fact fights were threatened in a number of the saloons about City Hall, where both sides had adjourned to drown sorrow or drink healths. One of the reformers who was much excited exclaimed:

Why, the American Mechanics elected Rowbottom while he was in Europe last year, and yet he turns round and votes for a an who has only been in the country since 1864. H. P. Staving is another. He is one of the biggest men in the order, and yet he also voted for Ehlers."

Common Council Greatly Excited.

Previous to the election a stormy scene equally as wild, was enacted in the Common Council Chamber. Members called each Council Chamber. Mombers called each other linrs, bribers and scoundrels; the crowds in the lobby hooted, hissed and cheered, and all that was needed to have number the pandemonium com-plete was a band to play "Annie Laurie," but it was not present, When the Common branch assembled only 26 mem-bers were present, but just then Charles V. Lawis filled up the chair and the quorum. We Radoub presented an ordinance for the Levels filled up the chair and the quorum, Mr. Rudolph presented an ordinance for the destruction of the light towers and some other routine work was disposed of, when Mr. Simon, of the Third ward, rose to his feet and started the wildest scene ever wit-nessed in the chamber. Said he: "Gentlemen, I rise to a question of personal privilege. My character has been essential. There have never secured of...."

Chairman Parke-Sit down yourself. A Chairman Parke-St down yourself. A question of privilege must be heard. Mr. Gregg-No charges. Sit down! Mr. Simon-it's a fake and a fable-"Nonsense," velled Mr. Bader. "Order: Order!" should the Chairman, frying to make himself heard above the hisses and cheers of the lobby. Labdimers-Sit down."

Dahlinger-Sil down! "All oot of order," again declared Chair-man Parke, "I will state now and for all time that I may occupy this chair hereafter, that any member who has been publicly at-meked has the privilege of explaining his action."

An Affidavit Declared a Fake,

Then Mr. Simon read from a newspape the charge against him, alleging that he had offered Mr. Bader $500 for his influence in the fight for McKirdy. Suid he:

"Mr. Rader's affidavit was gotten up to in-jure both Mr. McKirdy and myself. It is a Jure both Mr. McArdy and myself. It is a fake and a fulsebood, and was not gotten up by Mr. Bader alone. He was put up to it by that scoundred politician who occupied the chair before Mr. Parke." Redoubled yells and hisses followed this, while Messrs. Dablinger and Gregg jumped to their feet and ordered Mr. Simon down. Chairman Parke-I believe Mr. Simon has a right to finish.

ed. The others can answer. Mr. Grenn-Yes. He's on your side and you'll rule that way as long as you are in the chair. Mr. Simen tried to continue but the howls from the lobby drowned his voice and he withdrew with the statement: "My past record will bear me out and I am willing to let it stand against that of Mr. Bader. He, with the gang of rogues who control three-fourths of the city, are now after the other considents."

Bader was on his feet in an instant and won recognition. "Wants proof, does he? I can produce witnesses. When he came to me I told him him the door was open and told him to talk low, that people could hear. He didn't mind me. The witnesses heard. He is no good. He is only a cheap briber and don't know his business.

Too Many Groans and Hisses.

Grouns and hisses groeted this statement, and Mr. Gerwig stated the lobby was a dis gence to Councils. By threatening to clear it, Chairman Parker at last secured order.

Routine work was then taken up and finished, but Mr. Gregg and a number of other gentlemen left the room, They returned, however, when Select Council Joined the Common branch, Mr. Lindsay took the Chairmanship of the Joint session. On the roll call 61 out of the of members responded, making the number necessary to order 31. In quick succession Mr. Greeg presented the name of Charles Ehlers for the position of Chief of the De-partment of Public Works, Mr. Einstein nominated sammel Watson, Mr. Henricks offered that of John McKindy and Mr. Eshel-man announced the candidacy of George Cochrane. A viva voce vote was taken, and on the poll of Select Council 8 votes fell to Ehlers, 3 to

Likely to Result if the Dry Weather Continnes Much Longer.

There is already almost a grass famine in the country on account of the absence of rain. All the showers that have fallen in this section during the past three weeks have not wet the ground to the depth of an inch, and another week of drouth will in-sure a higher price for hay than prevailed last year. Butter dealers say the price could not have fallen much below the present figures had there been a more vigorous growth of grass. Farmers have about ous growth of grass. Farmers have about ceased all attempts at plowing, and some of them are speculating as to the probable utility of light charges of dynamite in the breaking of the crost. Bynamite would be a good pulverizer and would also destroy ent-worms. An observant and philosophic German predicted on Wednesday rsin between that time and Tuesday next, and a considerable number of grangers think it a safe predic-tion.

DEATH OF J. P. WINOWER.

Foremost Members. The American Mechanics of this city and Western Pennsylvania were shocked vester day to learn of the death of Junior Past State Councilor J. P. Winower, of Lancaster, which occurred late Wednesday night. Mr. Winower fell from a scaffold about four months ago and had several ribs broken. He lingered between life and death until wednesday night. The deceased was one of the most active members in the organization. During his term as Councilor over 159 councils were or-ganized, a record unprecedented before in the history of the order. He was a contract-ing painter and one of Lancaster's foremost citizens.

The journeymen feel they have been dealt with unjustly and refused to recognize the communication. The press committee gave out the following statement after the meet-ing adjourned: "On March 17 last, our ap-prentice rules were adopted, in accordance with a recommendation by the Master Plumbers' National Convention at Denver. They were printed and posted in all shops. Now, one of the parties to the agreement at-tempts to break off the negotiations, a thing which we consider is very unjust to us." The apprentice rules referred to required the boys to work five years before being classed as journeymen, and the men claim their rules were adopted for the benefit of the bosses.
