BEGGING FOR A BOAT.

Pittsburg's Monied Men Make a Unanimous Demand for Better Fire and Police Protection.

CHIEF BROWN'S DREAM REALIZED.

The Gas City Practically Promised a Fire Boat Which Shall Also Do Patrol Duty.

PLAINTIVE CRIES FROM THE RIVER.

Beatmen and Ceal Operators Claim: They Are Overrun by Skiff Pirates.

Pittsburg's fire and police boat is now a Councils to-morrow. The recent fires, and especially the great ones on Seventh street and on the Monongahela river, have precipitated matters. Almost 800 property holders, representing at least two-thirds of the wealth of the city, have put in a demand for this improved method of protection. Ever since the shipping in the Pittsburg harbor burned the river men have been at work, and yesterday a petition was presented to Chief Brown asking for the purchase of a fireboat, which shall also serve as a police patrol. The petition is signed by all the river men, con! operators, bankers, members of the Board of Underwriters, railroad officials and iron manufacturers.

Chief Brown and Mayor Gourley both favor the plan, and its passage in Councils is almost assured. The only question is where the money is to come from. Mr. Brown's plan is to sell No. 1 engine house and use the money obtained from that to build the boat. Mayor Gourley agrees with him on this, as he believes a fire engine there would be unnecessary if there was a boat at the Arguments of the Petitioners.

The only objection so far to the plan is that the coal and river men do not pay enough taxes. Everything below the highwater mark is exempt from taxation, and a few people hold that the proper thing would be for the boat owners and coal operators to present the city with a fireboat. The petition is as follows:

To Councils, J. O. Brown, Chief of the Department of Public Safety, and others interested, of the city of Pittsburg, in managing and controlling the Fire Department and Police Force of the

The time has come, since the Davis Island Dam has given the city a good harbor, that this addition to the department is required. Necessity of Such a Protector. The whole matter was largely gotten up by J. B. Sneathen, the coal operator, and his son, W. B. Sneathen. The latter gen-tlemen yesterday said: "The great fires that have visited Pittsburg recently have made a fireboat a necessity. Every owner of property is interested, and $50,000 inted in a fireboat would have saved over half a million of dollars in Pittsburg in the last six months. The boat fire proved the inability of the city to handle a river fire, and yet every day the boats and coal in the Pittsburg harbor represent a money value of from $3,000,-000 to $5,000,000. Besides this there are the mills and railroads all along the river that are practically shut off from the city fire department. More than this, there is a great need of a police patrol boat, and one would answer for both purposes. The river is infected with skiff pirates that dart around at night and annually steal thousands of dollars' worth of stuff from steamboats, milroads and mills. It is impossible for the police to follow them. Of course there is a watchman on each beat, but in the darkness they can steal abourd and carry of rigging, ropes, chains, earpen-ter's tools, and a variety of other articles, This boat could patrol the river from Hazel-wood to Chartiers and up to Herr's Island, and with a powerful light could pick up every one of these thieves. The value of the boat as a protection against fire hardly need to be spoken of. These boats are in use in Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and St. Louis and are deemed indispensible."

Expected to Settle the Matter When the matter was presented to Chief Brown he said he would introduce & into Councils on Monday. Said he: "I think this petition will settle the question, and Pittsburg will have its fireboat. The boat can be built for about $35,000, and the money can be raised by selling No. 1 engine house. The men who ask for the boat are the heaviest taxpayers in the city and can-not be overlooked. Everybody recognizes the need. Why, a fireboat would cover all the territory from Grant street to the Point and the mills on all the wharves. The demands of the mills for space have caused be closing up of many of the minor streets, so that it is almost impossible for the fire department to handle a fire in one of these great manufactories, while with a boat everyone could be reached. At the Oliver fire we were powerless, and at the more re-cent fire at Jones & Laughlin's mills a firehoat would have saved the property."

Mayor Gourley Will Aid the Plan. Mayor Gourley is heartily in sympathy with the movement, and so far as he has been informed is willing to work for the passage of such an ordinance. Yesterday he solute necessity in Pittsburg. The only trouble will be to raise the money at present, but this can be done by taking Mr. Brown's plan of selling the No. 1 engine house. A fireboat would at least be a wonderful sav-ing in horseflesh. At each of the big down-boat will be purchased."

