ITALIAN ICE CREAM VENDERS RUN IN.

Plenty of Lively Police Work of Various Sorts All Over the City.

Mayor Gourley yesterday deme that he could engage in a physical as well as a written combat. Without forewarning he turned policeman, and created considerable excitement on Market street in endeavoring to stop a fight between a white man and a negro. About 7:30 o'clock Ernest Washington, a young colored man, got into a dispute with a bill poster named Grabely, carrying his pot of paste past the Fourth avenue an Market street corner. The two men clinched and were soon rolling about over the pavement. A large crowd gathered, but nobody

About this time Mayor Gourley was pass-ing along the other side of the street. Seeing the trouble he ran over. The bill poster wa on top and held young Washington pinned against the pavement like grim death. The Mayor caught the former by the shoulders and began pulling him off. "Don't pull me off, he's got a knife!" yelled

The Mayor looked down and saw a long blade in the hand of the colored man, who was vainly endeavoring to get his arm loose to use the weapon. The Mayor then turned his attention to the man underneath, and after a hard struggle succeeded in getting the knife out of his hand.

The white man was then hustled away and

The white man was then hustled away and the crowd that filled the street gave three cheers for His Honor as the colored man was led off to the patrol box with a bleeding lip and sorrowful countenance.

Washington arrived at Central station just as Judge Gripp was concluding the morning hearings and was released when it was shown that his opponent struck him first.

Mayor Gourley says he rather enjoyed the affair. He has not had a chance to exert his muscle for some years, and the occasion was to good to have been missed. It was at least a diversion from the kind of warfare he has been engaged in during the past few weeks.

It was believed for a time that the plucky little animal had met a watery grave, but several weeks ago the chirping sound was gladly heard in the baggage room. Evidently not liking his new quarters, the cricket transferred himself to the wash room, and now he has moved again and is heard under the stairway which leads to the dining room. Chief Clerk Crosby thinks the cricket is working toward the elevator, and once more will be found in his old home.

Judge White Directs Refused Wholesale License Applicants

TO THE COURT OF LAST RESORT.

His Reasons for Knocking Them Out at the Recent Hearings.

Probably some of the 43 applicants for Probably some of the 43 applicants for wholesale liquor licenses who went out of the presence of Judge White the other day, convinced that their path to a license was a flowery one, are disillusioned by this time. The Judge yesterday refused to grant rehearings asked by these rejected applicants, and gave reasons for his refusal and answered the exceptions taken specifically. The appellants hope to get such a declaration. The appellants hope to get such a declara-tion from the Supreme Court this time as will settle the points raised in the Pollard case, so that hereafter they will know what they can depend upon.

Judge White says the Court did not rule that it had absolute and arbitrary discretion and did not exercise it; that it assumed no power except such as it considered in strict conformity with the law, and had no intenconformity with the law, and had no inter-tion to run counter to the decision in the Pollard case; that the Court did not rule that it had power to judge of the necessity for license, did not pass on that phase and station the grounds of refusal in express terms; that in the matter of the three qualifications, citizenship, temperate habits and good moral character, the burden of proof is on the applicant, and he must satisfy the Court that he is a fit person for the business. An Applicant's Appearance Against Him."

An Applicant's appearance against Him."
The applicant's appearance may be presumptive evidence for or against him in two of the necessary qualifications, and in some instances, the Judg's states, parties appeared before the Court, who were manifestly under the influence of liquor; that although the Court has no right to refuse a wholesale license because it is considered unnessary in a locality named, yet its opinion is that it may properly imagine whether the application is made in good faith or whether as mere cloak to do an illegal retail business; if the latter it is a trick on the court and a fraud on the law.

if the latter it is a trick on the court and a fraud on the law.

In giving his reasons for refusing rehearings and reconsiderations, Judge White says: "After the decision of the Supreme Court in the Pollard case in 1883, all those who had been refused a wholesale license hast year obtained them under a misapprehension of that decision. The popular opinion was that a a wholesale license was a matter of right and the court had no discretion in the matter. That led to a flood of wholesale applications last year. More were granted than ever before existed in this county at any time or under any law. Quite a number, however, were refused, and the reasons for refusal given precisely the same as the reasons given in these cases, namely, that the applicant did not possess the qualifications required by law. Some of them were taken up to the Supreme Court and affirmed last fall. Notwithstanding that decision all who had o the Supreme Court and affirmed last fal Notwithstanding that decision all who ha license last year and many new ones applied for license this year. There were 63 applications for bottlers' license, 27 granted, 11 with drawn, and 25 refused. There were 333 applicants for wholesale license, 137 granted, 3 withdrawn and 160 refused.

