COMMENTS ON THE STRANGE CASE.

James Scott Eeld fer Manslanghter in the Turtie Creek Killing Case.

The Coroner's jury yesterday held Low den Martin for the killing of Nicholas Spielman, in McKeesport. The affair indirectly resulted from the big strike now on hand. Martin is a painter by trade, and on April 30 was at work on a house when Spielman, who was a carpenter, came up. It was just the day before the carpenters' strike and Spielman was enthusiastic over the fight for eight hours. He thought the painters should strike too, and was very free to express his views on that point. Martin thought differently and a quarrel ensued between the two men, resulting in Spielman being hit on the head with a large piece of wood. He fell to the ground and his head struck a block of flagstone.

Spielman lingered for a week, but steadilv grew worse and died yesterday morning shortly after 1 o'clock. Acting Coroner McKenna and Clerk Grant Miller went to McKeesport yesterday and held the inquest. Didn't Know His Murderer's Name.

Peter Spielman, the father of the deceased, was the first witness. He testified that his son was 24 years of age. All he knew of the circumstances of the case was what his son had told him. The latter did not know the name of the man who hit him, but he knew he was one of the painters at work on the house of William Stracham, East Park McKeesport. Elizabeth Baumgartner, sister of the dead man, said he had described his assailant to her, and the description answered to that of Martin. Frank Thomas, a painter, was at work at the house when the affair occurred. Spielman when he came up said to Martin: "I suppose you painters will go out with us." Martin replied that they would not. At this Spielman began to swear, and Martin ordered him off the porch. He obeyed, but kept on talking back. Martin became enraged and threw a brick, which struck Spielman on the arm. The latter picked up a club; but Martin took it away from him and hit him with it. They then clinched and Spielman was thrown to the ground.

Ellsworth Mills, another painter, corroborated this statement. The Exact Cause of Death.

Dr. Black testified that death resulted from congestion of the brain, caused by a blow on the head with a blunt instrument Robert Sodachrist saw the fuss, but did not see Martin hit Spielman with a club. Neville Stracham testified to having met Spielman after the trouble. The deceased told him a Strachan testined to having met spielman after the trouble. The deceased told him a painter had hit him.

Robert Lowry, a carpenter, was across the street at the time. Spielman was swearing at Martin and daring him to come down off the porch. Martin soon accepted the challenge, and during the light that followed hit Spielman or, the head with a board.

Lowdon Martin, the accused, took the stand and told the story about as given by the previous witnesses. He was angered by Spielman's language and threats. After they got through lighting the wound on Spielman's head was dressed, and nobody thought it was serious. Spielman himself remarked that the trouble was all his own fault. was all his own fault.

This ended the testimony. The jury was out but ten minutes and rendered a vord effect that Spielman came to his death from the effects of a blow from a stick in the hands of Martin and a fall on the flagstones, and tha of Martin and a fall on the flagstones, and that the blow was struck with footnous intent. The Coroner held him for court on the charge of murder. His counsel will make application to court for his release on bail.

Martin has a wife and children, and bears a good reputation. He was brought to Pitts burg resterday afternoon and lodged in the county jail.

The police were notified, but, as there are no officers in the rapidly growing Ruch's hill district, the boys escaped before their identity could be learned. Superintendent Hamilton, of the Allegheny Parks, holds substantially the views expressed in The Disparch yesterday, though he goes a little farther and expresses the opinion that peaches are also safe.

Attorney N. W. Shafer points out that the only likely danger to be encountered is a long dry spell, but he does not predict it. The earth is still wet below the surface, a few inches, though the surface is baked as hard as unleavened bread. This crust is preserving the moisture which the roots reach, and consequently there is no present danger from this source, nor is there likely to be for ten days to come, and a minitall is confidently expected before that time. We shall probably see some more frost before winter takes his final adieu, but at present the indications are for higher temperature. Oats sown and potatoes planted since the rains are lying almost inert in the ground, but there is still room to hope for a prosperous agricultural season. Connelly went into Gibausky's saloon and raised a disturbance, and broke several arti-cles. While the proprietor was calling an officer $5 was taken from the till.

Quarreled About a Dinner Bucket. Stephen Wilson made an information before Alderman Kerr yesterday charging J. Colcot, a ole, with assault and battery. Both are mill en, and a quarrel about the ownership of a anner bucket precipitated a fight in which the roscoutor was hit on the head with a heavy dece of wood. A hearing will be held to-night.

George Schodney and Robert Ellison, both colored, got into a fight in a Grant street colored, got into a light in a Grant street saloon last night and began throwing beer glasses at each other. Officer Kinlin disturbed the proceedings and arrested Schedney, but Ellison escaped. Both men were cut up about the head, though not seriously.

On May 8 of last year the Master Plumbers' As. sociation of Pittsburg and Allegheny agreed that the minimum wages should be not less than $2 per day. The journeymen do not see at the present time that they are justified in agreeing to any reduction. Our association has always given the bosses some time to consider propositions made by us, but they gave us no warning in this case, and we feel fully justified in refusing to go to work to morrow. "Will you furnish the names of some of the contractors who have granted the demands today?"

