island, and while the visiting physicians have an immense amount of work cut out for them on the lengthy programme of subjects to be discussed, they are contriving to get their share of amusement, and are already ardent patrons of most every local amusement device.

The Pittsburg delegation is headed by Dr. James H. McClelland, who is Vice President of the convention, and who is also Chairman of the Committee on Medical Legislation. The committee's report, as read in high pitched tones by the Chairman, sounds like the key note of the policy of the convention. It declares that "in the construction of the laws providing for the establishment of State Examining' Boards, the allopathic school, by means of its single board system, is rapidly securing controlling power to be used in accordance with declarations of leaders of that school for more effectively "antagonizing," "smothering," obliterating, and "destroying" homeopathic interests," and recommends the adoption of wise and prudent measures for protecting and promoting the general interests of homeopathy.

Later on there is another stir of applause when Dr. McClelland rises to reply to a paper on Bacteriology, and a ripple of laughter runs around the room as he concludes with the remark that an important element in human existence was its ability to overcome the animal life which dists in the air and food, but for which fact, the germ theory being correct, "we would have been dead 1,000 years ago."

ing correct, "we would have been dead 1,000 years ago."

The words of the well-known physician were loudly applauded, but by none more heartily than by his colleagues, Drs. J. C. Burgher, B. F. Dake and Millie J. Chapman, The latter has won an enviable position in her chosen profession, and when her clear, unhesitating voice is heard her words are followed with deep interest. She wears no bonnet during the session, unlike her colleagues, Dr. Harriet Sartain and Dr. Brewster, of Baltimore.

The policy of the convention is aggressive. This was clearly shown in the report touching the refusal of certain insurance companies to permit homeopathists to serve as examining physicians. The programme of proceedings, however, is of interest only to the professional man.

An Eye on the Bathers.

An Eye on the Bathers.

The familiar faces of the regular life-guards, the fame of whose gallant deeds is known to almost every visitor, are begin-ning to appear in their old positions along the beach. As the bathing season has not yet reached the popular point they are not on active duty, but daily patrol the beach, keeping a close watch on the handful of surf disporters. Jack Williams, the middle weight pugilist; Hill Parker, Ed Bradford, of the famous Bradford brothers, whose serv-less as savers of human lives are known throughout the country, and Captain Clarke, who achieved considerable notoriety during the great riots in Pittsburg, are among the best known of the guards who are out and ready for duty. There are but few Pittsburg visitors who do not know these gallant guardians of the beach, and there are many who have had opportunities of shaking their hands after they have rescued some luckless

guardians of the beach, and there are many who have had opportunities of shaking their hands after they have rescued some luckless bather from a watery grave.

There are probably more "speak-easies" in Atlantic City just now, in proportion to the population, than in any other town in the country. This is a state of affairs brought about by the action of the local Council in increasing the liquor license fee to $500. The larger hotels and saloons are well able to pay this sum, but the burden falls heavily on the small cottages and boarding houses where the guests have at empty and the small cottages and boarding houses where the guests have at empty as been able to secure liquors. The proprietors of some of the latter places have at tempted to comply with 'the law by discontinuing the sale of liquor, but the experiment has had a disastrous effect on their business. The guest who has been accustomed to having a drink in the house became indignant when refused the privilege, and, packing his trunk, removed to some other other house, the proprietor of which had either paid the required fee or was sufficiently hardy to make faces at the liquor ordinance by serving intoxicating beverages without a license, So far there have been three arrests for selling liquor without a license, and the authorities threaten to keep up the fight all summer, but they will as easily regulate the occan tides as extirpate the merry "speak-easy," which has taken up its residence here for the scason.

The young man who sets the style of seasinore apparel has arrived, and the season may therefore be declared formally opened. Last year this young man dawned upon the dazzled beholders arrayed in fiannel of spotless white, cap of nautical cut, old-gold shoes, and shirt of many colors. His trousers were turned up at the bottom to convey the impression that his intimate friend, queen Victoria, had cabled him that it was raining in London. In a general way he was inoffensive, although he occasionally shocked society by sporting his snowy fiannels

At the Hotel Albion extensive preparations are in progress getting that house in readiness for the reception of the Pennsylvania State Editorial Association, which, 250 strong, are due to arrive Monday on their annual jaunt. The visiting scribes will remain here several days, and as the majority of them have been here before many a time, they will have no trouble in thoroughly inspecting the elephant in that time. The fact that Mayor Hoffman's order increasing the local police force came simultaneously with the announcement of the intended visit of the Editorial Association is significant, although the Mayor insists that the coincidence was purely accidental and without malice prepense.

