BERLIN, June 6.—If popular discontent were allowed to manifest itself on free lines against the Government's decision to maintain the corn duties, Germany would be ablaze with demonstrations. Since Chancellor Von Caprivi surprised the country, including the agrarian party, with his de-claration that the existing tariff must remain until, at least, new treaty negotiations with other nations were arranged, the dis-

The political parties which are open to popular emotions are becoming penetrated with the sense that the Government has made a mistake and must ere long reconsider its decision in the face of the increas ing prices of certain grains, and especially rye, which forms the staple of food of the

The official press speaks in an apologetic one of the attitude of the Government. The Nordeutcher Gazette stands almost alone in sustaining energetically the ministerial policy, urging that the suspension of the duties on cereals would not cheapen breads, while an abolition of the duties would imply the revision of the whole protectionist tariff in the direction of free trade.

The National Liberal organs, while admitting the severity of the pressure of dearness of the staff of life upon workingmen, plead that since all parties accept the principle of suspension, time is most opportune to give effect to it. The Vossische Zeitung to give effect to it. The Vossische Zeitung warns the Government that the attitude of the people is assuming a menacing character. The Vorwaerts and other Socialist papers have not terms bitter enough to reproach the ministers. Even the agrarian Kreutez Zeitung attacks the Chancellor's policy, declaring that the protection party prefer a temporary suspension of the duties when it is recognized that such action is necessary to the acceptance of commercial treaties involving a paramount abatement of the tariff.

Small Credence in Caprivi's Estimate The Progressists in the Lower House of the Prussian Diet have vainly tried to get the Ministers to produce the reports on which their decision not to reduce the du-ties is alleged to be based. Chanceller von Caprivt's estimates are held to be of small Caprivi's estimates are held to be of small value beside market facts. The Freisinning Zeitung points out that the price of rye is now almost attaining the figure reached during the famine years of 1816 and 1817.

As the session of the Landtag will close within a fortnight, there is small chance that the opposition will get time to conduct a Parliamentary agitation. They are, there fore, preparing for a campaign in the country. The Socialists are active. They value try. The Socialists are active. They value the situation and will give energy to the opposition movement in every populous center. Meetings have been held this week. Six have been held in the Berlin districts, at which addresses were made by Herren Liebkneet, Singer, Auer, Bebel, Schippel and a number of other prominent Socialists. They met an enthusiastic response when they branded the Ministers as starving the masses to the advantage of the classes. Dissensions in the Cabinet. Within the Cabinet it is reported that dissensions are strong. Minister Miquel demands a reduction of the duties, while Minister Lucius opposes such a course. been made this week to obtain a statement NEW YORK, June 5 .- As soon as the respecting the real intentions of the Governllapse of Baring Brothers was announced ment in regard to the free education scheme, the New York World sent a staff correspond but without success, and to judge from the frequent meetings of the Ministers they are ent to the Argentine Repbulic to inquire into the investments which precipitated the failure. The correspondent made a through investigation, and his report makes a femarkable story, showing how Charles H. Sanford, a Yankee drummer for the sale of pills and toilet preparations, first secured a membership in the American firm of S. B. unable to make up their own minds on the subject. Some of them, including Mr. Smith, the leader of the House of Commons, profess to believe they can pass the educational bill and yet terminate the session by the end of July. But this is absurd, and as the Tories talk of deserting wholesale, if called upon to remain at Westminster after next month, it may be assumed that the Hale & Co., in Buenos Ayres, and after making $1,000,000 by a single financial coup, Government will, at the most, introduce the bill and then hang it up until November, the course long ago foreshadowed here.

Some members of the Government curse the hour when Joseph Chamberlain induced them by specious argument to take the troublezome business in hand. Every election size that went to London and won the confidence of Lord Revelstoke, head of the Baring firm, thence returning to Argentine and investing untold millions of Baring gold in doubtful enterprises and securities.

