SOME VERY ORTHODOX SERMONS.

Children's Day Remembered in Many of the Local Churches.

OTHER PULPIT TOPICS OF THE DAY.

The interests of religious people yester-Synod had not cooled perceptibly, and the action of the friends and supporters of the ejected ministers had given the ecclesiastical horizon a stormy appearance. The discourses of the reverend gentlemen were, accordingly, awaited with lively expectations. But, unhappily or happily, dis cussions of the vexed questions were unheard, and, instead, prayers were offered that sweet peace might come to the troubled hearts of all the warring flocks. Rev. David McAllister, of the Eighth Street Church, most conspicuously conrected with the decision of the late Synod. preached to an audience of usual size in the morning. His sermon was on "The Incomprehensible Worth of God's Law." Man's ourded millions, his intellectual superiority, nay, even the spiritual lore contained in the Carnegic Library, said he, are not of the little ones, who during the year had sufficient to show man his true purpose in arrived at the age of 7, with a Bible. Reciin the Carnegic Library, said he, are not life. We only have hopes of perceiving and of resching the true goal of life by following the precepts of the Holy Scripture. The history of the race is another proof of the great worth of God's Law. All good works and the greatest spiritual welfare of man invariably have been accomplished through the aid of the Christian religion.

Dr. McAllister on Dr. Briggs. In the afternoon, a scattered andience listened to an exposition on "The Divine Guidance," Although of a controversial nature, nothing referring to the late re-

Beious schisms was uttered, except a easual reference to Dr. Briggs. Dr. Me-Allister agrees with Dr. Briggs in warning the masses against the evils of Bibliolatry but he does not sanction the flippant and off-hand manner with which the divine of Union Seminary treats the Holy Bible. With equal interest and expectancy a great throng of members and visitors gathred in the First Reformed Presbyterian Church on Grant street, Rev. Nevin Woodside, paster. It had been announced that Hev. J. J. Huston, of Belle Center, O., would fill the pulpit. He had been emphatic in his support of the expelled ministers, and the audience was warranted in expecting "something." But they listened to an earnest, energetic sorrow of the Second Presbyterian Church, in Allegheny, Rev. Wilson E. Donto an earnest, energetic sermon on "Christ's Purpose in Keeping His People in This World." The disthat the spirit of man is to grow in rightcousness, but by every-day contact and sympathy with the masses. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was evidently before the preacher's mind when he touched upon the evils of idleness and gambling. He disagreed with Dr. Briggs in the theory of the probation of man after sheath. He thinks that here among the trials and labors of this world is the only probation that man will ever have.

Quiet All Along the Line. Even in the East End and in Allegheny ere was no sign of the expected storm. At Rev. O. B. Milligan's East End church yesxviii., 37: 43; the subject, "Jesus of Nazareth Passeth By." After an elegant disurse for the time allotted him, Rev. O. R. Milligan gave a lecture for the remaining half hour, talking the Forty-sixth Psalm for ermon, taking for his text the fifth chapter rinthians, seventeenth verse. In none of the sermons was any allusion made to the The attendance in the morning was nearly 450, and in the after-noon 250, a great many of whom were strangers, and were disappointed not to hear Rev. O. B. Milligan.

Rev. J. R. J. Milligan, the suspended Covenanter minister of Allegheny, preached two sermons yesterday in Cyclorama Hall, Allegheny. Each time he addressed a congregation of over 400 people, including four of the elders of his former church and almost the entire congregation. In neither of his discourses did he make any allusion to the recent troubles, save to announce that the congregation would be united with the United Presbyterian denomination. A meeting of the congregation will be held Wednesday evening at the U. P. Seminary, Allegheny, for the purpose of forming a new

In the morning Mr. Milligan's subject was "Waiting on God," and in the afternoon he spoke on the text from Luke, "Where Are the Nine; Were There Not Ten Saved?" His sermon was entirely on the theme of people not recognizing the goodness of God. He said every member of the church should be a committee to look after the lost nine.

Riev. E. R. Donehoo's Exposition of Many of the Fallacies of Heredity.