Old Probabilities and Governor Pattison are evidently in league on the vetoing busi-ness, the former taking charge of all things of a social nature and the latter everything else. What rare sport Old Prob must have had the past week as he watched the preparations for picnics, lawn fetes and excursions, chuckling with glee the meantime in the knowledge that when the time for their enjoyment would arrive he would send lown great sheets of rain, and in that way make all present day outings retire before thoughts of the excursion taken by Noah

Pittsburg has many grievances against the smiling hypocrite, the greatest one being that by his untimely tears he prevented ent rely any enjoyment of the magnificent lawn at "Beechwood," the home of Mr. and lawn at "Beechwood," the home of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Frew on the occasion of the grand reception given there Thursday evening. Great preparations had been made for the event, and the decorations on the grounds represented several cays' labor by skilled artists, and the illumination was to have been the most perfect ever seen in the city. It is no wonder, then, that the guests were temporarily disappointed; but once within the lovely home all was forgotten in the enjoyments of the hour. Seven hundred guests and over were present, and yet the spaciousness of the apartments prevented any unpleasant crushing. any unpleasant crushing.

It may be given on the Kenmahr grounds and is to be the great Kenmahr grounds and is to be the great society event of the summer. Mr. Jonks is in correspondence with some of the theatrical stars of the East, and promises a first-class cast or none at all. He hopes to secure Marie Wainwright and Mina Gale for the principal roles and others accordingly. In spite of the sad ending of the New York presentation on Mrs. Stevens' grounds it was pronounced a thoroughly successful fushionable event and the most unique of unique events. This will not be in any sense an amateur affair, for as E. Legouve says in preparing his first book entitled, "Theater De Campagne," containing plays for amateurs, "An immense interval separate the veritable artist from the most distinguished amateur," and it is intended to make this event a great note.

The remark of Mr. Legouve is, however, in these days of eloquent study subject to a slight modification as has been witnessed in the carnival of elocution which Byron W. King, with his pupils has presented to the public at the Grand Opera House and in which there has been wire really year, elever character represensome really very elever character represen-lations. Some of the amateurs in the carnival have not been so very far short of professionals, and as a whole the affair has been a great surprise, and has announced to the public the certainty of a gradual growth in this city of a school for acting that will in time equal in all respects the amous Dion Boucicauit's school in New York. One thing particularly noticeable has been the exceeding gracefulness of the young performers, much of which is due to the careful Deisartean teaching given them by Mrs. King who is herself a model that would have greatly pleased the wonderful old originator of the system.

A Gathering of Pretty Women.

A Gathering of Pretty Women.

The McKee-Chalfant was the wedding of the week and one who is good authority says ere never were so many pretty women seen in such a small gathering in the annals of the city. And the most noticeable pretty ones were all young matrons, many of them arrayed in their wedding gowns. A number of handsome young ladies were present but they were outshown by the matrons. The bride was most becomingly attired and her mother, many affirm, never looked so well before. The elegant uniforms of the groom and his friends gave with their gold braid and buttons quite a distinguished aspect to the whole affair. The presents, this same authority says, were by all means the most magnificent and rarely beautiful of the city. And the most noticeable pretty the mest magnificent and rarely beautiful of any Pittsburg wedding. This fact is perhaps accounted for by the prominent position Mr. Chalfant occupies in the railroad and manufacturing worlds. Silver and cutglass predominated and no less than seven bandsome salad sets were displayed.

glass predominated and no less than seven nandsome salad sets were displayed.

Speaking of presents reminds me that one brought over from Europe by Miss Harris Patterson, who, with ner mother, Mrs. Jane T. Patterson, arrived home Thursday, is a decidedly pretty creation, and will be seen in the hands of a very piquant little bride this summer. It is a fan made of quills outlined and painted to represent a butterfly of the most gorkeous species, and is simply dazmost gorgeous species, and is simply dazzling in its beauty, especially in the evening when its colors show to the best advantage KATHLEEN HUSSEY-WATSON,

