JOHN KNOX'S CLOCK.

Once Owned by One of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. HUNTINGDON, June 14.—Aremarkable clock is owned here by W. H. Woods, which will be taken to the World's Fair and placed on exhibition there as being the most valuable historical relic of the days of John Knox. The clock was built at Paisley, Scotland, by John Skeech, in 1560, for John Knox, who died in 1562. This big eight-day clock has been handed down through the family for 150 years, finally coming into the possession 150 years, finally coming into the possession of John Witherspoon, father of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

When John Witherspoon, the son, left Scotland in 1768, to take charge of Princeton College, he took the old clock with him, and it was ticking in his parlor when he was elected to the old Continental Congress. When he died his will stated that it should remain in the family, and descend to the first born of each succeeding generation. In this way it reached the present owner, who is a lineal descendant of John Knex. The clock is eight feet high, built of rosewood, with brass works of very heavy make. It is very handsome, and is still a good time-keeper.

JOHNSTOWN'S NEW BAILBOAD

to Develop New Coal Fields.

JOHNSTOWN, June 14.—It is now pretty nearly a sure thing that Johnstown will have another railroad connection. The new line which is being built from Kaylor's station along the Ebensburg branch to develop the coal fields in the north of Cambrin county will also be extended to the Biacklick region, in Indiana and Cambria counties. A branch of the Pennsylvania line, which has been recently laid along the Conemaugh river on the old towpath, will connect with this end of the new road and the towpath line will be extended to this city, where it will make connection with the Pennsylvania road.

Judge White, of Indiana, says the settlement of the mortgage on the Ebensburg branch and its purchase by the Pennsylvania Company is convincing proof that they want full control for the purpose of developing the coal fields in the two counties.

Pittsburg Compares Well With New

on Broadway. FAVORABLE POINTS OF DIFFERENCE

A former Irish newspaper man, blessed with keen powers of observation, has been in Pittsburg for the past week seeing the sights. He writes the following for THE DISPATCH, giving his impressions of this city, in comparison with Philadelphia and New York:

To a stranger who has visited New York, Philadelphia and other great centers of population in the East, Pittsburg appears as and noting our astonishingly low prices. a type of American city somewhat distinct from any he has yet seen. In New York he was impressed principally with the power of the almighty dollar. Without hard cash could be had nothing. In the metropolitan city nothing is ever gratis. If you ask your way on the street, you instinctively felt for the quarter which you cannot but imagine your informant is hankering after for his trouble. From the shoeblack, who never receives sufficient remuneration, up to the millionaire, who never knows when he has enough, every New Yorker spends his entire strength and energy in beating his neighbor and in amassing wealth, "Do or you will be done" would seem to be the ruling motto of the Gothamite. Certainly a stranger's first impressions of the people of the Empire City are any thing but favorable. As to the city itself it is magnificent, although apparently one of the worst governed on the face of the earth. In worst governed on the face of the earth. In no other city in the civilized world would such a deplorable muddle of municipal affairs be allowed to exist. Rapid transit, except on the L roads, is apparently a dream beyond the realization of the present genera-tion of New Yorkers, unless, indeed, some one with at least an elementary knowledge of municipal government, takes the matter f municipal government takes the matter in hand and carries it to a successful issue.

All of the Streets Blockaded. The streets being, as a rule, exceedingly The streets being, as a rule, exceedingly narrow, and most egregiously ill-paved, are almost continually blocked by the immense traffic of the city, so much so in fact that only last week the Postmaster General had to give notice owing to the blocking of traffic in the city the mails could not be dispatched at the usual time, and in future the boxes would close 15 minutes earlier. To thake matters worse acrosly a day present make matters worse, scarcely a day passes without a gang of workmen being sent to tear up the roadways for new pipes of water, gas, etc., and thus is confusion worse con-founded.

Coming from New York to Philadelphia the tourist is more or less disappointed with the Quaker City. He misses the towering buildings of the metropolis, and the mad-dening rush for gold which characterized the inhabitants of Gotham. In the matter the inhabitants of Gotham. In the matter of public buildings, however, Philadelphia can pretty well hold her own, the new municipal building ranking, perhaps, even above that of the Empire City. The parks of the Pennsylvania metropolis are her chief glory, and reflect well upon the public spirit of her citizens. Unfortunately owing to some cause or other twestely owing to some cause or other public spirit of her citizens. Unfor-tunately, owing to some cause or other, the Quaker City is generally credited with heing rather slow and uninteresting, but this may in some degree be due to the fun-eral cortege arrangements which do duty for a transit system. In this regard Pitts-burg is far ahead of her Eastern rival, the electric and cable cars being apparently more carefully managed. In many other points Pittsburg is modeniable creening points Pittsburg is undeniably creeping ahead. Business here seems to be conducted on a much more substantial and enduring basis than in any of the Eastern cities, and basis than in any of the Eastern cities, and the general prosperity of the city also appears to be of a more solid character. In New York prosperity is of a rather fiekle nature, and those who to-day ride on top may to-morrow be crushed to earth under the wheels. In Philadelphia progress appears to be somewhat slow and uncertain, but in this town a stranger can at once perceive the progressive spirit of the people, and can have no hexitation in predicting a and can have no hesitation in predicting a splendid future for their city Fine Buildings Here. Like most other American cities, Pittsburg rejoices in the possession of many handsome public buildings which could not be equaled in England unless in towns of twice the population. The hotels and railroad depots are also much superior to those of English cities of similar size. The streets are however much parrower but in that of English cities of similar size. The streets are, however, much narrower, but in that respect New York and Philadelphia are equally lacking.

It is at night that the city appears at its best. The hot glare of the summer sun gives place to the cool and subdued glow of thousands of electric lights, which, being comparatively unused in England for such purposes, present a novel spectacle to the tourist and delight him with the city. Fifth avenue, Smithfield street and Liberty street would do honor to New York, while such would do honor to New York, while such structures as the Westinghouse, the Fidelity Title and Trust Company, and the two big bank buildings on opposite corners of Sixth svenue and Wood street would be difficult o equal outside of Broadway.

As regards the inhabitants of the city, a stranger certainly is treated with much more friendliness here than in some of the more friendliness here than in some of the East, whose people lay more claim to polish and refinement than do the people of 'Pittsburg. In business matters, while possessing all the proverbial 'cuteness of the Yankee, they have managed to escape that over-reaching and sharp dealing which unfortunately is still to be found in other parts of the country. The importance of the industries in this part of the country, and the favorable position occupied by the city, cannot fail, in the immediate future, to still further increase the prosperity of Pittsburg, and the natural well-being of her citizens.

Allegheny Also in Line.

Allegheny Also in Line. Across the river Allegheny bids fair to follow in the lead of her enterprising neighbor. Business appears to be in a most flourishing condition, and if present indications are fulfilled it will not be long before the city occupies a much more prominent position in business circles than it does at present. In public works it is not in any way behind. Its magnificent parks would way behind. Its magnificent parks would not be out of place among the finest pleasure grounds in the country. The statues which adorn them are a credit to the city's patriotism and liberality. The Carnegie is also a splendid ornament to the town, in addition to being an invaluable means of education for the masses.

Taken as a whole, the stranger can be Flavoring

"It may be true what some men say. PUBLIC OPINION endorses Sapolio. It is a solid cake of scouring soap ...

For many years SAPOLIO has stood as the finest and best article of this kind in the world. It knows no equal, and, although it costs a trifle more its durability makes it outlast two cakes of cheap makes. It is therefore the cheapest in the end. Any grocer will supply it at a reasonable price.