"O, Israel, thou hust destroyed thyself; but in me is thine help," Hosea xiii, 9, was the subject of Rev. E. R. Donehoo's sermon yesterday. During his remarks he said: "In Christ's day there were those who delighted in tracing back sin to its source. They question him, "Who hath sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" They want to fix the blame where it properly belonged. We are still disposed ook for the exercise of the old law of retribution, so long as the sin is not our own. It is the common habit with transgressors to shift the responsifor their sins onto others. All lay own experience with law-breakers goes to confirm this opinion, that it is the rure exception to find one charged with e frankly taking the blame on his own shoulders. He may admit the deed hid to rived yesterday, accompanied by R. H. his charge, but insist on placing the blame Hall, of the United States army. PRAYERS FROM CHILDREN. Charming Services Held in Their Hon All Over the Two Cities-How Variou Congregations Observed the Day-Beau tiful Ceremony at an Allegheny Church.

Hundreds of children's voices mingling with the cadences of the church bell, told the world that yesterday was "Children's Day" in the churches. In every church of the two great cities at some time during the day especial services were held for the little ones, and every pew was filled with fresh, young faces, bright as the June day itself, instead of the sterner countenances day naturally centered about the pulpits of of the elder worshipers. Each child was the Reformed Presbyterians. The heat arrayed in her best white dress, starched generated in the stormy sessions of the late | and ironed until it rattled at every move, and as they marched into the various churches, each little hand clutching a banch of fragrant flowers, the simple beauty of the affair made it a pageant more brilliant than the empty pomp of an Archbishop's train.

Mayhap the prettiest service was that conducted at the First Congregational Church, Allegheny, of which Rev. S. W. McCorkle is pastor. Both morning and evening special services were held for the little cores. In addition to the array there little ones. In addition to the organ there was an orchestra of five pieces and a choir of 40 voices, while 300 Sabbath school children formed the chorus. The amphitheater anditorium was decorated in lovely taste. A half dozen magnificent floral emblems decorated the pulpit, which was also banked with flowers, ferns and palms, as were each of the windows.

In accordance with the custom of the church Rev. S. W. McCorkle presented each tations were given by Edith Butler and Ida Weller. The service, however, which best pleased the 700 people present, was the flower service rendered by 12 little girls under the charge of Miss Nettie Ghreist. Each child represented some flower and repeated an appropriate verse. In the even-ing the pastor gave a special talk to the children in which he likened the growth of a child to that of an apple tree and drew ap-propriate lessons from the topic.

At the First Primitive Methodist Church, Holmes street, a similar service was hele and an address was made by Rev. J. B. Tyler. The Centenary M. E. Church, Wylie avenue, held appropriate services in the afternoon, as did the Buena Vista Street Church, of Allegheny, the Walton M. E. Church, of the Southside, and the Liberty Street M. E. Church, of Pittsburg. In the Fourth M. P. Church, East End, children's foreign missionary flower service was held. An address was made by Rev. Benjamin Stout, Secretary of the Board of Home Missions. In the First M. P. Church, Fifth avenue, services will be held by Rev.

FAITH NOT PASSING AWAY.

An Interesting Discourse That Was Deliv

terday morning, Rev. S. D. Johnston, of Scattle, Wash., occupied the pulpit for the first half hour. His text was from St. Luke text Hebrews xi., 1: "Faith is the assurting of Name o ance of things hoped for, the proving of It had been se things not seen." age of faith was passing away and was being succeeded by the age of reason. Now, his subject. At the afternoon services Rev. E. M. Milligan preached a purely orthodox. If faith was merely credulity and ignorance, that depended altogether on what faith was, the speaker agreed that that age was passing away. But he denied that faith was anything of the kind. Faith was "the assurance of things hoped for, the proving of things not seen."

The age of that kind of faith was not pass ing away. Men had more faith to-day than had their ancestors. Men to-day had more faith in their fellow men, and more faith in humanity. They had more faith in natural law and more confidence in the laws which regulate the relations between man and man. A great many believed that people were losing faith in God, but men never had a stronger faith in God than at the

the New Temperance Drink. That new Philadelphia drink that looks like beer, tastes like it, and makes drunk like any other beverage of a beer constituency, has not yet reached Pittsburg. Until a week ago maltase, as it is called, was an unknown quantity to the local saloon keepers. An occasional bartender was found who had heard of it, but the general run of the trade were ignorant of its exist-ence. Nobody has had the nerve to put it on tap, but it is expected to find its way to Pittsburg sooner or later.

