A BIG LEGAL FIGHT

Soon to Occur in the Supreme Court Over the Anti-Lottery Law.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS IN IT. Line of Arguments to Be Followed by Defendants' Counsel.

TPROM A STAFF COURESPONDENT.1 WASHINGTON, April 24 .- As Attorney General Miller is convalescent it is expected that what are known as the "freedom of the press cases," which involve the question of the constitutionality of the anti-lottery law, will be heard by the Supreme Court soon, Government of Mr. Mitler should fail to appear. The cases are against publishers of States, newspapers, for publishing lottery

Mr. Hannis Taylor, the author of a volume entitled "The Origin and Growth of the English Constitution," will alone represent the Register. The States will be represented by Hon. Thomas J. Semmes, the leader of the New Orleans bar, and James C. Carter, Esq., a leading attorney of New York. Mr. Taylor, in outlining his argument to representatives of the press to-day, gave an interesting account of press censorship in Great Britain, and followed with his conclusions based on present laws and tury," he said, "it was an open question in England whether in a trial for criminal libel the criminality of the subject matter of a publication should be determined by the Judge or the jury. This controversy led to the great fight in Westminster Hall, in which the right of the Judge to settle the question was upheld by Mausfield and the right of the jury by Erskine.

"This controversy, which began in 1764, continued down to May, 1791, when Mr.

Fax introduced his famous libel act which declares that the right in question belonged to the jury and not to the judge. The free-dom of speech and the press in England means therefore nothing more than this: No man can be punished for an utterance or a publication until the guilt of the subject itter of the same has been ascertained by a ury of his peers.

The first amendment was adopted just six months after Mr. Fox's libel act was inroduced, and is nothing but an echo and embodiment of that great measure. Freedom of the press in America is, therefore, just what it is in England. No American citizen can be punished in any form on account of any publication made or sent by him until the criminality of the subjectmatter of the same has been ascertained by n jury of his peers.

The Question of Immorality. "This is well illustrated by the Federal statutes, which provide that any person who sends an immoral book through the mails shall be punished alter a jury has asertained the fact that such book is in fact immoral. Suppose these statutes should be so amended as to enumerate the books which Congress considers immoral, leaving only the fact of sending for the jury to as-certain. In that event they would be learly unconstitutional, for the simple reason that the vital question-the criminality the subject-matter of the publication which is purely a judicial question-would be transferred from the jury to Congress.

This illustrates the vice of the anti-lotery law. In it Congress usurps a purely udicial function by attempting to adjudi-rate beforehand and without due process of aw, that the subject-matter of every publication in a letter or newspaper concerning a 'This cuts the heart out of the freedom of

The Powers of Congress "Mr. Carter, in his argument, will devote himself mainly to the proposition that Congress can't so pervert one of its legitimate powers to an illegitimate end as to necomplish a purpose entirely outside of Federal jurisdiction, Congress has the power to regulate the mails, but it has no power to suppress lotterses within a State. The avowed purpose of this act, as evidenced by its terms and by the reports of the committees to which it was referred, is to suppress tteries. Mr. Carter's strong position is upheld by a great army of authorities."

"Mr. Semmes, who will close the discussion as leading counsel, will support the two contentions advanced by Mr. Carter and myself, and at the same time he will present with his usual trenchant power the legal status of the lottery company under the constitution and laws of the State of Laurisiana, which alone possess the power to

ANOTHER POSTPONEMENT

In the Bering Sea Case Probably Owing to Justice Bradley's Illness.

WASHINGTON, April 24.-The condition of Justice Bradley, who has been confined to his house for two weeks with a cold and an attack of the grip, is not so favorable today as it had been and his associates are apprehensive that he will not be able to be present in court next Monday when the Hering Sea and lottery cases should come up. He had been steadily improving and, up to this morning, it was thought that he would be in court Monday if the weather

The Court is averse to hearing either of these important matters without a full bench, and it is probable, therefore, that they will again be postponed. As the term of the court is drawing rapidly to a close, a further postponement would make it almost, though not quite certain, that these cases would not come up until next October or November after the court reconvenes.

NEBEKER ON HAND.

The New Treasurer of the United States

Arrives in Washington. WASHINGTON, April 24 .- Hon, Enes Nebeker, of Indiana, recently appointed United States Treasurer, reached Washington this morning. Later in the day he called on Secretary Foster, with whom he had a brief interview. Mr. Nebeker also filed his bond for the faithful performance of his duties. He will not, however, enter upon the dulies of his office till the depository banks make their settlements on Satur day.

