barrels a day. Others said the rate was not above 40,000 barrels. Some placed it as low as 30,000, but I heard more who esti-mated it lower than that. I have not much idea as to the production of a well—it would be more proper to call this a torrent, rather than a well-but I was inclined to guess as high as the highest. A few days later, Coro when I got a newspaper on the train, I saw dispatches quoting it as a 40,000 barrel well, and I suppose this was not far from its actual yield. As the oil was running to waste, the estimate must have been largely guess work. I was not surprised to hear that the well had broken the price of oil at the wells and refineries. Such a tremen-dous bear as that on any of our American markets would create a panic in short order.

but little attention to it any more. They turn to the stock markets and pick of business there. Day before yesterday there were 1,000 barrels of oil sold in this Ex-change (the Cousolidated); yesterday there were 1,000. To-day, for some reason, the sales have amounted to 30,000 barrels, but to-morrow they may be back to 1,000 again. I don't bother my head much with the stuff, George Cornwall, of Oil City; John Reed, of the same place, and myself have gone into the stock market, as a good many others have, and do but little in oil unless our customers want it. To-day our, stock transactions represent 3,000 shares and a considerable proportion of this comes from the oil country and Pittsburg. People who formerly traded in oil are now keeping out of it and going into stocks. It wouldn't surprise me if more exchanges pulled out of the conference."

I saw "Jim" Place, the newspaper man, well-known all over the oil country, in town the other day on his way to Florida to recuperate. The Elmira people who have leased his paper at Reading, Pa., have taken hold and he is now free for awhile to seek rest. He needs it. He has many friends all over the country who will be glad to hear that his quest for health among the orange groves has not been unsuccessful. R. W. CRISWELL.

EXPECTS TO BE CURED.

A Southsider Under the Koch Treatment in Philadelphia Getting Well.

William Schutz, the Southsider under treatment for consumption in Philadelphia, writes to his friends that he is almost completely cured, and that if his case progresses favorably he will be discharged in five or six weeks as cured. He has gained sover pounds in weight, his color has improved, and his cough has almost entirely ceased. Altogether, he is highly satisfied, and hopes to be with his family within two months, a sound man. The amount of injections of the Koch lymph has reached 60 milograms

A patient was discharged last Monday, pronounced cured, who had been under treatment five weeks prior to Mr. Schutz, and whose last injection had reached 90 milograms. Mr. Schutz also writes that the state of the weather affects them. When they receive the lymph on a wet day it af. fects them very much, and on a dry day they hardly notice the injection. There are now under treatment at the Philadelphia establishment 11 patients, all progressing favorably.
