BUSINESS IS EBBING.

Bradstreet's Draws a Gloomy Picture of the Trade Situation.

MAY, 1890, THE HIGH WATER MARK.

A Better Demand for Iron, but Prices Still Remain Unchanged.

MONEY MARKETS ARE RATHER TIGHT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] NEW YORK, June 5 .- Careful inquiry fails to reveal the data necessary to prepare the rose-colored reports concerning the condition of general trade which have appeared in some quarters of late. Special telegrams to Bradstreets show quite conclusively that general business now is, on the whole, declining rather than expanding in volume. This, together with the decrease in the total volume of traffic for five months of 1891 as compared with 1890, must be explained away before optimistic trade reports regarding the existing situation can be accepted. May bank clearing totals point unmis takably to a widespread subsidence of activity in general trade and speculation throughout the country. In May, 1890, bank clearings reached high water mark. Chicago shows the only gain last month, as compared with May, 1890, worth mentioning. Total May clearings at 57 cities were $4.810;-254,833, a decrease of 18.7 per cent. New York City's clearings fell off 23 per cent., while at 56 other cities the decrease was 10.8

Additional Signs of Dullness.

To this exhibit must be added generally quiet raw wool markets (except Cincinnati), little doing in leather and hides, the trade waiting to see what will happen to rubber prices; the demand for coal moderate, prices heavy and further restriction (which thus far has not restricted) ordered as to the anthracite output for June; continued depression in the iron and steel industries, despite reported expressions from some centers of fairly satisfactory demand," etc.; nothing like the volume of lumber moving customary at this season; a drouth in the lower Mississippi Valley, which not only restricts general trade, but at the moment seriously breatens growing crops.

In brief, buying in most lines continues very consessuative, and in some portions of the West there is a disposition to restrict credits until money is easier. The usual summer dullness is showing itself at several Wheat and corn crop reports are generally favorable. Raw and refined sugars are 1/10 lower on decreased demand. There is ss doing in drygoods at wholesale and trade is only fair for the season.

But Little Life in Stock Speculation.

While stock speculation maintains a strong undertone on the crop prospects, the stock market is extremely dull. The financial outlook, the policy of the Treasury regarding the maturing 414 bonds, gold ship-ments, rumors of foreign financial troubles and European selling of stock all tend to discourage speculative activity. Exports of wheat (and flour as wheat) continue rela-

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review says:
While the hesitation in business has not ceased and decided activity is hardly expected until the close of the fiscal year, it continues to be a matter of surprise and ongratulation that the money markets and rade have been so well sustained, in spite of heavy exports of gold. The New York money market has been easy, rates on call opping from 316 to 3 per cent, with avy receipts from the interior.

Reports from other cities show that money tighter at St. Louis, tight at Nashville, rmer at New Orleans and Pittsburg, in hardly adequate supply at Cleveland, not stringent but affected by distrust on account of city finances at Philadelphia, firm at Boston, in good demand in Chicago and Milwaukee, but with supply for all legitite needs and easy at all other points re

Shoes, Drygoods and Iron.

Prade is not very active, but almost verywhere hopeful. Failures at Boston ave made shoe manufacturers cautious. Hides are easy; drygoods quiet, and wool sales moderate. No life is seen in iron. Wool is dull, though some concessions are made by Western holders.

At Pittsburg, the rise in iron is prevented by the shut-down of Mahoning and She-nango furnaces. Window glass is fairly ac-tive, but flint dull. At Cleveland iron is in more demand; trade is good in drygoods, bardware and groceries, and dull in shoes. Some activity is noted at Cincinnati in lothing, and at Detroit trade is up to last year's in volume, though the late season has imple the wool movement slower than usual. Throughout the West and South the fine erop prospects give encouragement. Almost the only complaint now coming from New In the Northwest continuous rains have made the prospect unsurpassed.

From the Western Metropolis.

Chicago reports larger receipts than a year ago of flour, wheat, cheese, hides, and three times as much wool; smaller receipts of oats, barley and lard, and but one-third as much of cured ments, with a full trade in drygoods and bright prospects generally. St. Louis shows a fair volume of trade; Milwankee great improvement from rains, and St. Paul also, while at Minneapolis the lumber trade is unsurpassed. At Omaha and Denver trade is fair, and at Kansas City dull because of too wet weather.

