THEIR NEW ENTERPRISE.

From the Fields. The topic of conversation among the people interested in the oil business is theaction of the producers' delegates at Bradford. It is the first step which the producers have taken in which they have publicly anounced their intentions. For a year or more they have been reorganizing theold Producers' Protective Association, and have taken every possible means to throw around their councils the utmost secrecy. They are now coming boldly to the front. They have elected and published the names of the men who are to lead the new enterprise, and have announced that they will apply for charter for a company with a capital stock Yesterday's Local Features. of $600,000. Their scheme has been known to all who follow the oil business for some time.

The Pittsburg producers were beaming smiles yesterday when asked about the present status of theaffairs of their association, and with faraway looks seeemed to see visions of $2 oil and untold wealth. Most of them were silent regarding the situation, but a few were inclined to talk. Among the latter was a producer from the upper country who is close to the inner councils of the P. P. A. Upon condition that his name would not be used he made the following statement:

would not be used he made the following statement:

"Since the ice has been broken and the producers are about ready to go it alone, I do not see any harm in giving you a few facts. In the first place the P. P. A. was never so thoroughly organized as it is now. Missionaries have been at work among the oil men for the past two years, and as a result there are now about 3,500 oil producers who are members of that organization. This you will readily see includes about 35 per cent of the men engaged in the business. The great trouble has been heretofore that the oil producers would never hang together.

An Unfortunate Fault Obviated.

An Unfortunate Fault Obviated. That fault has lost them every enterprise

The First Act on the Programme. near Pittsburg and the laying of pipe lines into the adjacent oil fields. The next step contemplated is a pipe line to the seaboard, and one to the lakes. Cleveland has about been decided upon as the northern point for the latter. A refinery will be constructed there and the refined product shipped to Chicago and the entire West. The rivers will be used to get into the Southern markets from Pittsburg. As I have stated, every man is pledged to turn his oil into the associated company. If it is necessary to put the new concern on a soild basis the producer must be satisfied to take 65 or 75 cents a barrel for his oil, and possibly much less. At the same time the market price may be 90 cents or $1. That is the present status of affairs as far as I am at liberty to tell you."

Colonel Dwyer, of the Kanawha Oil Company, said: "It is simply a combination of business men who are bent on making as much money out of their business as they should do so legitimately. We did not organize for the purpose of fighting the Standard, but to carry on a refining and producing business.

The Octopus Has the Same Privilege. we can get more money out of the business by refining the oil ourselves, and have taken this method to go about it."

Fred Fisher, of the Fisher Oil Company, when spoken to on the subject replied: "I have been in the oil business 32 years, in fact since I was a boy, and have seen several combinations of producers go to pieces, but I confidently believe that the present one will be a success. There are better men at the head of it than ever before. The producers are thoroughly in earnest, and although they have little to say to outsiders are working hard to accomplish their aim. We believe we can get $1 50 or $2 00 for the crude and besides make a good profit on the refined. There are pienty of London and New York capitalists who have offered to build refineries and lay pipe lines if we would only guarantee to give them all the oil we produce. In several of the European countries there is no duty on crude, while there is on the refined. Thus, you see, a barrel of crude in New York is worth a barrel of refined. The crude can be shipped into the foreign countries free, be refined there, and the by-products will pay for the expense of refining."

a man to stand by the organization under all circumstances. He also pledges himself to turn all of his oil into the lines of the new company as soon as it is ready for operation. Now for another fact. There have been subscribed by these 3,500 men 8,500,000 to carry out their plans. I know several who have subscribed $25,000 each. Some people might say it is easy enough to subscribe, but at the meeting in Pittsburg about three weeks ago, when P. M. Shannon was elected trustee, it was decided to make an assessment of 40 per cent. This has already been done, and the amount, nearly $640,000, has been paid in. In 60 days another assessment of 20 per cent will be made and the other assessments will be levied before the end of the year. They are so situated now that they must stick together, situated now that they must stick together, or, as John Hancock said to the other signers of the Declaration of Independence: 'Gentleman, we must all hang together, or we will all hang separately.'