Great Sources of Intemperance "The experiences of 1889 and 1890 showed that the small bottle and wholesale places were the greatest sources of intemperance and the evils of intemperance, and far worse than regular retail houses. They did not conduct a legitimate wholesale business, but sold by retail and carried on mainly a bottle, jug and small keg business in the neighborhood, violating nearly every law on the subject and influencing great evils upon the community. The police authorities of the cities and boroughs, and public sentiment everywhere, demanded the suppression of such houses. For that reason the Court this year was more strict in reference to wholesale licenses and more liberal as to retail. Although the Court has no right to refuse a wholesale license because it may be of opin-Although the Court has no right to refuse a wholesale license because it may be of opinion that a wholesale house is unnecessary in the locality, yet I think the Court may very properly inquire whether the applicant for a wholesale license is made in good faith to do a wholesale business, or as a mere cover to do an illegal business. The character and means of the applicant, his occupation, habits and business connections, the locality, the size and fitness of the house, and, if he has had a license, the extent of his business and how it was conducted, are all matters to be considered in this question. If the Court is satisfied from the evidence that the application is not made ne evidence that the application is not made a good faith, but for a fraudulent purpose, think the license should be refused, t is proper to say, however, that the refusal I licenses in these cases was not on that These applicants who have asked for a rehearing are no more worthy than scores of others who have not as yet made such requests. But if these are granted a rehearing no doubt many others will then come in, and we shall have weeks of work, with no assurance that, in the end, there will not be as much dissatisfaction as now. I have gone over my notes of testimony on all these cases, and have carefully considered all the reasons urged in support of these motions. I am not convinced of any error we committed as to the law, or of any mistake we made in the facts. Three of the applications are by Latz & Son, brewers, who ask for wholesale license in different places, having already been granted a brewer's license and also a bottler's license. There were 27 such applications by different brewers. The reasons for refusing them are stated in the order in the case of Pier & Dannals." These applicants who have asked for a re

The property referred to consists of 13 acres of land situate on Gore street and Centennial avenue, Sewickley, assigned by Mrs. Fleming in 1890 for the benefit of her husband's streditors. Mrs. Fleming avers she signed over the property to J. B. Reno without advise and without receiving any consideration for it. She now pleads that the instrument, as far as it purports to assign to Rewo her individual real estate, is void and of no effect because of the facts set forth, also that as a married woman she has no power to make such disposition. She asks for a restraining order to prevent the sale of the property, and she also prays for a decree making the assignment void and of no effect.

In the afternoon reports of committees were read. The matter of a national trademark was laid over until to-day. The policy committee recommended that there should be a representation of one delegate for every 10 members instead of 20. The Philadelphia delegation favored it, because it would bring in small towns, while the Western members opposed it on account of expense, and it was lost.

The committee also suggested that the question of establishing a distributing point for live and dressed stock should be discussed. On this question Mr. A. Gardner, of Dallas, Tex., made a lengthy address, in which he said the question was one of vital importance, not only to the association, but also to the consumer. The stockmen of the West are looking to the association to protect them from the Chicago monopolistic combine. This monopoly forces up prices and comes into active competition with every butcher. The speaker advocated that the association adopt measures whereby butchers can buy their stock direct from the Western fields. Mr. Gardner was interrived, and he will finish his address at this morning's session.

DOINGS OF A DAY IN LABOR CIRCLES

The Carpenters' District Council made an important move last night which will prevent a repetition in the future of such a sensation as was created within the past week. Instead of the entire district being under the control of one man there will hereafter be five special agents, each having a sub-district to look after. The meeting last night was a lively one, lasting until midnight. The Irwin case was was rehearsed from beginning to end. He was not present himself and no one offered to defend his action in relation to the position of the planing mill owners. The election followed, resulting in the selection of J. G. Snyder and Robert Davis for Allegheny; John Flattery for the lower section of the city; Theodore Stonerod for Lawrenceville and the East End, and William Ritchey for the Southside. Mr. Swartz was continued as Chairman of the Strike Committee and given power to appoint, temporarily, any additional agents that may be necessary to transact the business of the organization during the strike. Under the new order of things, the corps of special agents will begin to-day, as Mr. Snyder put it after the meeting last night, "to undo what has been done in the last month." Continuing, he said Mr. Irwin's action had not hurt the eight-hour fight, but the business of the District Council will need some straightening out before they can proceed. Mr. Swartz was seen after the meeting, he said the new agents would take charge at once and that for the present he will have general supervision over the district and give them any assistance he can. He would not state his reason for refusing the position himself, further than to say that he did not want to have anything to do with the job.

