EQUALITY IN CHRIST.

Visiting R. P. Ministers Filled the Local Pulpits Yesterday.

SOME TALK ABOUT THEIR TROUBLES

And Those of the Other Protestant Churches of the Country.

SMALL BITS OF RELIGIOUS ADVICE

Local Reformed Presbyterians were yesterday preached to three times during the day by ministers in attendance upon the present session of the Synod. Rev. J. R. J. Milligan's pulpit in the Allegheny R. P. Church, North Diamond and Sandusky streets, was occupied in the afternoon by Rev. J. M. Foster, of New York. He argued that the churches representing the Kingdom of Christ were not accomplishing sufficient work, because they would not work in union, and the beloved God was troubling the church because they would not work in unison. Then he said: "Hence the Congregationalists have their Andover trouble, the Presbyterianshave their Briggs trouble and the Reformed Presbyterians have their present complication. I believe God is back of these disturbances and they will continue until all churches are made All have the same informing Differences in creeds are more seem ing than real. What is needed is more religion. Differences are only walls, and the time is coming when the motive of life will rise above the wall and make one open sea for all to sail into the heaven prepared for all, and may God speed the day." Then he said that the only reason why Covenanters were not allowed to go into the Masonic fraternity was because a man could not go into a lodgeroom and take his Savior with him, or take blasphemous oaths. One should stay out, also, because it only takes time and money that should go to the church. "Why are members of our church forbidden to take political privileges?" he asked. "Simply because they would have to vote to sustain a constitution that does not recognize God, and laws that are direct violation of God's law."

Some Ministerial Tribulations.

Rev. J. I. Thompson, of Utica, O., filled the pulpit at the Central R. P. Church, Allegheny, yesterday afternoon. His text was, "If ye be my disciples ye have tribula-tions." He said that a minister had dual existence. One as a child of earth and one as a child of God. The tribulations, he said, did not come because he was in a material world or in the social world, for companionship with Christ made these more

"A minister," said he, "is subject to an earthly sovereign as well as a heavenly King. He has dealings on earth and deal-ings in heaven. He has dealings with angels, for ministering angels are sent to the faithful. The tribulations come, not because he lives in these two, but because these two are out of harmony; it is because of the minister's physical existence in the world. Earthly claims are the greater, but. the heavenly commands must be paramount. A faithful man must come in contact with the world, and therefore be hated because he has to set himself against the world. He is brought into conflict with evil, and often into conflict with those who claim to be disciples of Christ. He then denounced unnecessary Sunday labor, and continued: "Anyone who talks against Sunday labor is called a bigot—a name not unknown to the ministry of this denomination. Our tribulation comes be-cause the finger of scorn is pointed at us. we are loyal to Christ we can't get brough the world without persecution. so to-day for those who set themselves gainst prevailing tendencies."

Sermon by One of the Seven. Yesterday afternoon at the First Re-ormed Presbyterian Church, Rev. H. W.

CLOSED A SERIES OF SERMONS.

Rev. Charles E. Locke Preached Last Night

That was all the story of their crime the records showed, but they are really con-fined for attempting to abduct a pretty 17-year-old girl. The attempt was made in an on the Tenth Comma Rev. Charles Edward Locke preached his last sermon on the Decalogue to a large congregation last evening in the Smithfield open boat in the Ohio river Saturday night, and the girl twice jumped into the river, risking her life in order to escape from her Street Methodist Episcopal Church. His subject was "Thou Shalt Not Covet." He said: "Covetousness is desiring as our own The girl is Mollie Hanlon, and her parent that for which we are not willing to render live on Stockton street near Twenty-sixth. an equivalent. The other comma On Saturday she went to a picnic at Mcdeal with the head and hands and tongue Kee's Rocks, in company with another girl. By some chance the two became separated, and feet, while the tenth commandment enters into the inner being and commands the thoughts of men. A man will never be any better than that about which he thinks. He will think about that which he sees and and Miss Hanlon arrived at the dock just in time to see the last boat pull out for the city. It was 9:30 o'clock, and there was no way for her to reach home. She then decided to cross the river to Manchester and take a reads and talks. One never recovers from a bad book or a vicious drama-he never entirely recovers his self-respect. A reader may be profited by some of the writings of Alexandre Dumas and Count Tolstoi, but when these authors dare pollute the cur-rents of literature, the careful man will re-first to be paired and endinimized. street car home. rents of interature, the careful man will re-fuse to be poisoned and victimized. "The Tenth Commandment is against grasping and greed, against lotteries and gambling. It forbids the avaricious quest for the Almighty Dollar and the idiotic worship of the golden calf. It is against business alliances which give one partner all the money and the other all the experi-ence. It is against ence. It is against dealing in futures and all sorts of operations in business which give more than fair compensation for toil. Covetousness bribes legislatures, emasculates city governments, defiles courts and juries and precipitates anarchy and ruin. It landed slaves upon our shores in 1620 and introduced a struggle which cost our nation six billions of money and 650,000 noble citizens. There is no agency manipu-lated by the enemy of souls which destroys so many lives. The way of covetous-ness is crowded with travelers and leads straight to hell. The antidote for covetousness is the presence of Christ in the heart. 'Man looketh upon the outward ap-pearance, but God looketh upon the heart.' He who places Christ upon the throne of his affections will be aided in his honest effort to be obedient to the mandates of the tenth commandment and the decalogue." DR. TOWNSEND'S LAST SERMON. Farewell Talk to His Congregation Be fore Leaving for Jamestown.

