The Prince has evidently resolved to live the scandal down. He has accepted several invitations to public ceremonies and his enconcernents already include the opening of a convalescent hospital and several schools, The rumor that he has consented to take the chair at the annual meeting of the antigambling society is unfounded and malicious. On Wednesday evening, however, he did resume his role as the model prince and the patron of science. The occasion was the centenary of Faraday's birthday, and a great crowd of England's most eminent scientific men assembled to do honor to "The Baccarat" and to Faraday. This order of precedence is strictly correct, and it is confirmed by the fact that all the newspapers report the Prince's prosaic remarks verbatim, and nearly all summarize in a few lines a remarkable oration delivered by Prof. Lord Rahleigh, in honor of the great chemist, electrician and philosopher. The Prince was received with much enthusiasm. Two short speeches which he delivered were punctuated by cheers, and no one sniggered when he gravely expressed regret that he had no time now to pursue the study of chemistry, which was the delight of his youthful days.

Is there anything significant in that?"

While lying on the ground Freeman emp-tied his revolver at the two men. One of them fell on his knees, but immediately jumped up again and made for the woods. Hurly and Sexton followed for some time, but finally came back to where Freeman lay. They picked up Freeman and dragged him to the porch, Sexton remaining with him while Hurly drove away for a doctor. A Bad Defeat for the Tories.

The dreadful dullness of the House o Commons was relieved Thursday night by the stand-up fight between the Government and the opposition, in which the former was defeated all along the line. Among the delegates to the Berlin labor conference none was more enthusiastic than the British in support of the proposal to raise to 12 years the age below which children should not work in factories.

The British delegates included Sir John Gorst, an Under Secretary of State, and he told the House of Commons that in supporting the proposal referred to he was acting upon the express instructions of Lord Salisbury. But when philanthropic enthusiasm had had time to cool down, the Government found that the Lancashire mill owners and operatives were dead against the age limitstion, and as these people possess and control many votes, they were able to compel the Ministers to take the disgraceful course of swallowing the pledges solemnly given in the sight of Europe.

The Liberals sought to insert a claus fixing the disabling age at 11, but the Government would not accept even this mild compromise in the face of the opposition of the Lancashire Tory members, who, by the way, were led by Lord Cranborne, the eldest son of the Prime Minister.

The Government's Broken Pledges.

No arguments, properly so-called, were put forward from the Ministerial benches. All that the Home Secretary could urge in excuse for the shameful breaking of pledges was that no country had yet carried out the recommendations of the Berlin conference, and the House showed its opinion of the Gov ernment's disgraceful conduct by voting the new clause by a majority of 16. A mighty cheer, recalling the lively fighting days of the earlier sessions of this Parliament, went up from the opposition side when the numbers were announced, and the good Liberals went home to bed to dream vain dreams of general elections and Liberal ministries.

The Government has been thoroughly discredited, as well as defeated, but it is needless to say they will hold on to their seats with a firmer grip than ever. They have placed an electoral weapon in the hands of the Liberals, however, which will be used with formidable effect when the long de-

Although Austria is endeavoring to accu mulate gold for currency reforms, and £2,-900,000 will shortly go to Russia, while the German exchange is at the gold point and shipments from London to Berlin imminent, yet it is probable that the bank rate will be further reduced before the turn comes, for over £1,000,000 is stated to be on the way from Australia and India, and the Cape is ending in gold. But financial ease has failed to bring higher prices and stock exchange business here and on the Continent has dwindled away to the smallest possible dimension. To-day' business on the London Stock Exchang was probably the smallest in years. [BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.] LONDON, June 20 .- Mr. and Mrs. Bron on Howard, accompanied by four dogs and a cat and a parrot, sail for New York on the Ems to-morrow. They have rented their pretty villa "Sandy Hook" in St. John's Wood, and intend to make a long residence in America. The Savage Club gave a fare well supper to Mr. Howard last Thursday night, which was presided over by Charles Wyndham and attended by a large delegation from the literary, artistic and dramatic world of London.

Mrs. John Mason, better known in Amer-ica as Marion Manola, sailed on the Normannia to-day for New York, accom-panied by her husband's brother, Lowell Mason. Mrs. Mason's trip is of a business nature, she having received a large offer from her former manager. John Mason returns to America in August, after "The Idler" is taken off at the St. James Theater.

IS SLAVIN AN ARTIST! His Presence Here May Lead to a Prosecution Under the Contract Labor Law,

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.) NEW YORK, June 20 .- Is Slavin, the Australian pugilist, an artist? is the problem that the experts of the Treasury De-partment have been requested to solve by Chief Contract Labor Inspector Mulholland. In the official solution of the question Dr. J. A. Dougherty, a rich young blood, of Philadelphia, has much more interest than either Mr. Slavin or Mr. Mitchell, for if the experts say that Slavin is not an artist, the United States District Attor-ney for the county of Philadelphia may be-gin proceedings against the doctor for the recovery of $2,000 for violating the contract labor large labor law. Inspector Mulholland's interest in the matter was aroused on June 5 by a letter from Mrs. Worrell, of Philadelphia, who wanted to know why it was that two En-glish professional pugs, Frank Slavin and Charles Mitchell, can be brought to this country to appear in public exhibitions and pugilistic contests under a contract with a Dr. J. A. Dougherty, and allowed to violate the law in its every meaning, when an American lady cannot bring a servant from Europe for her own use. Mr. Mulholland sent Colonel F. F. Lee out to find Slavin and Mitchell. All that he wanted was to get m affidavit from the pugilists to prove the existence of a contract. Mitchell said that he was willing to make any number of affidavits to oblige the Colonel. Mr. Mul-holland said that the affidavits would be sent to Washington wanted to know why it was that two