Sanford's Career as a Dre tion since then has demonstrated that, as an electoral bribe, free education is absolutely Twenty-five years ago Sanford was on the ast coast of South America, and traveled electoral bribe, free education is absolutely valueless, and there is good reason to believe that it has actually alienated some Tory votes. The tricksters have themselves been duped, and their rage is rancorous, indeed, against the Jesuitical Radical renegade who pushed them off the path of political probity. Mr. Chamberlain himself is much peturbed at his misseasance. He really believed that free education would be the thing to conjure with, especially in the as a drummer for a New York firm dealing in drugs and chemicals. This firm failed, and he turned his attention to the firm of S. B. Hale & Co., whose members were about to retire. He used the maternal love of Mrs. Pearson, daughter of Samuel Hale and the wife of John R. Pearson, as a lever to further his interests. He argued that the the thing to conjure with, especially in the rural constituencies, and his unxpected mis-calculation has distinctly lessened his inglories of the old house of Hale & Co. might be revived, and that in its operations there was a brilliant future for Mrs. Pearson's Chamberlain attributes the failure in part to the unwise reticence observed by the Government respecting the details of the scheme and to the delay in convincing the country of the intention of carrying it out by submitting the bill to Parliament. Both mistakes are to be tardily rectified on Monday, when Mr. Goschen will introduce the bill in the House of Commons. Mr. Gladstone, who has been restored to his usual health, left Hawarden to-day for London, and will be in his place ready to bless or to curse the measure as its merits or faults may demand. The unexpected announcement by Mr. sons. Ambitious hopes, thus instilled in the lady's mind, found co-operation in the minds of the other feminine members of the family, and although Mr. Pearson remon-strated, the house of Samuel B. Hale & Co. was continued, with Lanman & Kemp's quendam pill drummer, Sanford, as one of Ar Cleveland yesterday the buildings of the Cleveland Hardware Company burned to the ground. the partners.
Sanford obtained control and engaged in foolbardy enterprises which would have ended in ruin but for the private fortunes of Hale and Pearson. Then came the streke of the Yankee's life, thus described: Sanford Finds His Opportunity.

measure as its merits or faults may demand. The unexpected announcement by Mr. Balfour at the meeting of Tory women that he proposed to suspend the operation of the coercion laws over a greater part of Ireland, is everywhere considered another proof of the near approach of a general election. It has been followed by suspicious activity at the electoral headquarters of the Tory and Liberal-Unionist parties, and there would be justification for a confident prediction as to the date of appeal to the country. After the revolution the Provincial Government found it necessary to consolidate the debt. In order to accomplish this purpose the outstanding loans had to be taken up, including the popular loan held by Hale & Co. The ability which Sanford possessed now became apparent. Sanford counted on an immediate sale of the bonds, and the failure of the public to buy was a crushing blow to his pride.

Sanford intrigued with the Government in behalf of the "popular loan," and it is current here that he "subsidized" certain officials, whose favor was useful to the realization of his hopes. Gold and paper were now at a par. The loan was taken up by the Government in paper, and the sales of Hale & Co. were cleared of certificates which cost the firm many anxious moments After the revolution the Provincial Gov-which cost the firm many anxious moments which cost the firm many anxious moments and sleepless nights. The European loans were repaid in gold, and the profit which ensued, solely by reason of good luck and the parity of gold and paper, turned in a profit of upward of $1,000,000.

He Wins Lord Revelstoke's Confidence. He Wins Lord Reveistoke's Confidence.
Shortly after Sanford went to London, where he beseiged Lord Revelstoke, head of the firm of Baring Bros. Sanford talked to Revelstoke about the extraordinary resources of the Argentine. Soon the head Baring was heard to say that Mr. Sanford was the cleverest man he had ever met. When Sanford departed from London, carrying with him the confidence and admiration of Lord Revelstoke, and with the millions of the Baring bank behind him to spend and invest, a universe of chances was spend and invest, a universe of chances was revealed to his triumphant vision. ndent then relates in detail the story of the investment of Baring gold by Sanford. First he was obliged to subsi-dize Government officials to obtain the great water works contract. The estim cost of the entire works on which interes was to be allowed was $36,500,000 in gold. The price of the concession to Baring Bros. and Trusbale & Co. was $21,000,000 gold, payable to the Minister of Finance in three

The Reign of Boodle in the Argentin

The Reign of Boodle in the Argentine.

This was the public price, but there is another side to the business. Nothing is conceded from the Government in Argentine without a price. As has been described in the correspondence, the officials, from the President down to the janitors in the public offices, expect a consideration for their services in addition to their regular stipend.

