

A SOLDIER'S WEDDING.

The Nuptials of General Schofield and Miss Kilbourne and Miss Kilbourne TO BE DULY SOLEMNIZED TO-DAY.

An Air of Military Pomp Will Surround the Glad Ceremony

THE GENERAL'S SLY WAR WITH CUPID.

CHICAGO, June 17.—General John M. Schofield, Commander in Chief of the United States Army, has capitulated. His marriage to Miss Georgia Kilbourne, of Keokuk, Ia., will be solemnized to-morrow.

The gossip, however, soon began to arrange an itinerary for the distinguished visitor, and as the first one did not meet with sufficient credence a second and then a third and fourth were put in circulation.

General John M. Schofield, went out to inspect Fort Sheridan, was going to swing around the circle of forts in the West. Then a trip to Alaska was arranged for him, next a run to the fishing grounds in Northern Wisconsin. This came from the gossip. General Schofield said nothing.

Arranging for the Event.

At the Leland Hotel, where he had his temporary quarters, some people noticed the same old man come to Chicago the names of Mrs. George Kilbourne and her pretty daughter, Miss Georgia Kilbourne, of Keokuk, Ia., appeared on the hotel register.

People who like to watch a master hand at the dinner, and attend them at the table with that courtly grace which is the distinctive characteristic of military men, but they saw nothing in the actions of the trio which indicated anything tender in their relations.

But the fact was the Commander in Chief of the army was engaged in a more serious business. He was arranging the details of his approaching wedding with Miss Kilbourne.

The bride, Miss Georgia Kilbourne, is a beautiful woman, about 26 years old, whose father is one of the wealthiest and best-known men in Iowa.

General Schofield is now 60 years of age, but Miss Kilbourne is only 26 years old.

General Schofield's daughter, Mary, and Miss Georgia Kilbourne are close friends, and the time when the former was married to a Lieutenant Andrew Kilbourne was her first love.