The only objection so far raised is by a gentleman who stands very close to C. L. Magee. He says: "There is a great deal of nerve displayed by the rivermen in their request. They hold that all property below the high water mark cannot be taxed in the city, and though there may be millions of wealth represented in the Pittsburg harbor, wealth represented in the Pittsburg harbor, there is no tax from it goes into the city coffers. Now, if a fireboat would be such a godsend to the rivermen why don't they buy a fireboat and let the city run it for them? That would be more sensible. They kick about a park on the wharves because it would come below high water mark and why should not the city allow them to take come of the river up to the roots."

care of the river up to that point."

The New Board of County Revisors-The Act Thought to Be a Good One. A great deal of interest is felt in the new act passed by the Legislature, and now awaiting the Governor's signature, providing a board of revision and assessment certainty, or it will be after the meeting of for county taxes here and in Philadelphia. Heretofore this work has been performed entirely by the County Commissioners, but the latter have so much other official labor that they have felt themselves unable to cope with the eccentricity of county assessors. The new act prescribes that the Court of Common Pleas shall within 60 days after its passage appoint three persons not of the same political party to the new board. Thereafter the Court will appoint a member every two years who shall serve six years. It was urged against the measure by years. It was urged against the measure by some of the local Democratic politicians, that the officers should be elected, but the general tened of public opinion favors the Court appointment. Where the officers are elected, as in the case of the Jury Commissioners, the incumbents have to consult the wishes and interests of a good many neonle in their and interests of a good many people in their promises about election time. Hence it is thought better service will be got and fairer and more independent valuations by letting the Courts name the Board as vacancies occur. The Courts also have the power to remove any of the Board for cause.

As the salaries of the three members of the Board will be $3,000 each per year the positions will doubtless command good men. Several persons are already spoken of by their friends for the place; but as the act is not yet signed they do not care to have their names mentioned.

What He Could Find. The house of Miller Leslie, corner of Forty-fifth and Davidson streets, was the scene of a bold robbery about 3:15 o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Leslie was first aroused by a scraping noise. Her husband was soon awakened and in the glare of an electric lamp he beheld a burglar gently opening the door. Allowing him to come into the room, he sprang for his uninvited guest. The latter eluded him, and put a door between them. This being jerked open Mr. Leslie dealt the intruder a blow with a chair. Pursuing him down the stairs, he stumbled and landed on the floor, only to behold his man slam another door in his Nothing daunted, Mr. Leslie forced his entrance into the room against a barricade of chairs and furniture. Thence he pursued the stranger to the alley. The thief succeeded in getting away with Mr. Leslie's pantaloons, containing two silver dollars and a knife. The burglary seems to have been well planned and timed. He took good precautions for deceiving the police by carrying a dinner pail, thus appearing as a laborer returning from work.

The ancient cosmogonists who thought the The ancient cosmogonists who thought the earth was flat had only a relative notion of the term. They needed a view of the lack of interest shown by the average Democrat last night in the situation. Of course candidates and their henchmen were interested, but the voter, as a rule, felt that he wasn't in it after Mr. Sipes' withdrawal was announced. The political yeast used was stale. This much could he gather variously. At the Randall Clubhouse half a dozen members were found at the card table, but they all said they knew nothing from the primaries, and none had interest enough to make inquiry. At the County Democracy there was but little more, except that Mr. Mullin, the candidate for Jury Commissioner, being a member, gave somewhat of a flavor to the occasion. that indicated he did not regard the matter as material.

On the whole, it seemed as though if some Republicans did not kick over the traces and make a fight for the Judgeship of the Common Pleas No. 3, that the county's business will not be much disturbed this fall by political complications, and that the saloon keepers will not reap much of a harvest from the expenditure of candidates setting them up for the "boys," as the canvass is like to be able to run itself and not need their help. their help.
As showing the difference between rank

As showing the difference between rank and file and the lenders the following is significant: Ex-Postmaster John B. Larkin said last evening: "I never saw such unanimity in the Democratic ranks of the county. The feeling in the party is unanimous for Judge Kennedy, who will undoubtedly reflect great credit on the Governor who nominated him as well as the party to which he has so long belonged."

