ELEMENTARY STUDY.

The following useful position, which may occur in actual play, we take from "The Cyclopædia of Card and Table Games," by Prof. Hoffman. The article on chess, contributed by Mr. Hoffer, is excellent. It ought to be published in separate book form as a chess primer. The elementary rules for this class of end games will be given when the solution is published.

Mr. John Rohe, living at 1620 Howard street, E. E., says: "I suffered terribly for over four years from catarrh trouble. I could get no relief until I tried Drs. Cope-land and Blair's treatment. To-day I am feeling well in every way." From Murphy Street, Pittsburg.

Mr. George Brown, residing on Murphy street, this city, says: "I was troubled with catarrh for over a year. Doctors could give me no relief. To-day, after treating with Drs. Copeland and Blair, I feel like another man, perfectly restored to health."

Mrs. Walker, living at 309 Locust street, McKeesport, Pa., says: "My son, Jesse, had suffered for nearly eight years. I consulted many physicians, but they could give no hope. I thought he must surely die. Dra. Copeland and Blair's treatment cured him." From Wilkinsburg, Pa.

Mr. P. A. C. Beavers, who lives at Wilkinsburg, and employed at the Union Switch and Signal Company, at Swissvale, Pa., says: "My catarrh troubles were hereditary. My constitution was undermined until I was little better than a dead man. Drs. Copeland and Blair's treatment saved my life. The best I could say would not do these specialists half justice. Their treatment saved me from the grave."

From Haysville, Pa. Mr. R. M. Anderson, of Haysville, Allegheny county, Pa., says: "I suffered for years. Could get no relief. Drs. Copeland and Blair's treatment relieved me of my sufferings. I am a well man—as well as could be expected of a man 74 years of age."

A GLANCE AT THE PROPER COSTUMES

One of the prettiest new articles of headwear is the Cleopatra capote. It is made up in beaded and spangled net, encircled with a wrenth of golden daisies, and adorned with a black osprey feather powdered with gold and a large jet snake with ruby eyes. Two

Another classic headdress for the ballroom is composed of a curled front and a circular twist, surrounded with jewel filets, and through which is thrust a long fancy pin, either in tortoise-shell or gold. A most important feature of our herdgear is the toque or Recamier turban, mod!hed in outline and form. It is true, but the fashion having once crept in who can foretell where it will end. The first step, which, contrary to tradition, cost us nothing, was the double roll of coiled velvet with a thread-lace butterfly, flower or tiny plume in front, but embeldened by success the milliners have now left off the velvet and present their customers with a small handful of briers, a ten-inch twist of lace and a rose, and ask you $15 for this "lovely" bonnet with its top minus. Taffeta silks in changeable effects are in high favor. They are made in charming summer gowns, skirts and fancy waists, and they are also used as frills and other trimmings for plain neutral silk and fine un-patterned wool dresses and also pale-hued ilk etamines and canvas fabrics.

Some of the spring costumes are not exactly admirable. Others are designed in the

Think of the chaotic notions on dress that must be entertained by a woman who wears a stuff gown, diamond earrings, a velvet mantle, a pair of common-sense congress (long-session) gaiters and a gray serge jockey cap. Sand shoes were noted many times last summer along with China silk dresses, ornate black and gold bonnets and expensive "picture" hats. In fact, the architectural idea which ought to run through every complete costume seemed sadly lacking in many dwellers by the sea. Judging often by their dress, one concluded that their heads were off for a yachting trip, their shoulders going to a swell recep-tion, their chamois-covered hands fixed for ipping rose bushes and their feet ready for walking match or a mountain ramble.

Any woman who lives in the country and who is not too stout should be able to mount a man, though she is handicapped a little by reason of her skirt. She should lower the irrup sufficiently to reach it with the left foot, then placing the right hand on the upper pommel and the left hand on the wer pommel, by a sidewise motion, right houlder forward, spring lightly from her right foot and swing herself into the saddle. Once there she should take her foot out of the stirrup, place her right thigh in its proper position above the pommel and ader dress. It is curious, when one stops to reflect over it, to find how few women have proved capable of turning their story-telling talent into successful dramatic form. Hundreds have made money and reputation as novelists, but, with the exception of Mrs. Burnett, none of the sex holds first rank as a playwright. They have made the effort time and again, but, save for a few pretty drawing room dramas and cur-Greek Headdress, tain raisers, the result vife of a Western Governor and Miss Merington, the brilliant professor of Greek at the New York Normal College, are said to have broken the record and will essay a comple of strong plays next autumn. Con-structive ability and terse, forcible dialogue are qualities the feminine dramatist has lacked thus far. Miss Mary E. Wilkins, those inimitable sketches of New England life have wen her fame, both in this country and in England, is the author of a powerful tragedy dealing with witchcraft in early days among the Puritans. Whether this will prove available for practical presentation has yet to be seen,