Rev. Dr. Townsend yesterday preached his last sermon before the Unitarian congregation. He leaves to day for his new harge in Jamestown, N. Y. Yesterday's subject was "The Power of Our Liberal Gospel." He said: "The charge is often made that the new thought on religion is a glittering negation, too much in the air for common men-that it lacks aggressive power. That the new thought is gaining may be seen on every hand by its impression on all the churches. The new thought in its attitude is open and inquiring; it is in sympa-thetic touch with the scientific method and trusts entirely the human reason. Man when free is safe, and only then. The churches say that man is safe when tied to the old creeds; we say he is safe when fully free old use all the powers he has in all the wide Reed, of Youngstown, preached from the subject, "Equality in Christ." Mr. Reed is one of the young men of Reformed Pres-byterian persuasion who are too liberal in their ideas of the great American Republic to suit the ballefo of the majority of the subject, subject and the wide fields of divine opportunity. Hold the humming bird in your hand, it will soon be a tiny mass of bruised flesh and bloody feathers, but open your hand and it flies away a floating flower, the symbol of grace and humming bird in your hand and it flies and bloody for the symbol of grace away a floating flower, the symbol of grace and beauty. "The new thought has a large affirmation of God—not the old idea of a personal be-ing, a magnified man, but sees that He is one and that He is commander in the universe. God is good, else there would not have been the blossoming out of the moral nature of man. Our thought of Jesus is that He is our brother, and our desire is not to make Him more than man, only more manly—to Him more than man, only more manly-to show he was the natural blossom of a great ethical movement. We revere Him, but we do not call Him God. "We do not think the Bible is made, but "We do not think the brote is indee, but making; its founts of inspiration are never dry. We cannot unsin our sins, yet the universe is full of healing, and of restora-tive forces. If I hold my finger in the fire it is burned, but when I take it out nature it is burned, but when I take it out nature sets her forces at once to work to heal it."

their ideas of the great American Republic to suit the beliefs of the majority of the ministers of their Church, and are on trial for having views too broad for the good of the Church. He was introduced by the pastor, Rev. Nevin Woodside, as a man who had an and a some a man a the who had gained some prominence in the church recently, but he was welcomed to the pulpit as an able teacher of God's Mr. Reed is a young man, but is evidently a very deep thinker on Biblical questions. He is also quite an eloquent speaker and holds his audience interested from first to last. In the services yesterday he made no reference to the Synod in conference now, except in his opening prayer, in which he asked that divine guidance be given them to set all things to rights. His text was taken from Colossians, iii., 11: "Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free; but Christ is all and in all."

From this text he preached a plain and interesting sermon on the theme that there are no masters in Christ in this world, but the ministers are His servants in teach ing the word of God.

Sermons in Other Churches.

At the Eighth Street Church services were held in the morning, Rev. M. A. Gault occupying the pulpit. In the after-noon Rev. R. C. Wylie preached, and in the evening the congregation was addressed by the Rev. M. R. Somerville. All the gentle men preached interesting sermons, but little reference was made to the Synod, and nothing was said of those subjects most

Out-of-town ministers addressed the congregations of other churches. In the Ridge avenue, Allegheny, church, Rev. F. A. H. Wylie and Rev. L. C. Sampson preached. At Parnassus Rev. John Armor and Rev. D. H. Coulter occupied the pulpit morning and evening. In Wilkinsburg, Rev. J. S. T. Milligan and Rev. J. F. Carson addressed large congregations.

TEMPTATION'S POWERS.

Rev. E. R. Donchoo Tells of Different Ways of Looking at Crime.