The strong domestic drama, 'Only a Farmer's Daughter," will be the attraction at Harris. Britton & Dean's house this week. A prominent St. Louis critic recently reviewed the company and performance as follows: "At Pope's the revised and improved story of Only a Farmer's Daughter' is being presented to good houses by a capable company. This play of Elliott Barnes' as revised by Marie Madison tells a pretty dramatic romance, and is now in much more satisfactory shape than at any of its previous visits to St. Louis. The part of Justine, the farmer's daughter, is taken acceptably by Josie Woodruff, and Nathalie Churchill in Josie Woodruff, and Nathalie Churchill in the double role of Mme. Laurent, the adventureas, and a New York society girl adds to the cast. Miss Georgia Sargeant, a St. Louis debutante, has the soubrette part, and is quite pleasing. Horace Raultan, Sam Robinson, W. R. Walters, Mrs. Emma Frank and Little Gracle are among the other members of the company who do good work, and the setting of the play is picturesque and attractive. VERY BUSY AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Visitors-What Pittsburgers Are Doing. ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. Chautauqua, June 20.—The thoughts of Chautauqua devotees are beginning to turn with pleasant anticipation to the summer pilgrimage to their Mecca. That little lake of the Indian name "cuddled doon" among the low hills of Western New York possesses a universal attraction that the purely fash-ionable watering place cannot claim. It is cosmopolitan. On its shores of gently undulating green meadows, freekled with woods, a congenial home is provided for every class. er end of the lake is Jamestown, At the other end of the lake is Jamestown, the city of seventy times seven hills, reached by a narrow, sinuous outlet lined with trees. Jamestown glories in about 17,000 population, and on the strength of this has undertaken naving and electric lighting. Imagine Jamestown's outpost of hills dotted with electric stars! What a brilliant sight it will present as one unexpectedly. electric stars! What a brilliant sight it will present as one unexpectedly catches glimpses of it at a sudden turn in descend-the dark outlet of an evening! The street railway company is changing its motive power to electricity, and when the summer visitors arrive they will find artistic vestibule cars, finished in black and gold outside and white and gold inside, with richly upholstered seats, curtained windows, incandescent lights and an almost aggressively clean and proper and elegant air.

The Improvements at Chautauqua. Just at present Chautauqua is in an unatractive state, owing to the piles of rubbish and building materials. Many cottages, at an average cost of $2,000, are being erected this spring. Among the finest is a $4,000 summer home for Dr. T. L. Flood, of Meadville, Ps., editor of the Chautauquan. An addition is being built to Bishop Vincent's cotdition is being built to Bishop Vincent's cottage. The hotel is transformed by drab paint, white blinds, durk sashes and terracotta dome. In Miller Park, facing the lake, a handsome $10,000 arcade for stores and booths is being erected. A much needed railway station is in process of construction near where the old station and promenade were situated. A woman's pavilion costing $3,000 is contemplated. In all about $50,000 will be expended in improvements.

With charming originality of thought and expression the Chautauqua management gravely announces that the prospects for a successful season are brighter than ever before. This year as well as next will be Columbus year, preparatory to the World's successful senson are originer than ever before. This year as well as next will be Columbus year, preparatory to the World's Fair. The stereopticon lectures will be on America, American history, literature, government and social conditions. The illuminated fleet will represent the landing of Columbus. In short, the programme will be a systematic course of instruction on our native land. Many of the old favorites among speakers, musicians and elocutionists have been secured. Dr. J. M. Buckley, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Dr. Richard T. Ely, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, George Riddle, Mrs. Zerelda Wallace and Frances E. Willard are among the promised attractions. Rogers' Band and Orohestra will again give twilight promenade concerts at the pier. The corps of instructors will be much the same as heretofore, with the exception of Dr. J. W. Dickenson, of Boston, formerly principal of the Teachers' Retreat, and Miss Mary B. Dennis, teacher of the Walking Science Class for Children, who have resigned their positions. The Attractions at Lakewood.

