THE PITTSBURG DISPATCH SUNDAY, MAY 10, 1891. II

Answers to the famous Howard bill in equity were filed yesterday by Mayor Gour-ley, Treasurer Denniston and Controller of the city, its inxpayers and creditors, and each of said defendants for himself individ-Morrow, and to-morrow morning the answer of the Finance Committee will be ually joins in said denials. They aver that placed on record. Its answer was held out all of said action on their part was the result of their best judgment, looking to ne vesterday because all the members of the other interests than those of the city, its taxcommittee were not present to sign it. All payers and creditors. They therefore pray that said bill be dismissed with their reasonthe bills are in the main simple denials of all the statements set forth by Mr. Howard, able costs. in which he stated that over $1,000,000 of the city's sinking fund was held in banks, was not drawing interest, and, he further claimed, that the money was being held there for the benefit of certain politicians and bankers. The plaintiff's bill was filed during last October.

At the meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday the answer of that body was presented by City Attorney Moreland and approved by the committee. Mr. Kenting objected to some of the answers because they were not strong enough, but Mr. Moreland replied "that compels them to produce proof."

The Controller's Answer Separate. A silence followed this, until Mr. Moreland announced that the Controlier would file a separate answer. "Why isn't it also submitted to us?" asked Mr. Ford.

"Because it's none of our business," replied Mr. Keating. "The Controller is not required to show us his answer. Why, this is a free country, even in spite of the decisions of the Supreme Court, to say nothing of the findings of the License Court."

troller could keep his answer from the committee if he wished. The 10 members present then signed the bill.

The defendants in the reply of the Finance Committee are: Mesars, H. P. Ford, G. L. Holliday, A. F. Keating, A. C. Robertson, J. M. Anderson, John Paul, R. J. Hazlett, J. McM. King, Andrew Bender, W. A. Magee, John Dunn, J. J. Maguire, Thos. Delaney, William Angloch, R. D. Mac-Gonigle, Mark Donley and Thomas Wallace; besides R. J. Hazlett, P. J. Donahue, C. W. Helmold, James Renziehausen, J. S. Wightman and George A. Treusch, exmembers of the committee.

The answer admits all of the first seven ections, which contain a history of W. J. Howard, the plaintiff; a complete record of the membership of the Finance Committee since 1888, together with a history of the bonded debt of the city, the laws and ordinances creating a sinking fund, and also a detailed statement as to how said sinking fund was invested.

ontroller Morrow Makes a Brief Denial of His Duties-Another Chapter From the Mayor and Treasurer.

Controller Morrow also had his answer prepared yesterday. It consists mainly of a denial of all the charges that may have been made against him, and does not dwell on those against the committee. It is as follows: First-He neither admits nor denies the general averments contained in said bill, but if essential or material in any manner, he re-quires that proof thereof shall be properly quires that proof thereof shall be properly made. Second—For answer to such averments in the bill as may in any manner affect him or to which he is required to make answer, he says: That as City Con-troller of said city, he has recognized and faithtuilly attempted to perform his duty in and about the investment of all the sinking "funds of said city in the manner provided by the various laws or acts of Assembly relating to said sinking funds, and the ordinances of the Councils of the said city of Pittsburg passed in pursuance thereof. invested as by him set out in his annual repert made to the Councils of said city. That owing to differences of opinion existing between himself and the Finance Committee of the Councils of The committee then agreed that the Con-and the Finance Committee of the Councils of said city, there was for some time no invest-ment made as shown by the exhibit attached to the plaintiff's hill. These differences were simply and solely, however, in relation to the expediency of such investment at certain rates of interest thereon. Settlement of One of Cole's Cases. J. B. Cole, of the Fifth ward, Allegheny, wes called to answer a charge of non-support preferred by Mrs. C. O. Cole. She stated that when there was company at their house they had plenty to eat, but very little at other times, and that this was largely provided from her income, derived from a former busband, and her son's exertions. She said her income had all been expended, and that she had not the spending of it. It appeared that after considerable bickering the wife left and went to live with her son. Mrs. Cole admitted that her husband had furnished her a six-room house and some money and provisions at times. Mr. Cole stated that he was willing to take care of Mrs. Cole, but he did not want to be run by her son, whom he characterized as rather a burden to carry. He further said that Mrs. Cole had him arrested, and while in durance she had all the furniture carted off. Mr. Cole didn't relish the idea of being separated from his children, but he seemed to think he would be willing to dispense with the companionship of those of his predecessors. For the present Mrs. Cole will get $3 a week to go toward the nourish-ment of the offspring of the last partner-

An exceedingly youthful couple, named John and Lizzie Harris, were called up, and Lizzie said they had been married since last August, and that her husband had deserted her nine weeks ago. She snid the trouble was that they were both jealous. Mrs. Harris' childish face and unsophisticated answers gave, her an advantage over her husband, who is apparently of a rather taci-turn disposition, though not much older than the wite.