At Louisville the outlook is good, but at Nashville a heavy drygoods failure causes some depression, and there is no improve-ment at Memphis. New Orleans reports trade dull; cotton in fair demand, sugar netive, molasses dull and rice quiet and lower. At Savannah trade improves, and Lanksonville is quite steady. Iron Demand Better, but Prices the Same.

In the great industries there is a better demand for iron, as yet without change in prices. More orders for structural iron come from the break in the building strikes. Especial caution appears in the boot and shoe trades, and abuses of credit are being cor-rected. In drygoods it is noted that there is no talk of prices, as usual, on the eve of a new season in men's wearing goods, and busis not what was expected, but the orers for dressings are far in excess of any revious season. Sales of some cotton goods re recorded at the lowest prices ever made. Wool moves slowly, but yielding at the wool prospect. In breadstuffs the decline continues, and wheat is 2½ cents lower; corn, 2 cents; oats, 1½ cents, and cotton also de-clined 3-16c. Pork products are lower, and coffee about 3/c, while tin, copper and lead are all stronger. In general, the approach of a harvest, which is expected to be most bountiful, has its natural effect on prices, and trade is but little embarrassed by specudone my duty to society, so far as the case permits, by insisting that the accused shall never play cards again."

Upon cross-examination by Sir Edward Clarke the Earl of Coventry admitted that when he showed the document to Sir William Gordon-Cumming the latter objected to the phrase, "Clearly pointed out by the signature as an admission of guilt."

Expected to Retain His Position. Sir Edward Clarke also brought out the fact from this witness that when he, the Earl of Coventry, parted with Sir William Gordon-Cumming, he, the witness, believed that the plaintiff would be able to remain in the army and that he would also be able to retain his manubarship, in the Marlbor. to retain his membership in the Marlbor-ough Club, the Turf Club and other clubs to which he belonged. The cross-examination of the Earl of Coventry was extended to considerable length, but nothing further of an important nature was developed from the

an important nature was developed from the testimony which this witness gave.

This concluded the case for the defense, and Sir Charles Russell, on behalf of the defense, began his address to the jury. Sir Charles commenced by calling the attention of the jury particularly to what he classed as the "altered tone of plaintiff's counsel since this damning evidence has been given in favor of the defendants. The plaintiff's hopes have been that after hearing his, the plaintiff's, evidence the defendants would dmit that they were mistaken, but that is Continuing, Sir Charles Russell asked how the plaintiff's conduct could possibly be considered consistent with innocence. The defendants, he said, had been blamed for not at once publicly exposing Sir William Gordon-Cumming if he were really detected in cheating.

Strong Character of the Evidence. But the jury would admit that it was too much to suggest that men honorably be-lieving themselves to be acting as the plaintiff's friends should be treated as coming into court and not believing him guilty because they did not issue against him an unmercitul edict of irrevocable condemnation. Could anything be imputed to the witnesses to justify the assumption that they were not credible. He had not known in his experience five witnesses who gave such conurrent evidence which was so absolutely untouched by cross-examination.

In the middle of his speech the court ad-journed until Monday, when Sir Charles will resume his address. Then Sir Edward Clarke will follow for the plaintiff and the Lord Chief Justice will sum up the evidence for the jury, which will have to decide the great verdict.

The document signed by Sir William Gordon-Cumming was worded as follows:

"In consideration of the promise made by the greatlemen whose pages are here sub-the gentlemen whose names are here sub-scribed to preserve silence with regard to the accusation which has been made in regard to my conduct at baccarat on the nights of Monday and Tuesday, the 8th and 9th of September, 1890, at Tranby Croft, I will on my part solemnly undertake never to play cards again as long as I live."

Welsh Methodists Take a Hand. The Methodists of South Wales concluded their quarterly ineeting yesterday. Before adjourning they adopted the following re-

Resolved. That this meeting learns with regret from the proceedings in the High Court of Justice that the Prince of Wales took part in a game of baccarat at Tranby Croft on September 8, 1890, and thus gave countenance to gambling in one of its most insidious and ruinous forms, the force of his example thus encouraging vice among the people.