"I think not," was Mr. Irwin's reply,
"Are any of them members of the Builders' Exchange?" was next asked.

"Not that I know of."

"Then why do you object to giving out their names if they are under no obligation to the master builders or Builders' Exchange? It would certainly strengthen your side of the case if you could back up your general claims with something substantial."

Not Considered Public Business. "Well, that is our business, and I do not think the public cares to know who have granted the demands and who have not."

A meeting of the Strike Committee was held in the afternoon, with Mr. Swartz in the chair. Reports were received from each local as to the number of men at work and on strike. A member of Union 230 said after the meeting: "It begins to look as if we are losing ground. Our reports are falling off, and while we are losing members who are going to work at nine hours, the contractors are gaining. Some strike benefits will be paid to-morrow, but the money does not come from Philadelphia. Our local funds will soon be exhausted, and when our men see their bread and butter go out of reach through the strike they will not stay out long. The leaders of the strike have tried hard to encourage the men by getting a telegram from the General Secretary. The men don't seem to understand that the General Executive Board has declared the strike illegal, and that Mr. Maguire has no authority to step over the decision of the board and indorse the strike." in the afternoon, with Mr. Swartz in the chair

SPEAKS FOR HIS RACE. A Colored Citizen Pays His Compliments to the Machinists. Abram T. Hall, a colored clerk, living at 176 Webster avenue, sent the following communi-cation to THE DISPATCH yesterday: cation to THE DISPATCH yesterday:

The summary manner in which the negro was shut out of the Machinists' Association at their Wednesday session in this city calls for at least a passing notice. If the 89 members that voted against his admission think the question of negro recognition by their association is settled once for all, some of them are sure to live long enough to realize the foolishness of their hopes, and that while they might deter they cannot prevent what is inevitable. All honor to the 29 members that stood up to be counted for justice. "A cause is nover lost that has one may to battle with the tyrath who'd onlive it." Some of them will live long enough I trust to see their brother in black sitting as a welcome member of the infernational association. Hevolutions never go buck-ward, and while I do not know what arguments were advanced against the measure by those who opposed his admission. It is consoling to know that the built or opposition came from the unprocreesive South, where, despite all untoward circumstances, the negro is coming to the front in every way, and is coming to stay. Some day, when American citizens have had a suretit of urbulent Huns, socialistic Boltemians and assassinating italians, they will awaken to the fact that the negro is after all the mainstay of the country and "all things shall be added." Negro machinists—and good ones, too—can be seen working at their trace in all portions of the country. Assisted by the manual training schools they form the little leaven that will leaven the whole lump. "All things come to him who works and waits," and the 89 prejudiced tollers should take sufficient time from their lathes to keep abreast of the trend of public sentiment.

He says that the prospects were never better, and the farmers never more hopeful.

Here and there the Hessian fly is working, but doing very little damage. Occasionally there are spots of yellow wheat in drains or other low places where water has stood and killed the plant, but these places are an inconsiderable part of the vast area of the country that is planted in wheat, and with seasonable weather until harvest time, the yield will be unprecedented in the history of the two States. CAUGHT BY A CIRCUS.

Bessie Garrigan Gone to Win Fame

and Fortune in the Ring.

PLAYED TRUANT TO SEE THE SHOW

Supposed to Have Been Entired Away by Bareback Rider.

LONGED TO BECOME AN EQUESTRIENNE

Little Bessie Garrigan, of Allegheny, bas disappeared from her home on Second street. She has been gone since Tuesday, and it is now believed she has gone to becom an equestrienne in a cheap circus. The pink tights decorated with tinsel, the plunging white horse, the crack of the ringman's whip and clown's joke, together with the general odor of peanuts and cheap lemonade was a fascination too great for her 11was a fascination too great for her 11year-old mind, and it is believed her name will soon appear on the flaming play bills.
The girl has been gone since Tuesday.
Her parents believed she was only staying with friends, but when the second night passed and she did not return, they reported the matter to the police. For several weeks a cheap circus has been flaunting its canvass and banners in Pittsburg and Aliegheny. The girl is developed beyond her years and has a marked tondness for the pleasures of the world. She is bright, active and graceful, just such a creature as would make a hit as a soubrette and results prove that professionals recognized this. With the advent of the show her attendance at school dropped to the minimum.
In short, she was playing truant to cherish is the delight of this new enjoyment.

The school and circus, however, adjourned about the same hour, and as she was always home on time, there was no room to question her actions. The neighbors noticed that on a number of occasions she was accompanied home by a young man, but he always stopped before reaching her residence, so the girl's parents would not discover the fact.

On Tuesday evening a report from the girl's teacher had preceded her arraval at home.
Her mother began to lecture her for being absent from school, when the girl darted out of the doorway. The mother, of course, followed, but by the time she had reached the corner the girl had disappeared. The mother gave up the chase, thinking her daughter would return, but as she did not the case was reported to the police. The detectives who have the case in charge expect to find the girl with the circus. year-old mind, and it is believed her name
