They overlook the power of con-science for good. While some people who possess well educated consciences may go wrong, a well trained conscience is the greatest guide to good. Among the elements which make an educated conscience is the helief in a personal God, a reverence for God's love, for reverence of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Another factor is the knowledge and belief in divine displeasure. A sense of dread of God's displeasure is essential to morality. "There is no power to reform in knowledge alone. Science does not purify of itself. There must be something else. The some-thing else I plead for is religious instruction in the public schools. What is there in knowledge to bind human passions and hold them in restraint? Knowledge is a power for good or evil, and is only turned either way by the presence or lack of religious training." At this day, when the claims made in be half of the Bible by those who accepted it as the inspired and the infallible word of God, are tested with a keenness and scrutiny uneccdented in biblical criticism, it is well precedented in biblical criticism, it is well for us to pause and inquire what estimate Jesus Christ put on this book. The unique character of Christ, his incomparable purity, his profound understanding and keen and penetrating intellect, together with his fault-less judgment, should give more than ordinary weight to his estimate of the Bible. With all due respect for the results of what is called the "higher criti-cism," for the opinions of men like Prof. Briggs, whose character and ability are uni-versally recognized and who have made Briggs, whose character and ability are uni-versally recognized and who have made biblical theology a special study, we are not, I take it, prepared either as a church or as individuals to accept their views or judg-ment in preference to the views or judg-ment of IIIm who spake as never man spoke.

address follows:

Misrepresented.

Many Have Been Unfair,

I am bound to say that in the heat of the controversy awakened by Prof. Briggs' in-augural address, many unwise and unfair things have been said by those who are opposed to him. He has been charged with ding views with regard to the Bible and its teachings for which his public utterances have furnished no just occasion. Prof. Briggs is a scholarly, Christian man who firmly and reverently holds to the great undamental articles of our Christian faith and is entitled to fair treatment at our hands. What is clear is that he repudiates the historic and commonly accepted view as to the Bible infallfbility as a whole and in to the Bible infailibility as a whole and in all its parts. It would be interesting, and I trust profit-able, therefore, to find out what Christ Him-self thought of the Bible. It Jesus Christ makes the Bible out to be the word of the llving God, inspired by Him, and containing nothing that would detract from its value as an infailible guide, you and I may confi-dently continue our faith in it. Bat, on the other hand, if Jesus Christ is at all doubt-ful-di we can discover that He is of a waver-ing mind about that book, or about any part of it, we should not hesitate to give it up or abandon our views regarding it. abandon our views regarding it

An Able Beview of the Bible.

Christ's judgment may be safely relied m. He is surely the best and ablest critic and reviewer of this Book. And you will bear in mind that He makes it the supreme and ultimate standard of appeal in religious bings. He does not, like some of the critics of our day, merely rank it with the human reason and the Church, which are admittedly reason and the Church, which are admittedly fallible and liable to err. How then did Jesus Christ regard this Book? First of all, he commended it as an object of study, and this he did without one word of cantion. His urgent, bold speech was: "Search the Scriptures." He did not say consult the reason, or the imagination, or the Church, but the book upon which the Church was founded. He does not warn you against possible errors, or against believing that Moses wrote the Pen-tateuch, or that Ezra wrote the books asagainst believing that Moses wrote the Pen-tateuch, or that Ezra wrote the books as-cribed to him, or that David wrote the Psalins, or that Solomon wrote the Proverbs, or Isaiah the book that bears his name. Whatever errors are in the Old Testament were in it when Christ said to the Jews in His day, "Search the Scriptures," and he did not deem them serious enough to warn against them.

The Scriptures Cannot Be Broken.

Again Jesus Christ declared the absolute tegrity of the Scriptures. Certain persons sme to Him with a difficulty of their They stated their case to Him and in His answer to them occur these words: "And thes criptures cannot be broken." He as-sumes this. It never enters His mind that

The church is under bond to teach religious truths. The children get-only the secular at the schools and the moral is left to the streets. It is the duty of the church to supply this deficiency for there is no school of moral and religious education outside the church." THOU SHALT NOT STEAL.

Across the street from airs. Oit, airs, Shoup's children, to the number of six, were all sick from eating sturgeon bought at Lardin & Smith's store nearby. She herself had been sick, but had recovered. Doctor Silvey had about 20 cases, the most serious of which were William Greed Rev. Charles Edward Locke continued his series of sermons on the "Decalogue" last evening in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church. The house was crowded and the attention close, indicating the interand his eight children; Carl Beier and three est of the congregation in the earnest words children, Etna, and John Duff and eight children. The doctor said it was curious that though the fish was eaten on Friday its of the speaker. Mr. Locke began his sermon by stating that John Ruskin well remarked that in 30 years he had never heard a sermon on the old-fashioned eighth commandment, effects were only becoming visible yesterday. John Noe and his wife and her sister,