We respectfully submit to His Royal Highness that by his conduct he offends the religious sense of the people and drags the royal house from the high position in which it stood, and tends to lessen the loving and devoted affection to the throne which has been ever cherished by us.

Embarrassing Queries Affecting His Relations With a Lady.

NEW YORK, June 5 .- A London cable asks: "To what extent is one or more of the fairer sex back of the royal scandal that has resulted in the Gordon-Cumming libel suit now on trial?" This is a question which is being pretty largely discussed by the frequenters of the aristocratic clubs, although they talk of the matter under English throne was on the witness stand, might have sounded the social, political and professional death-knell of that eminent History Hidden by Discreet Silence. There may be a scrap of history that, were

t uncovered to the light of day, would almost rival the celebrated, and not yet fors gotten, Mordaunt case, when, secure in the insane, the future King of England went into the witness box, and, to use a phrase which has become historical, "perjured himself like an English gentleman" to shield himself in some degree from an out-burst of righteous indignation in the face of an outraged public opinion.

Solicitor General Clarke, had he been in-clined to emulate the example of late Dr. Kenealy, who bearded the Lord Chief Jus-tice in his den and was disbarred therefor, might have asked the Prince of Wales some interesting questions which would have thrown additional light on the case, and at the same time have added a salacious aspect to the scandal.

A Woman in the Case. He might have been asked the names of the two ladies whose names he scratched from the list of invited guests when he accepted Mr. Wilson's invitation to take up his abode at Tranby Croft during that now famous Doncaster week.

inserted in the list a name not previously thought of by Mr. Wilson, viz.: that of Lady Brooke. Pursuing the subject further, the Solicitor General might have asked whether it was General might have asked whether it was not a notorious fact that the titled lady in question had been an avowed "favorite" for many years, and whether that "favoritism" had not been carried to such lengths as to create more or less talk and scandal, even among the royal intimates who are supposed to be loyally blind to everything that goes on in which their liege lord is conserved.

The Princess of Wales' Jealousy. Giving another turn to the lance, Mr. Clarke might have inquired whether it was true that the Princess of Wales was so outraged by the attentions of her husband toward Lady Brooke that she had time and time again refused to participate in public and private assemblages where she was likely to meet the woman in question; not only this, but that she had made it a rule to socially ostracise all her friends who allowed socially ostracise all her friends who allowed the Brooke woman to cross their thresholds. Presuming that this question had been admitted and answered, Mr. Clarke might finally have inquired how it happened, notwithstanding the pledges of secrecy that were made regarding the alleged swindling and cheating, the Prince had violated his own confidence in placing Lady Brooke in possession of the facts, and likewise what the Wilsons had done to him from the mo-ment he and Lady Brooke became guests ment he and Lady Brooke became guests take the part of the former as against a gallant officer and a man who, as he admitted himself on the witness stand, had been on terms of the closest intimacy with him and a frequent visitor at his palace for more

If these questions could have been put and answered in court just as they are being put and answered in the clubs among people who ought to know whereof they speak, put and answered in the clubs among people who ought to know whereof they speak, they might have afforded material for an interesting additional chapter to the late Charles Bradlaugh's pamphlet upon "George, Prince of Wales; Past Events and Recent Coincidences."

There is not much doubt that the combination against the Alton is a conspiracy under the inter-State law, and the wonder is that the plucky road does not appeal to the commission and settle the squbble forever. The Board of Rulings told Parmallee, the transfer man for all the roads in Chithe frequenters of the aristocratic clubs, although they talk of the matter under their breath. There may be a secret history, the bare allusion to which on the part of Solicitor General Clarke, when the heir apparent to the Brallish there is a story that the Alton has the best of the fight, and it is only a question of a short time until the boycott will be raised.

Mr. Thos. Becington, Sharpsburg.

When Mr. Bevington first called at my office the following history of his case was elicited: He had a dull, heavy feeling over the eyes, his nose was continually stopped up with crusts of tough mucus, which also dropped back into throat, causing hawking and spitting to raise. He often coughed up clots of thick, tough mucus, which at times was very hard to raise. The trouble seemed to be all in his head and throat and he had frequent dizzy spells. The only trouble with digestive system was severe constipation.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocca, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maiadies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazetie.
