How Careless People Carry Off Pens and Holders at the Postoffice.

Fish and seake-stories are in order at this time of the year. Pittsburg is reputed to have more followers of Izaak Walton to the guare inch than any other city in America. Inst now there are two fishermen gadding the town who, like Yankee Doodle, are wearing big feathers in their caps. The tuse of all their pride is a eatch of gravling in Michigan streams, and is uninitiated will wonder why men should be puffed up with a record of 34 When it is said, however, that many ld angler in these diggings has often send of grayling but never saw one, the success of these fishermen will begin to dawn on even schoolboys. The successful fishers are General Passenger Agent A. E. Clark and Traveling Passenger Agent L. M. Worden, of the Lake Eric road. They returned to the city during the last week with 12 of the fish and the scalps of the others daugling from their belts.

A Very Eare and Gamey Fish. Mr. Worden states that grayling is one of the rarest fish on the continent, and is only found in three places in America, in the Manistee and Au Sable rivers in Michigan, a certain Montana streem, and in one of the rivers of Alaska. It is much like a trout, but larger, and is one of the gamiest fishes that swim, and for this reason gives so much pleasure to the angler.

When they arrived at the Sturgeon river on the trip, the natives, as usual, had the old story to tell that it was too early in the season to catch grayling, but one old tellow was found who said he would show them where the fish abound, But it was in the Manistee river, and they would have to drive through a thick forest fo get there. With their guide, they started in a wagon through the wilderness, and it was at the time of the Michigan forest fires. The flames raged all around them, and at times, Mr. Worden said, he thought the thick smoke would choke them to death. The ground was knee deep with hot askes where the fire had swept away the trees and underland. underbrush. Despite such disadvantages they pushed on and finally reached the

No Angleworms to Be Found.

It was a great day, and they caught lenty of grayling. In that country angle rms are not found. Repeated efforts have been made to transplant them, but they can't live in the sandy soil Mr. Worden insisted on using a worm and adopting trout metics, but the guide said it wouldn't do. The plan, however, worked Grayling prefer to lie in little pools near he surface of the water. They shine like silver, and when they take the hook they dart at it with a swiftness that makes the sportsman's head swim. Then begins a anguifacent straggle between man and fish, and quite frequently the latter comes off victorious. Mr. Worden showed some of the fish to the veteran angler, Dr. Shearman, and Fish Warden Hague. They knew all about graying, were well posted on its habits, but confessed that they were the first they had ever seen. It is not much wonder that Messrs, Clark and Worden are so righly elated over their success. Many fish for grayling, but few get them.

In this connection it may be said that Superintendent Porter is making a feature in the census of the annual catch of fish in inter-ior streams of the country. Many middle-aged Pittsburgers can remember when the local rivers were a great fishing ground until oil was struck in the Bradford region, and the oil was struck in the Bradford region, and the greasy stuff has succeeded in depopulating the rivers of the funy tribe. At least, this renson and the construction of dams in the Monongahela are given to account for the loss of fish in the three rivers.

A Beautiful Sight of Long Ago. What a beautiful sight the confluence of these streams, with their wooded banks, must have presented to the early settlers. In those days the rivers teemed with lift, and a great many varieties of fish were cought. A gentleman said the other day that as late as 1860, when McKee's Rocks still retained much of its pristine glory, he passed many a pleasant hour catching fish at this point, and he always went home with a large string. He added that he could remember when a boy that his father and grandfather were in the habit of spending the support were in the habit of spending the support when a boy that his father and grandfather were in the habit of spending the support were supported to the support when the support were supported to the supported to the support w the summer evenings fishing in the Ohio river near Woods' Run. This was between 1850 and 1855, and in those days the river away below that place was lined with rafts brought down from the up-country districts. He says in the spring fresh water herring in great schools would come up the river, and his father would stand on the rafts and in a few hours catch and in a few hours catch any number of them. No one hears of herring in either of the rivers now, and outside of catthsh and suckers few fish are found in these streams. A good deal of seid is turned into the rivers from various manufactories, and the finny creatures have either been killed or forced to

"I think," said a gentleman yesterday, "that our forefathers must have been awfully hard up for names to give the States and cities. Witness how often the word new appears in American geographical appellations. It is New York, New Hampshire, New England, etc. Now, Brooklyn and the metropolis ought to be united and called Manhattan. Pittsburg, except in the postoffice guides goes everywhere as overing Allegheny, and the two cities, while not one in name and government are one in reality. Why keep up such sense-less divisions of population. "It is funny that with so many musical on the coming two years. The next move on the carpet is the gift of the site on Old avenue to the newsies by Mrs. Schenley. The promoters of the Home offered the lady $5,000 for the property, and they are not aware that the ground will be given free. A friend close to Colonel Herron, Mrs. Schenley's agent, states that the deed for the property was not across the water some The demand for iron ore continues heavy an extraordinary degree, and furnace people are beginning to feel alarmed lest the property was sent across the water some-time ago, and it is expected back shortly when the announcement of the gift will be hey fail to get as much transported to the interior. The Carnegies wanted to make a ontract a few days ago to take 400 cars when the announcement of the gift will be made. At one stage of the game the Duquesne Traction people thought the road would have to be run down High street, and they made an offer to go through the site. Then the Pennsylvania Company stopped negotiations by securing an option on the property, but they have notified Mrs. Schenley that they don't want it. Nobody seems to know what the railroad officials intend to do with the ground except to put up a new depot. daily from Fairport, but only 150 cars are being loaded. The furnaces all want to get their hematic ores under cover as soon as possible, and this is the cause for the present rush, as there is no hurry for so much ore for immediate use.

Indian names that the early settlers did not adopt them instead of aping the English, and calling everything new after British and French towns."