There was even less interest among Republicans than among Democrats, for in the suburbs many did not know until just before time for opening that Sipe had pulled out, and as they then felt that they had a walkover, there not being at present a single contest in sight. In consequence, in gle contest in sight. In consequence, in many places not even the formality of a primary election was held. When it arrived it was taken to the third floor of the warehouse and a barricade built around it, where it was tenderly cared for by its owner. One day someone moved the barricade and the alligator disappeared. A thorough search failed to reveal its hiding place. When it left it was about 15 inches long.

Often, during the busy hours of the day, William would think he heard the pet roaming about and would rush frantically upstairs only to be disappointed. Interesting Bill in Equity Filed Yesterday Peculiar Claims Against a Railroad Com-pany—Fears at One Time That the Road Would Be Destroyed.

A bill in equity was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday by Camille Weidenfeld, of New Jersey, against the Allegheny and Rinzua Railroad Company. The plaintiff states that he is a stockholder in the company, holding 268% shares, of the par value of $100 per share. The company was formed by the consolidation of the Alle-gheny and Kinzua Railroad, of Pennsylvania, the Bradford and Corydon Railroad, and the Allegheny and Kinzua Railroad, of New York, for the purpose of extending the line, and an agreement to that effect was entered into.

Bonds were issued and a contract entered into with the Interior Construction and Improvement Company. The latter Company was only to receive 1,350 shares of stock for the use of its name and credit.

S. S. Bullis, President of the railroad company, and M. W. Barse, a director, started the work of construction. They only, however, it is charged, built 334 of the 46 miles agreed on. They then commenced to use the money to build branches. They wanted to get out of paying for what they had done, and would not pay workmen or for material.

The laborers became riotous threatened ville, returned home last evening after a short stay on Troy Hill. He said he had been feeling badly, and so far had noticed no improvement in his health. He told a remarkable story about Hugh Hagan, of Nashville, a man who had been paralyzed for 16 years. He said that yesterday morning Hagan was praying at the altar when his body commenced to move all over. A hand which had been drawn out of shape was

The laborers became riotous, threatened violence, and it was feared that the railroad would be destroyed. To save their credit, would be destroyed. To save their credit, the Construction Company took hold of the work and continued it until the money was exhausted. Bullis and Barse, it is claimed, now refuse to place a lien on 16,000 acres of land owned by the railroad company, as had been agreed upon, to complete the work. They also, it is charged, have been using the credit of the company for their private purposes. They have been diverting the assets to their own use, and now want to construct other lines.

Bullis and Barse, it is stated, are aided and abetted by J. E. Rooney, Peter Mc. Neil and G. L. Roberts, and have the controlling interest of the stock. The Court is asked to restrain them from violating the terms of the agreement of consolidation, from building branch lines, or using the credit of the company in any illegal manner.

Results of the Collections by Ladies of the Hospital Association. - the long list is the affliction of a gentleman from Carbondale. He refuses to allow his name to be used. About ten years ago a barber trimmed his hair and in shaving him near the ear made a slight scratch on the skin. The wound never healed up, and he applied all sorts of salves to no avail. Within the last four months the ugly sore has increased in size, and it is now as large as a dollar. It looks like a small scalloped saucer, and has the same shape. It can't be a cancer, for in that length of time, without medical attention, the disease would probably have eaten into the brain. The excellent system followed by the ladies of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association in collecting funds is showing its fruits this year in wonderfully increased returns. Up to May 31 the collections amounted to $1,098 53, and since then several hundred dollars more have been gathered in, which is enumerated as follows: gathered in, which is enumerated as follows:

Another large amount is expected in a Father Mollinger Effecting a Cure.

Father Mollinger examined the sore and said he could cure it. He gave the man some medicine which he is taking. Since then the sore has held freely, and the drug acts as if it was driving the impurities out of the ulcer. The gentleman said he had tried various things to heal the sore spot, and finally hearing of the priest he came here to see if he could not help him.

Another large amount is expected in a few days, when the Police and Fire Departments, letter carriers and the remaining schools of Allegheny are heard from.
