 inhabitants or more. The total urban population in 1890 was 18,235,670, or per cent of the total population. 1880 the total urban population was 11,318,547, or 22.57 per cent of the whole. The proportion or 22.57 per cent of the whole. The proportion of urban population has increased gradually during the past century from 2.35 up to 2.12 per cent, or from one-thirtieth up to nearly one-third of the total papulation. The number of cities having a population of more than 8,000 increased from six in 1790 to 236 in 1880, whence it has leaped to 443 in 1890. In 1880 there was but one city, New York, which had a population in excess of 1,000,000. In 1890 there were three—New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. In 1870 there were but 14 cities each containing more than 100,000 inhabitants. In 1880 this number had increased to 20, and in 1890 to 28. The North Atlantic division contains nearly one-half the urban population of the country, while the North Atlantic and North Central divisions contain nearly five-sixths of it. In the North Atlantic division 51.58 per cent, or more than one-half the entire population, is contained in cities of 8,000 or more inhabitants. During the past ten years the urban element this division by the contained in the sentence of the past ten years the urban element. During the past ten years the urban element in this division has increased 43.55 per cent, while the total population has increased but 19.95 per cent,

MISSING SINCE SUNDAY.

Fears of Foul Play About a Man Who Intended Visiting Pittsburg. SENECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. COLUMBUS, April 17,-Fred B. Gehret has been missing from home since Sunday and fears of foul play are entertained, as he was last seen with two characters who do not work for a living. Gehret intended visiting friends in Pittsburg, but his wife does not believe he has gone there, as she can get no word from him by telegraph.

The police have the case in hands and will make arrests to-morrow if Gebret is not heard

NEWS FROM OILDOM. THE GRIP EPIDEMIC

> GOOD PROSPECTS FOR ACTIVITY AT MURDOCKSVILLE.

Luck Favors Jefferson Center Once More-The Mellon Wildcat on the West Virginia Line Shows No Oil-An Interesting THE BEST-KNOWN PREVENTIVE. Well Beyond Developments.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. WILDWOOD, April 17 .- The Wildwood field has nothing of special importance to report to-day. The Waterhouse well on the Hailey lease, in the northeast of the field, A PAPER VALUABLE AT THIS PERIOD is claiming some attention. The well was struck yesterday morning, and started off at 16 barrels an hour, and this morning had dropped to about 5 barrels an hour. They drilled it awhile to-day and increased its production 10 barrels an hour, and perhaps by morning it will have fallen off from this figure. Whitesell No. 12 is reported 45 feet in the sand and holding well. No. 13 found the second pay and also an increase of production. The Heidleberg well at noon to-day was being drilled in the slate and shell above the sand. They were delayed on account of water, but may get in late this evening or in the morning. The Colbar well found the sand this morning, but up to noon had not shown any oil. Both the wells The Roth Oil Company's Peepples well is making 20 barrels an hour, and Kress No. 12 was stirred up a little while this morn-ing, which increased its production to 22 inches an hour. No. 13 same farm has stopped flowing again, and its owners are getting ready to tube No. 7 Kress. No. 9, same farm, is making 31/4 inches an hour. Murdocksville Will Be Active. MURDOCKSVILLE-As stated several days ago by THE DISPATCH, the Murdocksville field bids fair to be quite active the coming ummer. During the past month some good wells have been found here, and their stay-ing qualities are superior to those of the wells found in many of the other pools of the Southwest. Notwithstanding the roads are almost impessable, a large amount of new work is under way, and when ma-chinery and supplies can be moved with dinary cost the volume of operations will be greatly increased. Recently Finegan & Co. completed a light well on the Stevenson farm, while Phillip & Co.'s last venture on the McDonald is making 20 barrels a day. This company, elated over their good fortune, will drill another well before many moons. On the Porter farm the Ohio Valley Gas Company a few days ago found a small gasser. Another Good Well at Jefferson Center.

JEFFERSON CENTER-T. W. Phillips has struck another good producer in the Jefferson Center pool. It is on the Swaney farm, and when first struck started off at ten barrels an hour, which is considered first class, as its location in the minds of some producers did not justify a well of this Mr. Phillips' Benewith farm well is holding up at 60 barrels a day. The Jefferson Center Oil Company shot its No. 4 Kornrumpf, which increased its production to 50 barrels an hour on the start. This high rate of speed was only transitory, and in a few days the producer will drop back to its normal condition. Several other wells are drilling that are looked upon as important, but will not reach the sand for some time. The Mellon Well Not Producing. BLACKSVILLE—The Mellon wildcat well being drilled in West Virginia, near the Greene county line, and erroneously reported yesterday as flowing at the rate of 150 barrels a day has been heard from. A special to The DISPATCH from a reliable scout says the well is 30 feet in the Big Injun sand with no oil in the hole and is shut down for repairs. The same special stated that the wildcat well drilling three miles southwest of Blacksville, near the mouth of Mirale run, is also from 20 to 30 feet in the Big Injun with no show of oil or gas and shut down.

Muddy Creek Production Increasing.

the meager reports at hand I am unable to give definite knowledge of the venture. The owners evidently intend to know what they have first before the facts are given out for publication, as none are permitted inside the derrick. The production of the new pool is gradually being augmented, and the gauges to-day show a production of 125 barrels.

An Interesting Venture at Harmony. HARMONY—The experimental well on the A. Zeigler farm, owned by John A. Stell & Co., is nearing the Centennial sand, and is being watched by many operators. If, however, a portion of this heat is drawn off from our bodies by the immutable laws before stated, the heart fails, especially in This well is farther west than any develop dinary draft and the wants of our bodies at the same time, then the blood congests in the veins and death follows.

To avoid the grip and kindred ailments it is necessary to keep all the heat within our ments here, being about three-quarters of a mile down the railroad from the pool.