Quite a number of consumers have commenced to lay in their stock for next year; the two leading steel works in the West have made their entire purchases. Bessethe heart of the city.

The promoters think that the Governor was induced to sign the bill through personal influence. Numerous trips have been made to Harrisburg to see him about it, and some believe that the fact that C. L. Magee mer ores have been selling as much as $1.50 below last year's prices, while the reduction on non-Bessemer ores was from $1.20 to $1.40. A great deal of ore was left over

Si 40. A great deal of ore was left over from last year, and as a consequence the purchases are necessarily small.

A good deal of emphasis has been placed by ore sellers on the fact that last year's ore was all sold. This is no doubt responsible for the further fact that many small com-panies have practically closed down and larger ones are working with greatly-reduced forces.

So far as furnacemen are concerned the possession of last year's relatively dear ore places them in an unfavorable position, as they must compete with a product from cheaper raw material.

DELEGATES ARE HOMESICK.

Rushing Business

The Amalgamated Association will probably adjourn next Wednesday. The Youngstown contingent tried very hard to pass a motion yesterday providing for the election of officers on Monday so they could get Many business men have acquired the habit of sticking a pencil or pen behind the ear when not using it. They have occasion to address an envelope here, and while scaling it from force of habit put the pen in the usual place and walk off. After they have gone quite a distance they discover the pen back of the ear, and, finding it too far to go back, throw it away. It's a small matter, they reason, and Uncle Sam is rich, but it would almost take a mint of money to keep the postoffices in home, but after a lively discussion their motion was lost. The election will consequently be the last thing on the pro-gramme. It is now thought the principal officers will be re-elected. It is said that Jerry Dougherty, of the Southside is a can-didate for James Nutt's place on the Board of Trustees. Of the old board Ed O. Keilis he only one who will be re-elected. There was another conference on the scale rapidly, and it is thought the scale will be signed Monday or Tuesday. The conven-tion did not meet yesterday afternoon. The committees will all be ready to report Mon-day morning, and the remaining business will be put through with a rush.

The new clause in the agreement, pro-viding for nine hours for the heaters in guide and bar mills, created a heated discussion in the conference yesterday. The rule requires that when a heat is put in at 4 o'clock in the morning, the last heat must be in not later than 1:15. Even this will give the men from 10 to 101/2 hours' work. The manufacturers claim that this will be an injustice to them, because it will have a tendency to reduce the number of heats and consequently the output. The men admit that it may reduce the number of heats occasionally, but not often enough to injure the manufacturers.

It is contended that ten hours is long enough for a man to be at the furnace. The the evening. The movement is christened "A Grand Rally for God, Home and Humanity," and A. F. Bryce, the local secretary, says it represents the only really anti-monopoly party in the country, the liquor power being the greatest monopoly known, and through and by which all lesser monopolies exist.

Mr. Bryce says that the Prohibition party contains the best features of all other parties, without their degrading accompaniments manufacturers claim they do not work all the time, but on the other hand it is argued that the men need all the rest they get be-tween heats. The discussion on this matter grew warm at times, and was of a character as to indicate that there will be considerable hesitancy on the part of the manufacturers in agreeing to the third clause.

Reduction in Aluminum The Pittsburg Reduction Company has filed a motion against the Cowles Electric, Smelting and Aluminum Company for a temporary order restraining the latter from lowering the price of aluminum below $1 50 That coal miners are abnormally exposed to accidents is proven by the great number whose eves are injured or destroyed. Mr. Adam Hodge, of Jackson Center, Mercer county, is one of the unfortunates in having his right eyeball torn open by a glancing pick, allowing a portion of its contents to protrude through the wound. The wound apparently made favorable progress until two months had passed, when severe inflammation set in, riving extreme pain and pound. An order was issued by the courts in Cleveland some time ago, but it conrts in Cleveland some time ago, but it was directed against the Cowles Company, and applied to them only.

The plaintiffs now claim that another company, known as the Cowles Syndicate Company, and which in reality is the English branch of the company against whom the suit is brought, has advertised aluminum at 90 cents. They claim the Cowles Company is trying to evade the order of mation set in, giving extreme pain and weakened the other eye. Allegheny's Mysterious Burglar With an East End Robbery—Held for Court on Two Charges. George Wilson, alias Anderson, the Alle heny burglar, was given a hearing before Mayor Wyman, of Allegheny, yesterday afternoon. He was held for court on the charges of carrying concealed weapons and burglary preferred by Superintendent Muth. The hearing commenced about 3 o'clock. The prisoner pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying concealed weapons, but not guilty to that of burglary.

Mrs. Kate Lyons, of Stanton avenue, above Butler street, Eighteenth ward, was called and positively identified Wilson as the man who entered her house on the morning of February 13. She stated that he effected an entrance through a kitchen win-dow about 3 o'clock in the morning of that date. She saw him when he was coming from a room occupied by her son. On that occasion he had stolen a pair of pants and $1 07. The second time her house was en-tered was six weeks later. A gold watch and about $9 were taken. Mrs. Lyons however, did not see the burglar at that time. She could not identify the watch found on Wilson but a gold collar button with the letter L inscribed on it she believed belonged to her son.

The prisoner could not explain what object he had in carrying the set of burglar tools that were found in his dinner bucket when he was arrested.

The Mayor deemed this identification sufficient and held Wilson for court. He was committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail on the former charge and $1,500 on the

Mrs. Lyons stated after the hearing that about the time her house was robbed the homes of several other residents in the neighborhood were also entered. Amon them she said was that of Mr. Isherwood where a silver watch and $60 were stolen, and houses of John Herron and Mr. Mason. The set of burglar tools that Wilson car-ried was almost complete and of the finest make. His only explanation of why he carried them was: "I can use them in different kinds of work."