Rev. E. R. Donehoo took as his text last evening, "Lead us not into temptation." He said: "The necessity of offering such a prayer must be felt often by every honest person in the world. One cannot mingle much among the lowly and erring, and listen to their sad recitals of sore temptation and desperate resistance and final defeat, without being constrained to cry out, 'Lead me not into temptation.' It is all very easy to talk about honesty, when there very easy to talk about honesty, when there is no overpowering inducement to wrong-doing presented. No great amount of courage is demanded to pass a show window where tempting viands are exposed for sale, when we know that a good, square meal awaits us at home, or that we have ample means for gratifying our appetites. But to be hungry and homeless and friendless and penniless when the temptation is offered is to be swayed by an all-conquering in-clination to appease the grawings of hunger in unlawful ways at the risk of detection and punishment.

and punishment. "If we could only witness the dread conflict, the despairing struggle against pas-sion, the bitter yielding to the sin which invoked upon the head of the tempted one the seom and indignation of the wanpied one strangers to such a terrible experience, we would show more of the Christlike spirit in our attitude toward them, and less of that would show more of the Christicke spirit in our stitude toward them, and less of that unfeeling selfishness which so mars our poor humanity. If those who look with disdain upon the miserable unfortunates huddled in our jails, or on those who hesi-tate to enter the house of God for very shame of their shortcomings—if they could only know something of the ways perforce trodden by these wretched ones, they would send up this prayer with a feeling to which

CHRISTIAN TOLERATION.

Rev. R. E. Williams, of Mansfield. At the Baptist Church, Mansfield Valley, Rev. R. E. Williams, pastor, preached yesterday morning a very practical sermon, founded on Romans xiv, 7 and 8. Subject, "Christian Toleration." He said that Paul, the great apostle, with all his zeal and enthusiasm, was the same person with the same strong convictions after his conversion to Christianity as he was when a faithful ad-herer to Judaism; but that his forbearance herer to Judaism; but that his forbearance and sympathy for his Christian brethren were imbued with so much of Christ's spirit as to cause his charitableness and toleration to go out in full and kindly consideration toward those who were prone to indifferent failings. St. Paul considered a personal re-sponsibility, conscientiousness and relation-ship to and with God of far vaster import-ance than formalities and religious customs. The living principle—the spiritual life—is paramount to the outward appearance and the possible ornamental array. True, we are responsible to one another, but more so to God. In Him we live, and unto Him we die.

die Christianity is so practical—it is not a mythical science or hidden principle. To live in and to Christ is the only secret; and live in and to Christ is the only secret; and those who live thus are conscious of the living and spiritual relationship that arises above the tendencies to scorn and fault-finding. This spirit never carries the balance finding the brethren always want-ing-never points out their weak tenden-cies, and never glorifies in their unhappy downfall; rather, it will consider the condi-tions and surroundings and with a helpful advice will encourage them to arise and lead them to the better way. Such a life makes life worth living, and gives light and consolation in death. consolation in death.

SERVICES FOR THE DEAD.

The Fallen Heroes Remembered at the Liberty Street M. E. Church.

Last evening at the Liberty Street M. E. Church services were held in commemoration of the services of the soldiers in the late war. The Union Veteran Legion atinte war. The Union Veteran Legion at-tended in a body and listened to stirring patriotic addresses by men who faced death with them in the same battles. Rev. Col-onel John A. Danks, popularly known among his old comrades as the fighting par-son, made the leading address of the even-ing, and in closing declared that he hoped before very long to see the "United States of Canada" become a nation as is the case with the United States of Benzil

GOT IN OUT OF THE WET.

How an East End Resident Borrowed a Stranger's Umbrella.

There was an angry man in town yester-day. Beyond a doubt there were several angry men, but the one in question was literally as well as figuratively kicking himself, and between kicks he managed to tell his story. "I have learned something," said he, "and though I am always glad to gain valuable experience, I object to becoming too smart. Some people think it is bright to be smart, but I don't think so.

A Practical Sermon Preached Testerday by

to be smart, but I don't think so. "I had an errand in the East End on Sat-urday," continued the kicker, "and, as I did not know exactly where I wanted to go, I was sort of at sea after leaving my car. But as luck would have it, a man got off the car at the same place. I hoisted my um-brella and held it over the man'shead while I inquired where I wanted to go. He hes-itated a moment, and then said he could direct me, as he was going that way. I gave him the benefit of my umbrella-rec-iprocity for the information-and we direct he, as he was going that way. I gave him the benefit of my umbrella-rec-iprocity for the information-and we walked along several blocks. At last he reached his own door and then, after scratching his head a moment, de-clared that he had really made a mistake. The gentleman for whom I was looking lived just four doors the other side of Fifth avenue, where I got off the car. The man was very sorry he had taken me out of my way, and offered every apology. Now since I've begun to think about it, I have decided that it was only a scheme to get home without getting wet. I'm so mortified I'd commit suicide if it were not against the law, and I don't like the idea of men viewing my corpse for $1 a view."

CHARACTER AND CULTURE

Will Be Referred to by Father Sheedy This Evening at the Columbus Club.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Columbus Club this evening, and which will be the last until September, Rev. Morgan M. Sheedy will read a very interesting paper on the subject of "Character and Culture." The meeting will open at 8 o'clock and a numerous attendance is looked for in re-sponse to the invitation of the announce-ment.

No Service at the Jail.

Rev. E. R. Donehoo was unable to hold services at the county jail yesterday after-noon and the inmates did without their usual sermon and music.