Such decoctions to get ahead of the license courts and the temperance societies are not original with the Quaker City. Several years ago a foaming liquid was sold at one of the parks along the Ohio river on Sunday and the place became very attractive until the eagle eyes of the Law and Order detectives sighted it from a distance and samelabed the proposition. squelched the proprietor.

Shade was at a premium in Pittsburg yes terday. It was the hottest Sunday this year. Early in the morning people shook their heads sagely and prophesied a warm day, but few, indeed, had any idea it would turn out such a scoreher as it did. Toward noon the streets became comparatively deserted, what few who ventured to remain patronizing the shady side of the street with great unanimity. At the corners the police officers nestled in the shade with unbuttoned tunic and languid air. In existed in the club, and this is the trnth patronizing the shady side of the street with buttoned tunic and languid air. In the dwelling houses in the center of the city and in the hotels the shuttered windows told their tale of sleepy citizens dozing in the summer heat. In the street cars people fanned themselves restfully as they sank into their seats, thankful that they had escaped from the heat outside. One of the Duquesne cars going to Schenlev Park was transformed into quite an Arcadian retreat by a family party returning home with flowers redolent of country breezes and new-mown hay. The cooling wave caused by a passing car refreshed the heated travelers who gave themselves up for the time to the fullest enjoyment of that brief moment

Along the streets in the suburbs citizens were picturesquely disposed on the front stoops of their houses, fanning themselves vigorously, and evidently doing all they knew to keep in a reasonable temperature. Others had retired behind half-open shutters, and attired in light and airy costumes were endeavoring to effect a similar purpose. Some Scenes at Schenley Park.

At Schenley Park most of the male visitors had thrown off their jackets and sat mopping the perspiration from their brows in the shadow of huge umbrellas. The adies as a rule appeared cool and comfortable in their summer gowns, and seemed to be enjoying the glorious weather to their heart's content. Not a few buggies were to be seen about the drives in the park, the Penn Avenue Stores.

But if Schenley Park looked well, High-land Park was at its best. The hill to the left of the entrance on Highland avenue was crowded with visitors resting under the cooling shade of the trees. A con number also promenaded around the ponds. One enthusiastic little fellow standing with his father watching the water bubble up at the evening.

Along the roadway people were returning in crowds from the parks, coats slung over their shoulders and hats tilted back to catch id that the did the the fain: puff of air which was scarcely stirring the leaves of the trees. In the city itself the streets had assumed a more ani-mated appearance and the people were congratulating one another on the close of the day. They had, however, one sad refrain. It was that yesterday was but an indifferent sample of what they had yet to expect in the next two months.

The temperature during the day was as follows: 8 A. M., 76; noon, 84; 8 P. M., 85. The highest during the 24 hours was 90 degrees, and the lowest 66. Last year on the same date the highest reached was 83, and the lowest 61. The greatest height during June of last year was 92 degrees, on the 24th. Yesterday was the hottest day we have had this year, the next warmest being on the 10th inst., when the temperature was 86.

A MARRIAGE DELAYED,

But the Young Couple Finally Remove All the Barriers in the Way.

Love still laughs at locksmiths, and finally will triumph over the stumbling blocks put in the way of ardent lovers by the vigilant marriage license clerk. A young couple came from Columbus last week to this city to be married. They registered at the Seventh Avenue, and hired two rooms, intending to give up one in a few hours, but the fates were against them that day. They arrived late in the after-noon, and when the anxious groomsman reached the Court House the big door was barred against him. He bit his finger nails and went back to the hotel to tell his intended bride of the disappointment.

Next morning he was up with the larks, and soon had secured the coveted paper. When they reached the parson's house in Allegheny the preacher discovered some illegal technicality in the license document, and not discouraged the young fellow re-turned to the Court House to have it corrected. The clerk in the meantime had an attack of the colic and had gone home. Nothing daunted the lover drove to his house in the East Eud, and the paper was corrected. After several hours he got back and the knot was tied. When he reached the notel, the happy groom said to Mr. Perdu: "You can cross off one of the rooms now." "Oh, it's all right at last. And so you are married. Well, I congratu-
