GLEDHILL CENSURED.

The Responsibility Is Fixed in but One of the Sturgeon Cases.

EXPERTS GET DIFFERENT RESULTS.

Hugo Blanc Says All Fish That Die Naturally Are Poisonous.

COOPER IS HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

The Coroner's inquest in the sturgeon cases was closed yesterday. In that of Henry Broge, the jury censured George H. Gledhill for negligence in not more carefully examining the sturgeon before it was cured. In the case of Thomas Rourke the jury find that he died from eating storgeon, purchased from parties unknown. The whole matter hung on the evidence of whether the sturgeon was in a state of decomposition before it was cured. As to this question there was a differ ence of opinion between the two experts, James O. Handy and Prof. Hugo Blane. The former on Thursday said he believed de-composition had commenced before the curing process was begun, while yes-terday, when Prof. Hugo Blanc took the stand, he said it would be impossible to tell whether the sturgeon had been in a state of decom-position before it was cured. He said he had been unable to discover such to be the case, and said he believed it to be impossible for anyone else to tell what condition the fish inv have been in before it was cured.

One strong feature of these inquests ju come to light yesterday is the fact that Carl Neilson, a fish dealer of Sandusky, O., had created quite a scene at the opening of the inquest on Thursday, which barred him from giving any testimony. He had been strengthening the inner man with material pirits. When he arrived at the Coroner's office, it is stated, he was in such a jolly umor that he insisted on falling over the railing, and wound up by throwing a paper at the Coroner's head. As a result he was taken into the Coroner's private office and kept there until the inquest was adjourned.

Only an Expert Could Detect Decay.

Prof. Hugo Blanc was the only witness exunined yesterday. He said he had made an examination of the fish offered him, and in color and taste they were apparently good, in fact, so fair that an ordinary dealer could in fact, so fair that an ordinary dealer could not detect any decomposition. He said he had to test the sturgeon to discover the trace of poison. He found traces of the products of decomposition. There are about 40 of these and only two-thirds of them are poison-ous. In fact, he said, they might form and then pass away. He believed that heat would in most cases destroy them. Then continuing, he said: "The methods of handting fish in America are all wrong. Any fish that is allowed to die is more or less poisonous. A fish should be killed as soon as caught. We would not eat a cow that had died a mat-ural death, or a sheep, or a chicken, or any other king of an animal that has died in that manner. Poison is generated in all of them and it is the same in the fish. All fish are more or less trained, but just to what degree this sturgeon was tainted when mercined it is the same in the fish. ilsh are more or less tainted, but just to what degree this sturgeon was tainted when received it is impossible to say. All fish should be killed as soon as taken from the water. In fact, no curer of fish could afford to place a fish that he knew was decompos-ing in his smokehouse, for it would taint all the other fish hanging there, just the same as one rotten apple will start rot in all the good ones near it. In fact, these products of decomposition can be found in nearly all food and many a person says he is suffering from temporary indigestion when, in fact, he has only caten fish or some other food which has commenced to decay. Much of the indigestion is due to what we have eaten rather than to any discased condition of the the indigestion is due to what we have eaten rather than to any discased condition of the stonnch. It would be impossible for me to state whether the fish had been properly cured, but in this case the usual methods seem to have been pursued." In his charge to the jury the Coroner only ran over the testimony, describing how the people had died, and said that Mr. Gledhill bed curred the storemen as soon as be had had cured the stargeon as soon as he had received it. He also read the statement that, although Mr. Gledhill did not himself examine the fish, he was supposed to have mon to attend to that who knew their busi-

Mr. Gledhill Censured in One Case,

The jury retired for about 20 minutes, and hen returned with verdicts in both cases. The one on that of Henry Broge reported that his death was caused by eating stur-germ which had been in a state of decompo-sition before it was cured, and that

A DAY IN THE COURTS. Irs. Sarah A. Fleming Wants a Releas From Her Assignment-John Reno Re-signs as Assignee of Fleming Bros-Criminal Court Opens,

A preliminary injunction was granted yes-terday in the case of Mrs. Sarah A. Fleming against John B. i eno, assignce, of Fleming Bros. The sult was brought to restrain the assignce from selling the undivided property of Mrs. Fleming, which she assigned in an effort to save her husband and son's busi-ness.

The court allowed Mr. Reno to resign as ness. The court allowed Mr. Reno to resign as nessines of Fleming Bros. Mr. Reno, in a petition to the court, said that differences had arisen between the assignors a one of the creditors, and as he was a orin-law of Cochran Fleming, he thought that it would be for the best interests of the credi-tors if he should resign his trust.

The suit is an issue awarded by Register Conner for jury trial to test the validity of a codicil to the will of Martha Brown. The codicil bequeathed a house and lot to the plaintiff in the case, who was the house keeper for the decedent. The heirs of Mrs. Brown, however, contested the codicil, maintaining that undue influence was used to induce the making of it.