The procural of the concession was obtained, as was previously mentioned, by Charles H. Sauford, and a greater coup was never accomplished in this delectable capital, where bribery, corruption and fraud thrive as they rarely do elsewhere. In order to secure the great contract, Sanford order to secure the great contract, Sanford was compelled to bid high, and the success that he obtained placed him on a pinnacle. Justez Celman was the Chief Executive of the Argentine Republic. He was ripe for boodle before he had warmed the President's above and the time the concession. dent's chair, and at the time the conwas granted Baring Bros., through Sanford, his need of money was great. Minister of the Interior Also Corrupt Dr. Wild, another of the gang of sharpers who formed the boodle ring of the Argentine, was Minister of the Interior. To these worthies Sanford addressed himself, and their favor secured to him the price. Celman received upward of $500,000 for his "fee" in granting the concession. The additional sum of $100,000 was also paid to the President, if the statements of some of the most responsible are accurate. The Minister of responsible are accurate. The Mini the Interior received $300,000 for his share of the deal. It proved a difficult task for this co respondent to trace the entire disposition of the Baring corruption fund used in the water works deal. The belief is current here that nearly $3,000,000 was spent in the "preliminaries," as the expression runs in Buenos Ayres. Sanford is popularly credited with securing personal commission which put him high above water in his course down the financial stream.

Millions in Sanford's Hands.

Having secured this contract, Baring Bros. forwarded to Sanford two instal-ments of $7,000,000 each, and a third of like amount will fall due this summer. Other sums were advanced at various times, until now the correspondent estimates the Government's liability to Baring Bros., on this single enterprise, at nearly $30,000,000.

The losses of the Barings from their water works investment will not be as great various lines by their number of water works investment will not be as great proportionately as in their purchases of bonds and other money securities. There are extensive investments of their money here which no one, outside the confidential circles of the house employes and those of their agents, can describe. Notwithstanding these difficulties the correspondent learns that amounts ranging from $5,000,000 to twice or three times that amount, were obtained by various prices for "internal improvements." One of these loans to Cordeba is larger than the entire province is worth. The Barings, also, have large inworth. The Barings, also, have large in-vestments in railroad bonds, but these, the correspondent thinks, will yield fair returns

BECAUSE OF THEIR BAD CONDUCT.

Disgraceful Orgies.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] BOSTON, June 6 .- The recent disgraceful nduct of the members of the Harvard "institute of 1770" at the Parker House of Harvard students at Young's Hotel and those hostelries are closed against any large body of Harvard students. The clerks have received orders to refuse applications for dinners when any large number of students are expected to be present. Small parties of 10 or a 12 will be accommodated, as in the past, but none of the large societies will be been served with the regular dinner, but there has always been plenty of it and other guests always knew when students were dining.

Driving Guests From Hotels.

"The students have only themselves to blame," said one of the proprietors. "They have shamefully abused the privileges we gave them, and have conducted themselves in a disgraceful manner. They have shown by their actions that they don't know how to behave like gentlemen, for we can't allow them to come where gentlemen are. Of course, all students are not to be held responsible for the acts of those students who get so drunk that they can't behave themselves. But they have to suffer with them. If we could pick them out we would do so,

If we could pick them out we would do so, but we can't, so all must be kept away."

The Institute of 1770 at the present day bears a marked contrast with what it was at its foundation, and, in fact, up to a comparatively few years ago. This is the oldest of the Harvard clubs now in existence, and was founded by Samuel Phillips, John Warren and other seniors of the class of 1771 as a speaking club. peaking club.

How The Club Has Grown The orators spoke from a stage four feet square and two feet high, "with the front corners clipped," and they chose such sub-jects as "The Odiousness of Envy" and "The Pernacious Habit of Drinking Tea." In 1801 the club became "The Patriotic Association" and later "The Social Fraternity of 1770." In 1825 it united with two other of 1770." In 1825 it united with two other societies and became "The Institute of 1770." From being a senior society, it passed to the juniors and finally to the sophomores, but up to 15 or 20 years ago it retained its literary character. At the time a room was provided for it in No. 2 Holworthy. Since then it has been a social club and within a year it has opened a club house on Mt. Auburn

Some idea of the standards now taken for membership may be had from a glance at the "first ten" recently elected from the freshman class, who will elect the rest of the members next year. All of them are prominent in directions other than literary. They were the temporary and permanent captains of the class crew and its manager, a football player, the captain and manager of the class nine, a substitute on the crew, the captain of a former Exeter Academy football eleven and the secretary of the polo club. A Valuable Literary Remnant.

