No flies on Baldwin. It may be necessary to explain this sta ment about the flies and Baldwin. The explanation will be given with extre

Who Are the Pitchers? The great question always is: Who are the pitchers? And yesterday was no excep tion. In reply to this very vital question, it was stated on several occasions that Bald win would pitch for the home team. Now, in several instances the fact that Baldwin was going to pitch, prompted the remark that "we'll lose."

Of course, there is always a certain amount of prejudice among baseball patrons just as there is among any other class of people, church-goers not excepted. But why there hould be a misgiving about Baldwin is a ear he has done extraordinary work in the pox, and about the most hits made off his lelivery has been six. Yesterday that figure These few words, in chess parlance, are see yesterday's game, didn't Mark do up the representatives of the city of beans, culture and Browning (not Pete)? Why, it was owing to the greatest luck in the world that owing to the greatest luck in the world that the visitors scored even their one run. Bald-win was just as tough to handle as it is to keep one's self warm without fire or heat when the thermometer is below zero. In a word the bulk of the credit of vesterday's victory must be given to Baldwin, because his pitching so paralyzed the opposing forces that they were never in the argument.

Brynan's Little Downfall. The people from the scene of the old time tea-riots put a young man named Brynan into the box to pitch for them. Brynan is a teher from the West; well built and terribly in earnest. His future may be a glorious one, but he fell among a gang of brigands to start with yesterday. He was afraid of them and sent the first three batters to base on balls. Three hits were subsequently made and with two or three other things altogether six runs were made and then the young man disappeared as a public performer. Getzein, that is the old time "Pretzel" came smiling out instead of Brynan, but while Pretz did fairly well he of Brynan, but while Pretz did fairly well he was not an unsolvable riddle by any means. On both sides the fielding was very good, indeed. There was only one fielding error on each side and they were very pardonable. No player's work could fairly be particularized because all did so well.

The runs were made as follows: In the first tuning Miller, Beckley and Browning each got his base on balls. With the bases full, Carroll knocked out a long and difficult fly to left centre field. Brodie missed it, that is, he dropped it, but the must was very excussible. As a result Miller and Beckley scored, and Browning and Carroll were on third and second respectively. Bierbauer then swiped out a single to middle, scoring Browning and Carroll. Haulon then made a single, and Mack's single seent each man a base onward. Had Lots of Fun.

There was plenty of fun at this stage. Mr. Reilly made his appearance, and, despite yesterday's affair, banged out a good single to left, scoring Bierbauer and Hanlon, and

In the third inning Bierbauer led off and ched Getzein up for a nice single. A base on balls, a sacrifice hit by Mack and a wild on balls, a sacrifice hit by Mack and a wild throw by Tucker scored Bierbauer. In the fifth inning a single by Hanlon and Reilly's double earned another run. In the seventh Carroll's two-bagger and a single by Bierbauer sent one more home, and in the eighth Baldwin led off and thumped the ball clean over Brodle's head for a home run.

The only run of the visitors was scored on Getzein's base on balls, Lowe's single and the attempt of Lowe to steal second. The score:

JOINS THE BOSTONS.

Harry Staley to Pitch for the Be

Trouble With Jimmy Galvin. And Harry Staley is to go with the Boston team. That was settled yesterday. The ne-gotiations between him and the Brooklyns fell through, at least they were never like materializing, because Harry's figures were too high. The Boston management think well of Staley, and virtually closed the bar-He gets a substantial increase on his salary paid by the local club. His figures here were $2,500, and it is understood that he is to re-ceive $3,900 from Boston for the balance of the season. He will likely pitch against the local team to-morrow.

ceive $3,900 from Bostom for the balance of the season. He will likely pitch against the local team to-morrow.

But if all reports are true there is another like difficulty between the local club and another pitcher. This time it is Galvin. He was not at practice last Friday or Saturday, and only a short time Monday. An official of the club stated yesterday that Old Sport is not doing the square thing; but Jimmy's side of the case could not be heard yesterday. At any rate, it was his turn to pitch yesterday and he was not on deck.

There are various rumors as to the cause of his trouble, and the rumors intimate that his case is similar to that of Staley's. The directors of the club have determined to have the team under control at all hazards, and it may be that more will be heard of Galvin's case. It will be a great pity if circumstances compel his release, and it is to be hoped that matters between him and the club will be fixed up to-day.

In to-day's game King and Clarkson will be the pitchers, and they ought to be a great source of attraction.

Manager Hanlon last evening stated that everything was certainly all right between himself and Galvin. The manager said that Jimmy had worked so hard already that it was only fair to give him a little rest while the younger men were in good form. Hanlon wants it plainly understood that there is

Howard Earle, the first baseman of the Min-neapolis club, entered the ranks of the married men at Chicago yesterday. He was married to a West-side belle. "They say that there's nine on a side in a game of baseball," muttered Umpire Tim Hurst the other day, "but when you come to find out, it's 18 to 1; that's what it is," Baldwin's home run hit was clean off the bat end, and the ball flew extremely high. Had it been anything like a liner it would have been the longest hit on the home grounds. THE J. CAPTAIN FRANK ADAMS and M. B. Levitt, of Brownsville, are in the city purchasing suits, bats etc., for their ball team. The latter want to play any of the good amateur nines of Pittsburg.

A CORRESPONDENT writes this paper seriously necommending President O'Neil to have the large signs taken down from the ball ground fences on Browning's account. It is claimed that these signs cause Peic to strike out. It was the case in Cleveland, and when the picture of a huge bull was obliterated from the fence Pete lined 'em out.

The Trotters Drew a Very Good Crowd of Admirers Yesterday.

RACING EVENTS AT MANY OTHER POINTS

OPENING OF THE SPRING MEETING

Straight heats settled the trotting events at Homewood, and the backers of the favorites now wish they hadn't. Notwithstanding the threatening weather and poor card offered, the attendance was larger than at any opening day of a spring meeting held at the park for years. At first it looked as though the crowd would be exceedingly slim, but the last train carried several hundred people to the scene of sport. Had the sun been out in the morning, instead of waiting until the racing hour was past, there is ing until the racing hour was past, there is no doubt but that a larger crowd would have been out to see the hor

It was given out that Legal Test, a bay stallion representative of the Prospect Hill stock farm, was to be a winner, and he was almost an equal favorite with Jim Graham at the outset, but he never got closer to the ad than fourth place. In the first race five horses were entered, but only three started. Noble A was said to have gone a mile in 2:20, but he didn't seem able to hold his own well. After considerable holding back, they were given a fair start, and Jimmy C immediately took the Past the first quarter it was Jimmy C, Minet and Noble A. Just before the half was reached, the little mare gradually went by reached, the little mare gradually went by Jimmy C, and for the last half mile it was a procession. In the other heats the brace became a procession from the start. Minet took the lead from the first, and simply went around with the others following.

The only good finish was in the last heat of the 2:2 trot in which Jim Graham and Johnny B did battle and the latter won by a head. In the opening heat Graham got a lead as far as the quarter; but at the bridge Johnny B jogged around him and then went home without a struggle, with Graham second. After that Johnny B took the lead from the start and held it to the finish. In the last heat, however, he had a struggle. Apparently with ease he kept his place at the head of the procession until the stretch was reached, when the favorite made one supreme effort to redeem the confidence of his friends. At the distance pole he was at his adversary's heels and gained from that on inch by inch, but he was unable to beat it out and Johnny B won amid the shouts of his admirers. The summaries follow:
