The Sorrow of Two Daughters Over the Departure of Their Father.

A poor, feeble old soldier was brought to the Union station last evening to be sent to the home at Dayton. He was accompanied by two beautiful daughters, and when the time came for them to leave him, the parting was heartrending. Again and again the girls rushed back to bid the old man goodby, and their sobs and moans were truly pitiful. More than one observer turned away anable through pity to stand the scene.

The veteran had to be carried to the train the veteran and to be carried to the train in his weakness, and with loud cries the daughters saw the Panhandle express disappear in the tunnel with their father. Mayor Gourley's letter to Chief Brown, utlined in THE DISPATCH yesterday, was made public last night by its author. After epeatedly declining to make its contents oublic the Mayor finally changed his intenion and furnished a copy for publication, In giving his reasons for this last evening, he said: "When I wrote this letter I believed Mr. Brown would be as prompt in making it public as he did the letter he received from Mr. Magee. When I found he was disinclined to do that, I thought perhaps he was holding it back and would present it at a special meeting of Councils that I understood was to be held next Monday. But I learn now that there is to be no special meeting, and as the newspapers have been talking about it so much and criticising the secreey in which it has been held, I have decided to give it to the newspapers for fear-Mr. Brown does not." In his letter he give his answer to C. L. Magee, whose statement was read in Councils several weeks ago. He refers to Mr. Magee as only one of 250,000 citizens, but an influential power in municipal affairs. Intimation is strongly made that Chief Brown should have sent an explanation of his own to Councils in connection with the Magee

Criticism of the Wrong Person The Mayor says the latter attacked him not on statements made from his own ob-

Brown himself, and that the criticisms were directed at the wrong person. The major portion of the letter is taken up with comments on the Superintendents. Evans and Weir, of the Fire and Police Bureaus, the writer insisting that the former is incompetent and the latter empowered with little more than the duties of a clerk. Assistant Superintendent of Police Roger O'Mara also comes in for a few strokes of the executive pen, the Mayor stating that whatever efficiency characterizes the police force cannot be attributed to him. For some of the police officials he has only the highest praise. The following is the letter in full: Mayor Gourley to Chief Brown.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, PITTSBURG, June 10, 1891. Mr. J. O. Brown, Chief Department Public Safety: DEAR SIR: On the 25th of May you pre-ented to Select Council a letter addre sented to Select Council a letter addressed to you by your bondsman, Mr. Magee, which was apparently intended as a reply to a letter of a previous date written by myself to you regarding your fire department.

Mr. Magee's communication was devoted principally to an elaborate encomium on the present Superintendent of your Fire Bureau. It must, therefore, be accepted as an emphysical property of the physical property of It must, therefore, be accepted as an emphatic denial of the charges of incompetency made by you as Chief of the Department of Public Safety against that official.

From your own; oft-repeated statements, and the letter to which I refer, it becomes evident that you and your bondsman are not in unison regarding the officer who is the recognized head of the Fire Department of our city.

While I will not permit myself to be Magee, touching his testimonial to the effi-ciency of Mr. Evans, I beg leave to enter an

My communication to you regarding the Chief of your Fire Department was based upon information received, and that information, as is well known to you and Mr. Magee, was supplied by you.

Notwithstanding this fact, you transmitted to Councils, without protest, a letter from intrusted to his keeping. You, moreover, remained entirely silent, and without one word of dissent, permitted the author of that letter to impute to another the responsibility of charges which emanated from

Against you the thunder of your bondsman should have been directed; upon you he should have exhausted the vials of his righteous indignation: upon your head he should have eplaced his chastening hand exclaiming, "Ecce home!" with all the bitterness of offended power.

What a splendid opportunity was presented by your bondsman for you to submit to Councils a statement presenting your own honest estimate of the fitness and qualifications of the Superintendent who had been under your direct charge for a period of more than three years. What a contrast would have been exhibited by these documents. Such a public declaration might have involved you in a controversy with Mr. Magee and necessitated an explanation on your part of the considerations that governed your action in retaining your Superintendent in a position of serious responsibility; but it would not only have been frank and ingenuous to Councils, but it would have reflected credit upon you as a public official.

Mr. Magee is only one man of the 250,000 people in this city, but then he is an influential factor in the municipal government. But what of your police bureau? You have a gentleman at the head of this bureau who is nominally Superintendent, but who in reality has no more to do with the control and management of your police force than the humblest patrolman who nightly traverses his lonely beat. He regularly draws the salary of Superintendent, but he performs few, if any, of the appropriate and legitimate duties contemplated by the ordinance establishing your department and creating the important position held by him. You never conferred upon him the power and authority of Superintendent, or permitted him to assume the duties that the longed to his office.

ferred upon him the power and authority of Superintendent, or permitted him to assume the duties that belonged to his office.

The highest office in the police department of a great city is practically an empty void, and the gentleman who occupies it is, to all intents and purposes, an official nonentity.

I have no complaint to make against your so-called Superintendent. He may be well equipped for the office he holds, but you have never given him an opportunity to display his ability or leave the impress of his individuality or skill upon the force of which he is the supposed chief.

Whatever efficiency characterizes your police force cannot be attributed to the efforts of its Superintendent or his assistants; the former is an unknown quantity, and the duties of the latter have never been defined.

achievements during the past three years. It contains some excellent men, to whose integrity and faithfulness I would be only too willing to bear unreserved testimony.

But what I want to bring home to you is the anomaly that is presented by an officer who is Superintendent in name but a subordinate in fact. He may at intervals go through the tedious monotony of inspecting pay rolls and station houses; he may act as superintendent of a dog pound and issue canine licenses, but from the day you appointed him to office until this hour you have never committed to him the duties which rightfully belong to the head of the police bereau. If you have just grounds for withholding from your Superintendent of Police the powers, duties and responsibilities which pertain to his office, then upon what theory do you justify his continuance at the head of that bureau? Is there an explanation, or must the mystery there an explanation, or must the mystery remain unsolved? Why are the two most important bureaus

I have no personal ends to accomplish, no political aspirations to foster, no ambition whatever for future office.

My first and only object is to see our city government administered wisely and in the interest of the people. If this be ingratitude, then I am an ingrate. If this be treachery, then I have broken my plighted faith. To this line I have tried thus far to hew, sometimes in weakness, sometimes discouraged by the opposition of former friends and the hostility of secret foes. With personal malice toward none, but with a firm conviction that over and above the interests of individual toward none, but with a firm conviction that over and above the interests of a great city, I propose with unfaitering trust to pursue this course to the end of my official career. I have no desire at this time to prosecute the study of ancient or medieval history; nor do I wish to compile biography, or trace the history and career of living men during years that have passed away. The five books of the law were then taken from the crypt and unrolled while the chil-dren stood up and the boys recited the blessing upon the people, pronounced at the giving of the law, in Hebrew.

The Rabbi concluded the confirmation by catechising the boys on the principles of the Hebrew religion. The children are usually confirmed between the age of 18 or 14 years. All other synagogues held services of a like character.

Will Be Solid for Him. EX-SENATOR LEE PLEDGES HIS HELP

Why are the two most important bureaus of your department impaired by the incompetence of one head and the masterly inactivity of the other? The situation is not, I am sure, in harmony with your own conviction, nor has it been forced upon you by the mandates of the people. The controlling, irresponsible power is elsewhere, and it is for you to determine whether or not your administration of public office shall be regulated in obedience to its behests.

The administration of municipal government is a matter of public interest and should at all times be open as the day to the inspection of the people. The alleged treachery to Dalzell among was the chief topic of conversation among the politicians. The report was laughed at by those not well posted and who imagined Dalzell had a sure cinch on time being hold, the people have a right to know it, and it is my wish that they shall know it. It was stated on good authority that some time ago a prominent member of the Tariff Club remarked that the sudden desire of Dalzell to sudden desire of Dalzell to be Chairman of the State league had put the boys in a hole, as they had already made promises to the Philadelphia people in return for certain things. Just what is the nature of the compact could not be learned, but it will come out shortly. Senator Flinn has not been away from the city since the Legislature closed, so that he is not in the Quaker City as reported. It is true that Sheriff McCleary, Phillip Flinn, John Doyle and other members of the Tariff Club have been in Philadelphia for the past week, as the guests of the Thirtieth Ward Republican Club, in return for courtesies extended at the annual meeting of the league in Cincinnati. extended at the annual meeting of the league in Cincinnati.

Senator Flinn said yesterday that he would like to see Dalzell elected Chairman, but he was taking no interest in the fight.

It has been openly charged that he is heading the opposition through his brother, Philip. John Dovle and some of the other mem bers of the Tariff Club came home yester-day. Sheriff McCleary got back on Thurs-day. A prominent politician said that while the boys were having a good time, they also got in their work for Randolf; not

Holding Dalzell Even. Harry Paul, ex-President of the Ameri-cus Club, thought Jack Robinson would pull out if he were seen. The truth is that Jack Robinson, like Dalzell, is ambitious to be a United States Senator, and he donot desire to see his opponent score a point against him. It is generally believed that Robinson doesn't care a snap for the place, but he is determined to keep even with Dalzell before the people. It is claimed that Robinson is not popular with members of the Legislature, and their influence will be wielded against him throughout the

Mr. Brown, from Lancaster, was in the city yesterday, and he stated that his coun-ty's clubs were out for Dalzell. There was some talk of a compromise on Hastings, but the General will keep hands off all factions and continue to train for the Governorship Captain John A. Reed said he was selling mowing machines, but he would probably do a little skirmishing on the edges of the battle. If there was treachery to Dalzell he thought it was a good thing to unearth it early, so that his friends could be more careful. He added that the trouble with Allegheny county in conventions al-ways has been that the delegation never presented an unbroken front. The Report Laughed At. County Recorder Von Bonnhorst laughed at the talk of treachery. He said he knew of no one who was opposed to Dalzell, and he felt sure he would be elected.

Mr. Dalzell called at the Duquesne ye terday morning to see ex-Senator J. W. Lee, of Franklin, and enlist his service in his cause. Mr. Lee had gone to Washington, but from what could be learned the oil country is tavorable to the doughty little Congressman.

William Witherow, of the Duquesne, is doing all he can for Dalzell. It is apparent to everybody that Randolf is making a strong canvass for the Secretaryship, and with his friend Sheriff McCleary and other backers will cut much of a figure. One way out of the difficulty suggested is that Dal-zell be elected President and that Randolf be appointed Corresponding Secretary by

A Former Compromise.

This position is now held by William Linn, of Philadelphia, and it was created as a compromise between Charles F. Ettla and himself when they waged a hot fight for the Secretaryship at the last meeting. It will be remembered that 'Squire Lindsey se-cured the latter place. The first is regarded Ex-Senator Lee returned to the Duquesne last evening. He said he was for Dalzell, and thought he could do him some good in the Eastern counties. Dalzell is well known in the oil country, and the clubs in that sec-tion are favorably impressed with him. Mr. Lee said that Dalzell was a man with some purpose in life, and could be depended upon. He has character and ability.

It wouldn't surprise people to see Jack Robinson drop out of the race at any time. A politician who knows him well remarked last evening that his chief failing was that he didn't hold the same opinion for 24 hours at a time. His views are very changeable and the bluff he made at running against Cameron and then quietly falling in line for him is a sample of how he can be veered around by every wind that blows.