The part that Lady Macdonald plays in her husband's life is not to be set forth in a few words, says the Ladies' Home Journal, All that Lady Benconsfield was to the Conservative Premier of England, Lady Mac donald has been and is to the Conservative Premier of Canada. If any one on earth knows his mind it is she. Their understanding of each other is complete, and their matrimonial felicity unrufiled. How much Canada owes to Lady Mecdonald for the help she has given her greatest states-man only the Premier himself can fitly esti-The wife of the Premier is a frequent attendant at the sittings of Parliament, the est seat in the Speaker's gallery being always reserved for her, and no important debate takes place that she does not follow to the final vote, though the daylight may e dimming the electric lights.

Lady Macdonald is tall and tawny, with warm tints glowing in her cheeks. Her sundant helr a few years ago became white as soow, and now makes a wonderfully besoming aureole about her high, broad fore-Energy and determination are unmistakably stamped upon a countenance Yet when moved to laughter, the whole face lights up until every trace of care and anxious thought vanishes from it. In the art of conversation she has nothing to carn. She is an omnivorous reader, and not only reads, but digests and assimilates her reading, while a retentive memory keeps at command all that she acquires. She forms her own opinion about the sub-jects of the day, and never hesitates to exess them in clear, concise terms. To the ell extent of her time and ability she cooperates in all religious and philanthropic enterprises and associations that commend themselves to her approval. Neither does themselves to her approval. Neither does she hold aloof from balls, dinners, receptions and other fatiguing features of social Ninth street, Pittsburg, Pa. When Parliament is in session her drawing room on Saturdays is filled with an ever-changing flow of visitors from 3 o'clock until dinner time. Yet none of o'clock until dinner time. Yet none of them fail to receive a warm clasp of the hand, a bright, appropriate greeting, and the impression that the hostess is quite as glad to see them as if they were the only callers. With a dozen in the room at once, the most of them utter strangers to each other, Lady Macdonald will contrive to keep the ball of talk rolling so merrily that all feel they have a share in the conversa-tion.

Lady devotees of cycling will welcome the advent of a divided skirt, which has been on view lately in London. The garment, which is intended especially for cyclists, looks like a perfectly innocent or-dinary walking skirt made in light serge, with a kilting showing through the Van-dyked tabs at the bottom. More closely in-spected, it proves to be without a founda-tion, but some distance from the foot of the skirt a width of material is attached with embryo dual garments inserted in two openings. It has been approved by Mrs. Behrens, a well-known lady cyclist, and by the schemes of headdress are Viscountess Habberton.

Dresses for a summer ball are very pretty when trimmed with a profusion of flowers. The flounce on the bottom of the skirt may be made entirely of the long-stemmed flowers or of grasses or leaves. On a delicate green gauze gown a flounce of water lilies would harmonize beautifully. A silver gray should be relieved by a border of scar-let poppies, and a dark cream crepe would be more effective trimmed with the beauti-ful "ragged sailor."

A highly intelligent and doubtless excelat female in a weekly journal devoted to the interests of the fair sex advises as a sure recipe for "fattening the neck" a nightly application of olive oil, well rubbed into the "skin and bones," says the London cor-respondent of the Chicago Herald. She very naively admits that this treatment may not be found entirely agreeable either in feeling or odor, but if "persevered with for two or three months it will be found most gratifying in its results." Fancy going to bed for "two or three months" with olive oil rubbed into your "skin and bones." She also goes on to say that this preparation may be washed off with warm water in the morning, but that it is "much more efficacious if only wiped gently with a linen handkerchief."

COLLAR and ouff trimmings come in gold, silver, bronze and all the varying shades of these colors. By means of them an other wise common-appearing dress can be glor field and beautified into a thing of beauty. PRINTED lisse is the newest fabric for jabots, fichus and like confections. So artis-tically is the printing done that it looks to a passing glance like painting. Tiny leaves and flowers in brown and paie thats are struck over white, or perhaps over some subtle shade of yellow or lavender. THEREappears in the show windows broad popularity. A year ago every woman, young or old, who made any pretensions to fashionable dressing, numbered in her wardrobe at least one net dress. For a season the net dress has been upon the wane, but modistes announce that the spring trade finds many of these gowns in the shops. Most exquisite pearl garnitures for waists including a girdle, side trimmings, collar and sleeve pieces, can be obtained at any of the large stores that deal in very nice ma-terials. A lovely pearl set, suitable for wear-ing over any dark material, consists of a solid network of beading extending over the complete right side of the basque. Rinnons are used in great profusion on summer dresses of every description; in the graceful long-looped bows that are always popular, in the more precise choux, in up-right bows on the shoulders, in panel-like right bows on the submuces, in panels of the effects on the skirt, produced by three or five perpendicular rows, each terminated by a bow at the foot—in fact in any pretty way that fancy may dictate By a strange freak of fashion, while ladies wear the tiniest of bonnets little girls have their pretty heads ensconced within enormous capotes of gathered silk and lace. The smaller the child the larger the headgear. Some would look quite ridiculous if they were not so perfectly lovely under the large protruding border of the pale, pink capote, trimmed with white tulle and lace. For every-day walking dresses we prefer the skirt only just touching the ground, which can be easily upheld with one hand, especially when of light texture. Dresses of muslin-delaine, with small patterns printed in colors over a light ground, are often trimmed with one narrow flounce, put on with a heading round the foot, unless there is a border printed for the purpose, when no extra trimming is necessary. extra trimming is necessary.

THE "dress suspender" is decidedly a desideratum this season, for skirts are long, and always more or less trailing on the and always more or less training on the ground at the back. They are quite plain in front, with a few plaits at the back only. Indoors this shape is graceful, but for walking it is scarcely so. The necessity of holding up one's skirts to avoid mud or dust take away all the harmonious outlines of the dress, which, to look well, requires to be long and flowing.

THE fashionable woman will be as masen line in her attire as the still remaining in combrance of petticoats will permit. She will have her shirts, and caps, and men's scarfs: in addition to these, she will still have the tailor-made gown, which will be built more maunish than ever. White duck and straight-out vests make up their toilets, with a white linen shirt-front with three gold buttons, and over the shirt bosom fastened a black doeskin or broadcioth vest exactly similar to a gentleman's garment.

man's garment. Some of the sun umbrellas will be chosen for their solidity and strength, while other will be admired for their slender elegance the latter having corrugated metal sticks the ribs folding into the corrugations. A few have small nickel tubes. In mounts and handles the tendency is toward plain woods again, and the oxidized silver shown in other seasons is seen in less variety. A HUNT FOR HERETICS Scent for Heresy.

THE PERSECUTED IN GOOD COMPANY Timely Topics to Be Discussed in Our Pul-

History repeats itself. The late heresy trials in Pittsburg and Detroit call up some mementoes of old-time heretics, who, in their day, came into conflict with ecclesiastical hierarchies. The ecclesiastics have never been tolerant of reformers. The seven suspended brethren and Dr. Briggs, though branded as heretics, are in good company. "So persecuted they the prophets" in the Carlyle in his Reminiscences had this to say of the trial of his bosom friend, Edward Irving, by the Annan Presbytery:

"A poor aggregate of reverend sticks in black gowns, sitting in Presbytery, to pass black gowns, sitting in Presbytery, to pass formal condemnation on a man and a cause which might have been tried in Patmos under presidency of St. John without the right truth of it being got at! I knew the moderator, one Roddick, since gone mad, for one of the stupidest and barrenest of living mortals; also the little phantasm of a creature—Sloane his name—who went niddy-noddying with his head, and was infinitely conceited and phantasmal, by whom Irving was rebuked with the 'Remember where you are, sir,' and got answer, 'I have not forgotten where I am; it is the church where I was baptised, where I was consecrated to preach Christ, where the bones of my dear ones lie buried.' at Port au Prince is rapidly drawing to a close. It is known that the report Admiral Gherardi brought to Washington in regard to the condition of affairs in Haiti was far from complimentary to Mr. Douglass, and made it even more apparent than it had been before that the affairs of the United States were in very poor hands. One of the chief faults found with Mr. Douglass is that he seems to have considered himself a representative of the negro race rather than of the United States. It is this very weakness of the Minister, however, that constitutes his office-holding strength, for the negroes have already complained of being neglected by President Harrison in the distribution of offices.

If one of the few men of that race to whom he has given conspicuous appointments, and

If one of the few men of that race to whom he has given conspicuous appointments, and that one the man who has posed for years as the representative negro, should be turned out, there would be much criticism of the administration among colored politicians.

(a) The above game is a specimen of how easy it is to run a non-book player into a book loss and win with ease, and we take this opportunity of speaking a word in favor of studying published play. By careful studying of the different openings, we can soon become familiar with all the traps and catches peculiar to the different openings, and when playing with those who may be as strong on the end game as ourselves, we have them defeated before that stage is reached. We know there are some who will take exception to this, but if we are playing for a score, these wins count all the same. THE GREAT TEAM MATCH.

PROBLEM NO. 38. THE GREAT TEAM MATCH.