The only remnant that remains of the literary character of the institute is the library, a really valuable collection of standard works, most of which were given by the early classes. The number of nem-bers is about 100. There is a strange con-nection between the Institute and the famous Dickey Club, inasmuch as the first 50 were elected from the Dickey, which has club-rooms elsewhere. Before the Institute House was opened this year it was an empty honor to be elected after the Dickey had. een chosen, for few of the non-Dickey embers ever even went inside the Insti tute rooms.

Now all the members use the clubhouse, which furnishes a clubroom, dining room, poolroom, etc., and every evening finds a large number of present and past members reading the periodicals, singing or playing there. Other clubs have sprung up to fill the place abandoned by this old society, and the college is no worse off than before in opportunities for literary students to meet together, but old graduates returning to Cambridge, often learn with dismay that the old Institute is no longer a debating society.

The distinguished statesman who has guided the political destinies of Ganada for nearly half a century passed peacefully away at 10:15to-night surrounded by the pusehold. At 10 o'clock this morning, handreds who called to make inquiry realized that all hopes had vanished forever. The news from the sick room was more discouraging than ever. A strange and leader color

Not a Stickler for Consistency. Sir John-as he, was familiarly known all over the Dominion-was one of the clev-erest men of his time, and would have won distinction in a wider field than that of Colonial politics had the accident of birth not placed him in Canada. He was a politician that was nearly a statesman and a speaker that at times just missed being eloquent. Gitted with rare boldness and plausibility, he showed himself capable of originating striking com-binations and of giving his ideas practical effect. For consistency he naturally had but little regard. "Sufficient unto the day is the record thereof" might be called his motto; nevertheless the inconsistency was have also been subpossed not in himself, but in his surroundings, for wherever he found himself or whatever he did, it was with a single aim-the success of his party.

Sir John was not a selfish man, and at the end of years of public life, nearly 40 of which were passed in office, he was very little richer than when he entered it. He had his official salary and allowances, and a vestigating committee with his discovery, but all of the committee with his discovery, but all of the committee with his discovery, few years ago the Conservatives raised a fund to secure for their leader a liberal altively refuse to tell what they ky owance during life. The peculiar feature which distinguished him as a political leader was the amazing dexterity wherewith he managed to hold together a set of heterogeneous elements -intional, religious, sectional, personal—actuated each of them more by regard to their own individual interests than to the welfare of the united people. Both as regards the instability of the medium which supported him and the wondrous skill with which it was made to seem as reliable as the solid ground, Sir John may not inaptly be compared to the circus athlete in his steeds simultaneously."

Both in public and in private Sir John showed himself a master of wit and satire. It was, however, of that genuinely impromptu, unstudied kind which, depending as it did for its brilliancy to a large extent upon the attendant circumstances and the manner accompanying the utterance, rendered illustration very difficult. One New Year's day it devolved upon Sir John to present his colleague in the Cabinet to the new Governor General when they made their customary formal call. As it happened to be a very cold day, the Secretary of State appeared in a superh seal skin coat draping him to the knees, and was necordingly introduced to His Excellency in this unexpected but appropriate manner: "My Lord, this is the great seal." Again, during the course of a rather warm debate last session, Sir John referred to the great victory he had won in 1882, whereupon a "grand challenge act of riding six fiery The Beloved Premier Van-ALL CANADA IN MOURNING. last session, Sir John referred to the great victory he had won in 1882, whereupon a leading member of the opposition called out, "Why do you not try it again?" alluding to rumors then prevalent of a dissolution being imminent. Some of His High Honors.

