knew nothing of the stolen goods being buried in the cellar.

Charles M. Clark, one of the defendants, was placed on the stand. He gave his record since he came here from Cumberland, Md., where he was born. He had worked at the Homestead Steel Works, for Miller, Sterrett & Co., for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and the Westinghouse Company at Wilmerding, where he was semployed when arrested. The only time when he was idle was in last December, when he was sick.

The afternoon session of the trial began at lockock. The examination of C. M. Clark was continued. He testified that he knew Fitzsimmons and had first met him in February, 1850. He knew him by the name of A. G. Budd, and while living in Allegheny Fitzsimmons had boarded with him. Continuing the witness said: "Fitzsimmons was an installment agent, he dealt in dressgoods, Jewelry and umbrellas and in other goods and was frequently away from the CALESMAN —A NO. 1 SPECIALITY SALES—had. When Detectives Gilkinson and Murphy called at my house I told them I did not know where Fitzsimmons was. Gilkinson asked me to describe Fitzsimmons. I told him he looked like an English Jaw. The night Fitzsimmons was arrested I was upstairs about 8 o'clock and heard a noise downstairs. I called down 'Who is there?' and the reply was, 'Me, Budd.' I went down; he told me he was nearly starved and wanted something to cat, and he told me he had been shot. I told him he couldn't stay in the house. I gave him some meat and bread and wrapped it in some paper and put it in his pocket and then told him togo. My wife cried down from the head of the stairs. For God's sake go and give yourself up.' "I personally had no connection with the robbery or the circumstences attending it." The cross-examination was then commenced. The witness said he had come to Pittsburg January 31. He was closely questioned as to how many watches he had carried at one time at Wilmerding. He said he had only carried two of different kinds, one of his own and one that Pitzsimmons had given him as security for a loan of money.

Mr. Robb then pulled a key from his pocket and said: "Didn't you have this key and he remembered that this was true. S. H.

Aiken, telegraph operator, testified that he had sent a telegram on January 31 to L.
Snowden, 116 Colwell street, Pittsburg. The witness said he testified under an order from court. J. D. Flyun, manager of the Western Union office in Pittsburg, testified to the receipt of the telegram, and Samuel Glison, a messenger, to its delivery.
Laura Snowden was recalled and identified copies of the telegram to Mr. Resudon.
She said she knew she was indicted in the case. To Mr. Robb she said she had been introduced to Fitzsimmons while he worked for Joseph Horne & Co. by Mr. Holting, manager of the store. Martin Holting was placed on the stand and said he had introduced them in the store. duced them in the store.

George Dulton, of the McKeesport branch of the Singer Machine Company, said he had gone to Clark's home after Fitzsimmons on March 10, and met Clark there, who told him Fitzsimmons would be back in two weeks.

When asked how he knew, Clark replied hat was for him to know. Clark said Fitzthat was for him to know. Clark said Fitzsimmons was a dangerous man and no one man could take him: he always wont armed.

The visit was not about the Schmitt robbery and it was not mentioned.
Mary Nicell, a child of 10 years, was called and responded, frightened to tears. Judge Slagle quieted her before he would permit her to be placed on the stand. The child's story was that she knew the principal defendant and saw him at his home on March 15; be had a satchel like that which was shown here in court. She was at the house, because Mrs. Fitzsimmons had asked her to