As Chautauqua is famed for its educational dvantages and daily lectures and enterfine hotels, fashionable class of guests and gay social life. It has the most imposing appearance of any of the points, with its stretch of perfectly kept lawn and flower beds and its two elegant hotels on the lake front. The Sterlingworth, modeled after an English iun, would delight the heart of the most exacting Anglomaniac. An English drag will be one of its new features this year. A layer greenhouse has been added to drag will be one of its new features this year. A large greenhouse has been added to the Kent House. Both hotels are undergo-ing repairs. Sorg, of Middletown, O., the millionijre tobacco manufacturer, has a $10,000 cottige under way. Colonel J. M. Schoonmaker, of Pittsburg, and Colonel Andrew Cowas, of Eouisville, are erecting magnificent summer residences. Some of the other builders are W. L. McCord, of Pittsburg; Hon. Lewis Gunckel, of Dayton. O.; John C. Baker, of Cincinnati, and M ss Forsyth, of Allegheny City. It is proposed to build an opera house and provide the best attractions throughout the season.

can't throw a stone without hitting a well-known visitor. I stood on the boardwalk the other day watching the stream of pedestrians that flowed by, and out of curiosity noted the names of prominent people who drifted past during a half hour. The list of names thus secured was long and varied, and included men of mark in every walk of life. Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore represented the clerical element. He is resting here at the house of the Augustinian Brothers as the guest of the Rev. Father Fedegan, the pastor of St. Nicholas' Church. Hon. Rufus Blodget, United States Senator from New Blodget, United States Senator from New Blorger, Congressman J. C. Burrows, of Michigan, Speaker pro tem of the House of Representatives; Hon. John Russell Young, ex-Minister to China; Hon. Andrew Fulton, ex-Mayor of Pittsburg; Henry W. Raymond, private secretary to Secretary Tracy; H. C. Duval, private secretary to Chauncey M. Depew, Paul Boyton, the famous swimmer; Judge M. Russell Thayer, E. F. Albee, John A. Forepaugh and John J. Jermon, a trio of great Eastern theatrical managers, all strolled by the ocean pavilion where I sat during a short half hour.

The cottage has been put in thorough repair for the occupancy of the family, and there is no finer seaside villa on the Atlantic coast since it has been remodeled. The President will remain until Tuesday, and hereafter he will probably visit the family about once every two weeks. By invitation of Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. General George E. By invitation of Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. General George E. Williams and Miss Ella Warfield came with the party, and will remain at the cottage for a short season. The President has been working very hard lately, doing double duty, owing to Secretary Blaine's illness, and he was thoroughly thred out when ne came. The short rest has helped him, and he can now dispose of his work with still greater promptitude.

During the week the seasions of the convention of the Master Mechanics of the various railroads of the United States have been held at the Stockton Hotel, where about $00 to $000 delegates, with their wives and lady friends, have been with them. Their social entertainment has been as successfully carried out as has their business seasion. Wednesday night they enjoyed a grand ball at the Stockton. A majority of the delegates left on a special train for their home yesterday morning.

FLEEING FROM THE HEAT. The Season at Bedford Springs Begins Earlier Than Ever Before.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 BEDFORD SPRINGS, June 20.-The hot weather is bringing the summer visitors with a rush, and has advanced the season at least two weeks. Previously at this time the hotels were hardly through putting on the finishing touches, while now the buildings, lawns an walks are picturesque with the gay costumes of visitors. The old timers who are here are highly pleased with the many improvements. One of the most notable was the tearing down of "Old Crockford," which, while standing, brought back to mind no doubt nights spent at the card table. It is said that games of all kinds, from "baccarat" to poker, were always going on there, with no rules as to a limit.

Lake Caledonia, protected from the hot sun by massive trees, which are Bedford's pride and joy, is fast becoming popular for boating and fishing parties. It was here the late John Hampton spent many pleasant hours with his rod and reel.

The tally-ho will make its first trip of the season to the "Willows," the favorite drive, no doubt on account of the elegant layoft of chicken and waffles, which is always the main object in view.

At this writing over 400 guests are here, a majority of which are newspaper men with their wives and sweethearts, from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. They are here as the guests of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and will remain several days. Next week the Pharmaceutical Association of over 300 will arrive. The week following the State Teachers' Association, 1.000 strong, will come. These excursions will keep the Springs booming until July 10, and by that time the rush will have set in certainly. Bedford Springs is taking a new lease of life.

Prof. Jule Neff's famous Altoona Band, with 25 pieces, is here furnishing the music for the editorial fraternity. To night the large ballroom is handsomely decorated with flags, bunting, evergreens, flowers, etc., which show the work of an artist in that line, while the editors are tripping the light fantastic toe to elegant music.

The Sunday Disparch will reach here on the day of publication, being brought from Hyndman, 22 miles overland. The Disparch is the only Sunday paper reaching here before the following day, and will be appreciated by the guests at the hotel, especially the Pittsburgers will commence to arrive during the coming week, which is unusually early for the tide to set in from the City of Natural Gas.