"What effect will this flurry have on the strike!" was asked of Mr. Swartz.

No Effect on the Present Strike,

No Effect on the Present Strike. "None at all. It is all over now, and with but very few exceptions our ranks are more solid than they were before this occurred. We are gradually winning, and the fallacy of the argument of planing mill owners is beginning to dawn upon the public. With but about three exceptions the planing mill people do not make any pretense at competing with outside cities. A majority of them handle the outside material and make the profits on it themselves."

Mr. Irwin was defended yesterday by members of the Master Builders' Association. Secretary Hamilton said the views expressed by the exagent tallied exactly with the sentiment conveyed by the General Secretary, P. J. McGuire, during his recent conference with the contractors.

E. A. Holmes, a prominent member of local union No. 230, which is said to be upholding Irwin, said yesterday afternoon that the latter had taken the proper stand exactly. "The only fault I have to find with Mr. Irwin," he continued, "is that he did not come out like the man he is and make the statement before the strike commenced. It would have saved a great deal of energy and the strike would have been settled."

"What effect will it have on the planing mill hands?"

"Why, every man would go back to work but for one thing. As long as the mill "None at all. It is all over now, and with

A Lively Meeting Anticipated. "Let them take down those rules and we will be back at work. There will be a lively meeting of our union on Friday night, and I will not be surprised if the union supports Mr. Irwin."

Mr. Swartz said yesterday the report that the employes of Murphy & Diebold's mill had returned to work was untrue, but the firm stated that two of the five who quit are now back at work and four new hands are on duty.

Three non-union bricklayers were brought Three non-union bricklayers were brought to the city yesterday, but were promptly induced to leave the city again. Work was continued on the new Davis Theater and the King building on Liberty street.

The first break in the ranks of the master plumbers has occurred. James Durning & Co. withdrew the new working rules, and allowed their men to go to work.

WITHDREW IN A BODY.

Miners of N. D. A. 135 Will Be Attack to the K. of L. Hereafter. The miners of N. D. A. 135 met in K. of L. Hall yesterday and decided to withdraw from the National District, form an inde pendent district and attach themselves to the Knights of Labor. President Hugh Mc-Laughlin was present, but declined to preside over the convention, as some grave in-sinuations had been made regarding his sinuations had been made regarding his official connection with the district. Secretary Boyd was not present.

John Reilly occupied the chair. Delegates were present from all the railroad mines and several of the river mines. The question of rates was discussed and it was decided that the present rate of 79 cents should be maintained, and a conference committee, consisting of Thomas Cook, Edward Hearty, Patrick Halloran, M. G. O'Neill and John Reilly, was appointed to meet the operators to make the figure permanent.

meet the operators to make the ngure permanent.

The withdrawal of the district from the National District was the subject of conversation in labor circles last night. The action is the result of dissatisfaction, several locals having grievances against the officers. The change will put new life into the Knights of Labor and a large increase will be made in the membership of D. A. 3, to which the new district will be attached.

Industrial Notes. CARNEGIE, PHIPPS & Co.'s rod mill at Washington will start to-day. RITER & CONLY have closed a contract for five 36,000-barrel tanks for the Standard Oil Company. A MAN named Duncan was arrested for molesting workmen at the new Davis The ater yesterday. THE Beaver Valley Street Railway has received $90,000 for their line from a company that takes charge July 1. The Pennsylvania Railroad has just delivers of the R. P. Synod to Be Er tained in Some Way or Other. Evidences of preparation for the R. P. mod, which meets in the Eighth Street Synod, which meets in the Eighth Street Church to-day, were visible on all hands yeterday. There was a considerable gathering, mainly ladies, at Dr. McAllister's church, but they said it possessed no more significance than was usual. There was considerable furbishing going on, and the ladies were as cheerful as though no gladiatorial combat were scheduled.