Full particulars appeared in last Sunday's Disparch with the score and names of each contestant. It was a success in every way, but the score was a little one-sided, Pittsburg & wins, Western Pennsylvania 16 wins and 12 games drawn. It was unexpected, such a sweeping victory, and yet Pittsburg had a few strong players looking on who would have made a good score against any of the visitors save Mr. Maize. The following are the names of the gentlemen: Mr. Spurr, R. W. Patterson, G. D. Sherrow, Samuel Rodger and Mr. Brown, besides Messrs. Johnston and Jones, who were absent. We have no doubt that the lesson of last Saturday will have an excellent effect on the visitors, and the next time they come to Pittsburg, they will be better prepared and they will at all hazards seek to redeem themselves. We believe a few of them were over confident and some were a little nervous and did not do themselves justice. WYLLIE AND REED CONTEST.

WYLLIE AND REED CONTEST.

As our readers are aware, Mr. A. J. Dunlap, draughts editor of the New York Torf, gave in to Reed's claim for the $100 lodged by Wyllie to secure a match with the American champion. It was with reluctance he did so, and, in our opinion—no date having been fixed in the articles for the commencement of the match—Reed had no claim to the forfeit. This view is also largely entertained by American draught players, and Mr. R. W. Patterson, of Pittsburg, feels so strongly on the matter that he has sent us a check for $100 to hand to Mr. Wyllie, so that the latter may suffer no pecuniary loss by the sharp practice of the American champion. His letter is as follows:

"I hereby send you a draft for £20 78 44 on Brown, Shipley & Co., London, being the proceeds of $100, to secure Mr. Wyllie against any loss. I do not intend this in any sense to be a reflection upon the recent action of the draughts editor of the Tarf. He has always been a staunch friend of the veteran, and simply did what he believed to be his duty in the matter."

Although in no way blaming Mr. Dunlap—who has always been a good friend to the "Herd Laddie"—Mr. Patterson says nothing about what he thinks of Reed. This silence is, in a sense, the most severe censure that could be passed on the conduct of Reed, Hetter, and the "Chicago Chess, Checker, and Whist Club." We are content to leave it thus.

In the meantime, on behalf of Mr. Wyllie, Hefter, and the "Chicago Chess, Checker, and Whist Club." We are content to leave it thus.

In the meantime, on behalf of Mr. Wyllie, we thank Mr. Patterson for his most generous gift, and congratulate Pittsburg on its possession of a citizen who has thus effectually removed the stigma that would otherwise have been attached to American draught players.—Herald.

The proposed match between Wyllie and the American champion having fallen through, the former and his friends were rather astonished at a claim put forth by Reed for the stakes, on the ground that Wyllie was not in Chicago and ready to start play by April 1. No date was fixed in the signed articles, and the claim was founded on an incidental remark in one of Wyllie's letters that the contest should begin by that date. Reed, however, got the stakes, but not without some strong opposition and equally strong language from some of the American draught players. But their sympathy with Wyllie is not confined to words. Mr. R. McCall, Glasgow, yesterday received a check for $100 to hand to Wyllie on his return home, being the amount Wyllie lodged in the stake-holder's hands. Mr. R. W. Patterson, of Pittsburg, Pa., is the generous donor of this sum, which removes a blot that would otherwise have attached to the whole body of American draught players.—Glasgow Evening Times.

The Disparce has taken the above position all through this unpleasant controversy. That as the dates were absent from the arti-

The Disparch has taken the above position all through this unpleasant controversy. That as the dates were absent from the articles of agreement between Wyllie and Reed, Wyllie had broken no contract and the articles would be good for years, as the only thing definite was that the match was to take place 60 days after his landing in America. Mr. Patterson's generosity in refunding to Mr. Wyllie $100 does not, in our judgment, make Mr. Dunlap's position any more favorable. The money was unjustly given away, and we are sure A. J. Dunlap yealzes it by this time; and if Mr. Dunlap will come forward and admit the error, and pass round the hat, we can be counted upon to give our one-tenth. We believe this to be the only honorable course left for him; and when the old man arrives there may be no unnecessary delay in getting on the match for the world's championship.

CHECKER GOSSIP. The correspondence tournament of the Northern Leader, after fully four years' play, has now been brought to a termination. The first prize has been won by Mr. James Lees, first prize has been won by Mr. James Lees, Dalmellington, Scotland.

The visiting players were taken to the international foot race in the midst of a heavy rain, by Mr. Joseph Maize, and as the Pittsburg man was not in it the visitors took it as a good omen in their favor. But, alas! it was they who were not in it. Our contributor, L. Armstrong, played in the visiting team, and suffered severely at the hands of Mr. Ellis in the match, but got some satisfaction out of the others. The following are his scores:

Mr. Moir gave Mr. McCall, in Glasgow, a very pleasant surprise by calling on him. Our friend, who gave such prominence to Mr. Moir's locating in this country, can have time to reflect on the reliability of his much quoted information. We gave no credit to it, which was our reason for never taking notice of it.