Why John Got Rather Tired.

John, in defense, said his wife had ac-cused him of infidelity until he could not endure her antics any longer, and left. He also alleged that she had pulled his hair once, and had chased him with a cobblestone in her hand. Then he attempted to explain that if domestic infelicities could be sand-papered down he would live with be sand-papered down he would live with her again, but Lizzie came book at him with the assertion that his story was not true, and that he had told her his father would not sliow him, and that he (the father) would send him to the Reform School if he renewed the connection. The court decided that John must pay Lizzie $30 a month until after her

CURIOUS SIGHT-SEERS able at Seventh Street to See the Tear ing Down of the Ruins.

The Seventh street ruins are still objects of interest to the idle and curious. Any showman who could have reated the spot and charged 5- cents a peep any time since Tuesday would have a soug "balance at his bankers" by this. Contrastors were set at work yesterday in tearing down the walls, and there is less danger of accident than there was. The ruins are still smoking, but both firemen and police have been withdrawn and the property owners must assume all responsi-bility that attaches to the condition of things. If the scavenging colony get an opportunity they will prohably make an-other incursion for smoked eatables.

A Suspended R. P. Preacher Who Has New Church of His Own.

Rev. J. A. Burnett, the young minister who was dropped from the ministry of the R. P. Church at Wilkinsburg, because he expressed his belief in the famous "East End platform," is not to be beaten down. He cannot preach in the R. P. Church, but he is holding Gospei services in Lohr Hall, Wilkinsburg, every Sunday. About 40 or 50 of his old congregation have gone with him, and he has well-attended services every Sunday. All the young people of the congregation are on his side, and he is called the most popular preacher between East Liberty and Braddock.

entirely. They demand cash in every instance, and deelare that they are perfectly satisfied, as their immunity from bad debts is more profitable than raising the prices.

AFTER THE FIRE.

The Barnes Safes Came Through the Seventi Street Ordeal Unscratched.

Last evening the employes of the Barnes Saie and Lock Company completed the work of getting five of the large safes out of the ruins lefs, by the Seventh street fire. The safes belong to the Grocers' Supply and Storage Company, Bown & Dualap, W. T. Bown & Bro., Pittsburg Egg Company and Bown co Bro, Fritsburg Egg Company and Beilstein & Spangler. The contents in each instance were in perfect condition, showing no trace of having been affected by the white heat of the confingration. The safes are still there, monuments to the superior workmanship for which the Barnes Company has a national reputation. The heat was so intense that the handles and dials were completely melted off the front of the Supply and Storage Company's safe, other wise all came through the fiery furnace uninjured. This adds more to the already long list of valuable testimonials which the Barnes Company now possesses, and which testifies that there is hardly a city or town in the United States and foreign countries where the Barnes safe is not in use. When in need of a first-class safe call at the works and general office of the Barnes Safe and Look Company, 124 to 131 Third and

The eighth paragraph of the Howard bill sets forth the necessity of the appointment of financially responsible trustee or trustees. It surther claims the defendants have refused to apply the sinking fund to the payent of the city's bonded debt.

The answer avers that the city has no authority to appoint such trustee or trustees, and that the management and control of said fund is in the control of City Councils. They also deny they have refused to pledge the sinking tund for the payment of the tunded debt.

Mr. Howard in the ninth paragraph held that the sinking fund was controlled by a Finance Committee, the members of which were not chosen with any regard to fitness or qualification, and, in fact, the committee was wholly irresponsible. Appended to this was a list of the biographics of the members. This section concluded with the statement J. P. Gibson, of New Orieans, and W. that the committee was irresponsible and L. Curtis, of Bradford, are at the Seventh Avenot superior to temptation. He claimed that the committee, by resolution in 1888, prosibited the Controller from making any investments of the sinking fund without its consent. The idea, he claimed, was to make it impossible for the Controller to buy my bonds, thereby leaving a large cash balance in the Lands of the delendant banks.

These suits sell everywhere for $18 and $20, but we will sell them Monday was not a city depository, but by a special ordinance repealing all other ordinances that bank was made eligible. They admit the statements in paragraph Diamond streets. 10. Said action, however, was not taken for the benefit and profit of said bank, but for the city and its creditors. The eleventh section claims that the ordinance was passed for the sole purpose of making the Freehold Bank one of the deositories, and the answer of the committee imply says they do not know what motives may have inspired Councils at that time Section 12 claims that from $600,000 to $800,000 of the city money is on deposit in the Freehold Bank from April to August each year, and about $250,000 is there on by the Kleber Bros. for the people know that no sharp tricks are ever played at Klebers', and that they can buy a plane for upward of $50 lower than at any other deposit without interest. It further claimed that said money was used by C. L. Magee and his associates in busimusic store