A gang of men was strengthening the building, in anticipation, by putting on an extra coat of paint. Several members were seen, but all said there was nothing new on the programme. There will be some friction on the score of entertaining the visiting heresy hunters, but they will find accommodations.

Antions.

The Western Reformed Presbyterian ministers, numbering at least 25 men, meandered into town last evening from the St. Louis express. There were no church members at the depot to receive them, and the majority went to the Old Home Hotel.

READY TO ERECT FOUNTAINS.

Chief Bigelow Waiting to Carry Out th Request of Mr. Cabot's Will. At the Humane Society meeting yesterday, S. L. Letters were received from New York and Philadelphia regarding the war on the docking of horse's tails. The New York people claim the honor of the first conviction. In Philadelphia the officials are afraid that they, will not be able to have snything more than fines placed on those whom they now have arrested, because the defendants are backed by Etkins and Widener, the street railway magnates, and the cases have again been opened. The contribution to the society amounted to $112.

od the Place in Western Penns Now Attracting Attention. No new town in Western Pennsylvania has ever attracted so much attention or called forth so many expressions of ap-proval as Ellwood. A prominent banker who visited the phenomenal town last week,

"It is the most perfect town site I've ever seen, and will soon come to be known as the most charming spot in the State."

A steel manufacturer from Chicago speaks his mind thus: "I am delighted. I'll come here often and bring my friends. For grand scenery, the Rhine does not compare with the Connoquenessing. That drive through Glen Park is a feast to the lover of nature, and the Motel Chivar is a gam." "It is the most perfect town site I've ever Glen Park is a feast to the lover of nature, and the Hotel Oliver is a gem."

A prominent lawyer expressed his opinion as follows: "I saw from a Pittsburg and Western car window the neatest hotel I had ever seen, and on inquiry I found it was the Hotel Oliver, at Ellwood on the Connoquenessing. I immediately called on Black & Baird, with them inspected the place and bought several lots."

A newspaper man thus voiced his sentiments on his first visit to Ellwood: "This is a perfect revelation. It is what Pittsburg needs more than any city in this country—a convenient place for people to escape to."

A shrewd and successful retired business man has this to say: "I've bought several lots at Ellwood and expect to purchase several more. It is bound to be a great place. I never saw natural advantages compare with those of Ellwood."

The sale of property to parties who are al-

with those of Ellwood."

The sale of property to parties who are already improving it is remarkable, and every day brings inquiries from distant points. Ten handsome residence lots facing Fourth street were sold yesterday to five parties, all of whom will build fine residences, each house to occupy two lots. Work on one of the dwellings was begun to-day. Scores of buyers will be there Saturday, May 30. The owners will not permit auction sales, but our representatives are always at Ellwood. es of the May Festival De Collect the Money Necessary to Pay Off the Deficit—The Unexpected Causes of

A meeting of the paironesses of the may Festival was held yesterday afternoon to consider means for paying off the deficit. Miss Kate C. McKnight was president, and several gentlemen were called into the con-sultation. Mr. Jenks read a statement and answered numerous questions. The sense of the meeting was that whoever was legally liable for this indebtedness it was of the meeting was that whoever was legally liable for this indebtedness it was the concern of all persons interested in Pittsburg's musical progress to see it wiped out. The patronesses decided to raise as much of the money as possible.

It was shown that the Festival management had reasonable hope of financial success, based upon the sale of 100 private boxes. But only 62 were sold, making the box sales $2.50 less than expected. This, together with the disadvantages of cold weather and the cost of the hall being greater than expected, caused the trouble.

The following committees were named: Executive Committee, Mrs. Henry Holdehip, Miss Harding, Mrs. C. L. Magee, Mrs. H. &. Porter, Mr. Charles H. Read and William B. Thompson, Printing Committee, Mrs. O. D. Thompson, Mrs. Ross Johnson, Mrs. John A. Harper and Mrs. Wharton McKnight; Advertising Committee, Mrs. C. L. Magee, Miss VanKirk, Miss A. S. clerk and Dr. A. G. Wallace as second plut-cipal.

At this meeting the Speer estate on Liberty street will be divided among the Presby-teries according to the provisions of the will. Several of the buildings were burned in the recent fires. The property was left to the church years ago, and at the expiration of that time it was to be sold for the benefit of certain church boards. Dr. Ewing having retired from the church, his appeal from the vote of censure, because he married his dead wife's sister, has been withdrawn.