The count of the cash and securities in the Treasury, which is always made upon the incoming of a new Treasurer, will commence next Monday.

Secretary Halford's Vacation WASHINGTON, April 24 .- Elijah W. Halford, Private Secretary to President Harrison, left for New York this morning. He will sail for Europe to-morrow. Mr. Halford is accompanied by his daughter, Miss Jeannette. They will be absent about wix weeks.

LOTTERY TICKET DUTY. REMARKABLE DECISION FROM THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Tickets Shipped Into the Country by a Mex-Ican Lottery Company Must Be Assessed 25 Per Cent Ad Valorem-Some Fine Points Involved.

(FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.) WASHINGTON, April 24 .- One of the most remarkable decisions that has issued from the Treasury Department for a long time was that given out to-day in answer to THE POWERS OF CONGRESS DEPINED. | an inquiry made by Frank Clark, collector of customs at El Paso, Tex. El Paso, on the Rio Grande, is the chief port for the entry of goods from Mexico in the United States. It seems that large quantities of tickets of the Juster Lottery Company, of Mexico, have been shipped into the United States by express, or as freight, not being admissible Solicitor General Taft representing the through the mails. Of course they were subject to examination by the Custom House officers. Hitherto they have been admitted the Mobile Register and New Orleans by the collectors, believing they were duti-States, newspapers, for publishing lotters able, but the extent of the business led Mr. Clark, who is a very clever and wideawake young man, to made the inquiry noted.

The law clerk of the customs division of the Secretary's office wrote an opinion, which was in substance that there was no law prohibiting the admission of them, excepting through the medium of the mails. The opinion stopped there, and was in that shaped submitted to Assistant Secretary Spaulding, who, after thinking a moment added a sentence that will make swim the heads of the companies which have been shipping lottery tickets. It was this: "Duty should be assessed at the rate of, 25 per cent ad valorem."

Tax on the Tickets,

The construction intended to be put upon this by the collector, is that 25 per cent of "Down to near the close of the last cen- the face value of the tickets shall be charged, which would, apparently, have the effect of preventing the lottery comthe Custom House. In other words they would smuggle them across, and a relay of "coast guards" would be necessary to apprehend the smugglers. But the decision involves a delicate point at law, that will probably be taken to the courts. At the very least it is probable the Secretary will be asked for an explanation of the law in more elaborate form.

The provision of the tariffact that all printed matter, not otherwise especially pro-vided for, shall pay a duty of 25 per cent ad valorem, was hardly intended to apply to lottery tickets. At least such an application was never contemplated. The printed matter known to the lawmakers was mere commercial printing, that could be classed as ordinary merchandise. While lottery tickets are in a sense merchandise, they are certainly not the sort of merchandise con-templated by the law.

Value of a Chance.

Intrinsically a lottery ticket is only worth a fraction of a cent, and the question is whether the duty should be imposed on their value or on a fictitions value that it has as a 'chance." and a very small chance, in a chance, and a very small chance, in a lottery. All these things are admitted at the Treasury Department with a broad smile of acquiescence, but the Assistant Secretary says as he smiles: "There are my instructions to Mr. Clark; let the lottery companies get over them as they can. I assume that the value of a lottery ticket is what it will se!l for, and they have a fixed orice. On that a duty of 25 per cent shall be charged."

The only decision which bears the faintest relation to this case was one rendered a few years ago by Assistant Secretary Maynard, in relation to certain Mexican bonds which were sent into the United States. It was decided they were not merchandiz, and not dutiable. They were a promise in certain circumstances to pay a certain sum. Some of the authorities of the departmen say that this is exactly what a lottery ticket is. That it is a bond promising a certain sum in certain circumstances, and is no more merchandise than the Mexican bonds.

Another Phase of It. "This cuts the heart out of the freedom of the press. If Congress can adjudicate that the matter in the Treasury Department, but, of course, the Assistant Secretary's McCarthy, aged 76 years. instructions will stand till they are upset, Collector Clark was telegraphed to-day, and, doubtless, something will be heard very soon from the other end of the line. Another phase of the case may come up under the new copyright law. The lottery posed. That is the main point of my argument." the matter of reciprocity, the tickets will probably have to be admitted free of duty. Nearly all of the stock of the Juarez Com-pany is held in the United States. Colonel Mosby, of Confederate guerrilla fame, is the manager, and Russell Harrison has been said to have an interest in it.

The decision of the department will affect not only the Mexican companies. Other foreign companies in Italy and Austria each send hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of lottery tickets to this country, sold prin-cipally among Germans and Italians, and vigorous protests will be heard from various quarters of Europe.