Sir John Macdonald was created a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath in November, 1884; was nominated a member of Her Majesty's Privy Council in July, 1872; made a Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Order of Isabel of Spain in 1872 and received the honorary de-gree of D. C. L. from Oxford University in He married, first, Isabella, daughter of the late Alexander Clark, Esq., of Dalna-vert, Invernesshire, Scotland, who died in 1856, and secondly, in 1867, Susan Agnes, daughter of the late Hon. T. J. Bernard, a member of Her Majesty's Privy Council of the island of Jamaica. Endowed with abundant energy, surpassing tact and in-tense devotion to her husband's interests, thoroughly informed as to all the questions of the day, courteous, hospitable, consid-erate, Lady Macdonald is the central figure in the social life of the capital and no unim-portant factor in its political life also. They had one child. No one who knew Sir John could fail to note a resemblance to the late Earl of Bea-consfield. Tall and lithe in figure, slightly stooped, as became a lifelong student, with rich, waving locks of fast silvering hair, smooth shaven face, corrugated like a glacier-scarred rock by a network of seams glacier-scarred rock by a network of seams and wrinkles, wherein the most opposite emotions played hide-and-seek with one another according to the mood of the moment; bright bird-like eyes, observant of everything around, and a quick, gliding step, whose jaunty grace and fast growing burden if years had not yet impaired—such were the Premier's most striking physical characteristics.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.-Magistrate Devlin this afternoon issued a warrant for the arrest of Ephraim Young, one of the directors of the Spring Garden Bank, and noon. The affidavit upon which the warrant of arrest was issued was made by one of the diretcors of the Millward Cliff For days it is assumed he re- Cracker Company. It embraced a grave criminal charge against Mr. Young, growing out of the failure of the company. The failure was caused by the wrecking of the Spring Garden Bank, and was due to the fact that a large amount of paper of the Spring Garden Bank, or of Francis W. Kennedy, was induced by Young as President of the dorsed by Young, as President of the cracker company. Then, it appears, Young ioaned considerable paper made by the company to Francis W. Kennedy, and the consequence was that the concern could not meet its obligations. The charge which was made by T. Brown Belfield was that Young though General Fisher, the receiver, said that their arrest in the near future is probable and the depositors' committe says that it is certain. The persistent attempts made by what Sir Julian Pauncefote naively describes in his dispatches to Lord Salisbury as the "oppo-sition journals" to drag the name of Mr. John Wanamaker into some discreditable con-nection with the Keystone Bank scandal do not appear to disturb in the slightest degree the serene equanimity of the Postmaster General. Mr. Wanamaker does not hesitate to say that he would appear and tell all he knows as a witness, but there seems no more reason for calling him or any member of his firm to the stand than any other depositor. John Wanamaker was a depositor in the Keystone Bank, but not as an individual or an official, but as the firm bearing his name. Discounts were not made on his personal note, but on legitimate commercial paper or on sound collateral, as the books of the bank will officially show. This cannot be construed as a personal favor.

Mr. Wanamaker, as Mr. Lacey himself has stated, knew nothing whatever about the delay in appointing a receiver, nor had Mr. Wanamaker any knowledge nor did he request the appointment of a certain person. Mr. Wanamaker was on the Pacific coast at the time but Mr. Lacer's and leaves and the second of the seco the time, but Mr. Lacey's own denial of this false charge settles it without further notice from the Postmaster General. Mr. Wans maker's maligners, however, see a political point to make in all this, and do not listen to facts. One of the points in the attacks is

Mr. Wanamaker's credit, but whenever made they never cause a ripple in financial circles in Philadelphia, where Mr. Wanamaker's credit is so solid. Guard of Pennsylvania paid a just tribute to the memory of Major General John F. Hartranst to-day, when a splendid granite obelisk was unveiled over the dead warrior's tomb in Montgomery Cemetery here in the presence of 5,000 troops and Grand Army men, and with cloquent eulogies from Governor Pattison, ex-Governor Beaver, General George R. Snowden and ex-Adjutant General James W. Latta. The military display was a memorable event in the history of Norristown, and the services at the grave were soldier-like in their simplicity and impressive in their earnestness and fervor. Norristown turned out in gala array for the occasion; pearly every house was dec-orated with the National colors, and all business was suspended. Mrs. Hartranft and her three children were interested spectators of the pageant in honor of her warrior husband, and she entertained a large number of the general officers at her residence on Main street, after the ceremonies

JOHNSTOWN, June 6 .- The hottest politcal fight ever known in Cambria county has just closed with the Democratic primaries held here to-day. The contest was between W. Horace Rose, present Mayor of Johnstown, and Colonel John P. Linton. While the principals carried themselves with a dignity somewhat becoming the office to which they aspired, their friends made an intensely bitter and personal affair of it. In addition to pointing out the moral and physical defects of each other, each took great pains to prove that were his candidate not nominated the party would not be able to elect the other, and a Republican would be elect the other, and a Republican