"Thou shalt not steal," and yet during all that time doception and trickery were on the increase. He added: It is to rebuke the flagrant infractions of this piece of sinalitic legislation that I ad-dress you. The eighth commandment has a wider field than merely to prohibit the secur-ing by stealth of property which belongs to another. It thunders forth against dishon-esty, deception and dissimulation of every sort. The gospel of the eighth command-ment is sadly needed in modern affairs. The eighth commandment insitutes the right of property. This is the underlying principle without which civilization is im-possible. Unless this commandment is hon-ored, men cannot live together in social rela-tion. We have a right to possess and control what we have secured by our own legitimate habor. "Troperty is theft" may be the volf-erous cry of the erratic Communist, but it is not according to Sinai. This commandment stands by the frugal, industrious, God-fear-ing tailler. It forbids sinful extravagance and misserly penuriousness, for that is rob-bing ourselves of happiness and peace. It forbids irreligion, for that is robbing God. It forbids filse balances, short yardsticks, shoddy goods and misleading advertise-ments. It forbids adulterntions, usury and "Thou shalt not steal," and yet during all Mrs. Wetterstein, of Fourth street, were all prostrated vesterday. It forbids false balances, short yardëticks, shofdy goods and misleading advertise-ments. It forbids adulterations, usury and failure to return borrowed property. The eighth commandment is the foe of sharp and crafty business dealings; of the common practice of affecting prices by strat-egem. It is against trusts and monopolies and all combinations by which "the big fish ent up the little ones." the word of God can be broken. His whole assumption broadens itself into an infinite confidence in the absolute integrity of the word of God. Here He land opportunity of doing as Dr. Briggs and others are doing, that is making annotations and reservations. He might have said: "Of course I am now speaking of the moral and not of the histori-cal parts of the Bible when I say the Scrip-tures cannot be broken." But He speaks of it in its completeness and axys of it in so many expressed words, "The Scriptures cannot be broken." Surely Christ is a good witness. He cannot be convicted of giving failse testimony. This testimony I accept as final. His was the highest of all criticism in the best sense of the word. I know you can ask difficult things about the Bible. So you can about the commonest the word of God can be broken. His whole the Bible. So you can about the commones things around you-about matter and mind things around you-about matter and mind, as well as about the creations of the mind, as well as about the creations about the so-called "higher criticism" and about Prof. Briggs inaugural address and even about some of the productions of his critics. But asking questions is only a fool's play some-times. I am aware that you can point me places in the Bible and verses and facts of which I have no com-pleto exposition. But my argument to night is this: I take Christ for my author-ity in this matter. I know Him. I believe in Him. I have access to His chamacter. And because He, the Son of God, the Savior of the world, believed the Bible to be infallible I believe it too. believe it too

PROFESSOR BRIGGS' POSITION

Not Unlike That of the Unitarians, Says Rev. Dr. Townsend.

Rev. Dr. J. G. Townsend announced yesterday that two more Sundays will close his work here, and Rev. Howard MacQueary will preach on June 7. Mr. Townsend yes terday took for his topic "Goodness," and in concluding his address said: Traveling on a dark road in the country, couliave seen a man ahead of you with a antern. This man knew not that anyone was behind him who was walking in his light. Over some lonely road, along the path of some dark sorrow, by the way of some terrible tragedy, walks a brother un-seen by you, whose only hope, whose one bright star, is your goodness. Quench not, then, that beautiful light. Remember the words of Rim, who husbands all human in-fluence: 'Let your light, your goodness, so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.' In his remarks after the sermon, Dr. Town-send said that in a conversation with Prof. Swing last week, ho said to him: "Trofessor, when you came out of the church it was a novelty. It is no longer so now." "No," said Prof. Swing, "it is not, and I at and that Dr. Briggs, if he knew it, stands substantially on our ground." Dr. Townsend also said there were at least would welcome a trial and expalsion from the church as the best way to relieve them of the dilemma in which they found them-selves, of holding broad views in an ortho-dox pulpit. was behind him who was walking in his

LIFE AFTER DEATH.

Rev. E. R. Donehoo's Evening Sermon on Topic Very Often Discussed.

"The Dead Shall Live," Isaiah xvi., 19, R. V., was the text of Rev. E. R. Donehoo's seron last evening. During his remarks Mr Donehoo said:

The question of life after death is too serious to be dismissed lightly. If the longest, the happiest, the most successful lives have D nothing to show for it all when death touches them but a few feet of earth, would it not have been better never, to have been born? The dreams of youth are at best a mockery, the achievements of man in the days of his the achievements of man in the days of his pride and glory are vain and profilies, the mature relections of old age are utterly illusive if the grave is our final destiny. What would we not give if only we could mescal the lips of our dead, and learn from them of that deep mystery, hidden by an impenetrable ved from our view, which kiev have fully solved. What thrills of joy would fill us if we could eatch the sound of familiar voices across death's icy flood as-suring us that they had entered upon an-other existence happler than any that mortal ever conceived of in their fondest dreams. ings-wonderfully good value. the supervision of God, and this church has grown and ' prospered during the past 25 years under His eye. During the day sev-eral services were held at the church. The pastor talked on the "Relation of Covenant-ing and Communion." At 2:15 communion services were held, the pastor being assisted by Rev. Dr. George and Rev. D. C. Martin. To-day will be the last day of the quarter-centennial celebration of the church. At 7:45 r. m. addresses will be made by Rev. D. B. Wilson, D. D., Rev. Dr. W. J. Robinson, Rev. Dr. J. W. Sproull and Rev. Dr. I. N. Hays. Who has ever heard of Jacob Sarvert? Not many. A SERMON ON DREAMS.

Rev. Dr. Purves Talks About the Visions of

Bible History. Rev. George T. Purves, D. D., of the First Presbyterian Church, took for his theme at last evening's service, "Jacob's Dream." His text was taken from Genesis 28:16-17. In and went to work for the old 'bus line opening his address Dr. Purves mentioned driving to and from the city during the some of the dreams prominent in Bible his-tory, as used by God to communicate to some tory, as used by God to communicate to some of his people his instructions or expecta-tions. Jacob's dream proved the turning point in his life. Continuing his address, the paster dis-cussed the scientific causes for dreams, and not disputing them at all, said that God could bring this about to answer his pur-pose. He also discussed the superstition re-garding dreams at the present day. As usual Dr. Purves' address was exceedingly inter-esting and instructive. years, with the exception of one year he served in the army. He was a member of Knapp's battery, but, as he put it, he was "too lucky," never having been in an en-gagement. To-morrow Jake starts for the Soldiers' Home at Erie, where he will spend the balance of his days in ease and oujet. nuiet.
