Rev. Mr. Milligan, One of the Suspended Preachers, Talks to

HIS USUAL LARGE CONGREGATION.

Dr. McAllister's l'ulpit Occupied by a North of Ireland Divine.

SOME OF YESTERDAY'S LOCAL TEXTS

The usual large congregation was present at Cyclorama Hall yesterday afternoon to hear Rev. J. R. J. Milligan. His subject was: "Transformed, not Conformed." He brought out very prettily the idea of one being transformed into Christianity by association. A man is known by the company he keeps. Good associations, he believed, would make good men, and from that he argued that by association with the Bible and with God men were transformed into Christ, he said, was the exemplification of the idea that only the Deity could keep pure and yet in constant communion with been likened to the rose, because He grew among thorns and difficulties and vet was pure; or to the lily which ruises its snowy purity from the foulness of the marshes. Said he: "Many men do not believe in prayer in the abstract, but they do devoutly reverence that prayerfulness which characterized the lives of a sainted mother or sister—that prayerfulness which did not nake them merely conform to religious forms, but wanstermed them into living Christians. Christ's power was not all in the words that He spoke, but in the life of purity that He lived among men. That was the secret of His You may not believe in a Christianity that is written on paper, but you do reverence the Christianity that your mother lived. You may also be transformed by reading the Bible, for a book is but the impress of the author's mind and in this you read the mini of God, and the more you associate with it the more you see in the same light that He saw. Still one gets nearest to God by prayer, for there one has his conversation in heaven. You feel in true prayer that you are actually tokening with God. There are hosts of prayers that never reach higher than the ceiling. The attitude of prayer is entirely dependent on circumstances. It is all in feeling that one talks to God, and such a feeling must bring about a transformation.

JOHN'S VISION OF GOD

Is the Theme Rev. R. S. Smith Discourse

Upon at a Campuceting Yesterday. Rev. R. S. Smith, pastor of the Merrill M. E. Church, conducted services at Ideal Grove, on the Perrysville road, yesterday afternoon and evening. At the former services their was but a sparse audience, Rev. Mr. Smith discoursed on "John's Vision of the Glorious Redeemer." John, said the preacher, had a vision of the caurch of Christ under the representation of seven golden candlesticks. These represented the seven Asiatic churches which John described. In a spiritual sense the erm may relate to the completeness of the church, as the number seven, in the Scripture, indicated perfection.

As an example they had the fact that God rested on the seventh day, and again, every seventh year was a Sabbathical year. They read also of 7 priests, 7 trumpets, 7 churches, 7 seals, 7 spirits, 7 angels. John saw the blessed Christ in the midst of seven olden candlesticks. In this vision of the goiden candisticks. In this vision of the Redeemer there were exhibited the em-blems of His eternity. "His eyes were as flames of fire." They were so brilliant, so searching: all was naked before Him; He saw the end from the beginning. He knows the heart and He searcheth the thoughts of the children of men. His knowledge is per-

A PARALLEL FROM HISTORY.

Rev. Mr. Davidson, of Ireland, on Spiritual

Leprosy at the Eighth Street Church. Rev. Mr. Davidson, a young minister from the North of Ireland, who is visiting here, occupied the pulpit in the Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian Church at the afternoon service yesterday. His sermon consisted of a running commentary on the fifth chapter II. Kings. Taking the first verse, the preacher declared that it exhibited the world as being full of inconsistencies. This King of Syria, referred to in the verse, had all the wealth, all the power, and all the happiness the world could shower upon him, withal he was unclean, he was a leper There were millionaries of the present my who were as leprous, as sinful, as the King of old, for they were born in sin, and whoever is in sin must be leprous. In the olden time leprosy was of two kinds, white and black. Both were incurable. The leprosy of this age is not so apparent, but it is there; invisible, but it exists in the souls of the ungodly. This form of leprosy was as incumble as the physical description; there was not a man in the world who could remove leprosy from their souls. There was but one means, one river of purifying grace, the river of the blood of Christ. SIN IS A DISEASE,

But It Is Also a Crime, According to Rev.

R. S. Tarrant's Views. Rev. R. S. Tarrant, of St. Mark's Episco pal Church, South Eighteenth street, took for his text last evening Isaiah, 53d chapter and part of the fifth verse: "With His Stripes We Are Healed." He said that no other book of the Bible portrayed the sufferings that were revealed in this chapter, and explained it from the Savior's baptism in the River Jordan up until the time that Pontius Pilot washed his hands of Him and turned Him over to be crucified, and when they asked Him to heal Himself, Isaiah stood by his side and said, "With His strapes I am healed."

'Sin is looked on as a disease. Many oints resemble a disease, but just as many that are crimes. Sin enters the human frame, disturbs the mind, and darkens the man's soul. Nothing seems to go right. It like disease. It cats its way out and keeps knocking and knocking at his consci-ence until he falls in God's presence, a meral wreck, saying, "With His stripes I

Rev. John Kovacs preached to a congregation of Hungarians at the Grace Reformed Church yesterday afternoon, speaking to them in their own language. The services were held in the lecture room, which was well filled.

WHAT CONSTITUTES CHARACTER.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland Inculcates Strong Teaching on a Pertinent Subject. At the evening services at the Second Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. Sutherland A. M., regarding the formation of a council preached to a large congregation on the sub-Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. Sutherland ject of "Character." He said in part: "The Apostle Jude, in the text, looks upon men, morally, as so many structures or edifices in course of erection by themselves. They are building something. That something is character. We are all familiar with the saying that 'every man is the architect of his own fortune.' It is something built up by his own skill and efforts. It is also true that every man is the architect of his own character. Others may have some effect upon a man's reputation, but he alone determines what his character will be. Character partains to the person himself. It is the assemblage of qualities that distinguishes one person from another. The first care in building the structure of human character should be in having a secure foundation. Otherwise it will not stand the severe tests to which it will be subjected in life. Faith in Christ puts within the soul the principle of spiritual life. The character that does not rest on Christ, that is not inspired by Him, does not begin right and can never end right.

"In the second place character-building is the worst elements. For that reason He has a progressive work—a work requiring time, here likened to the rose, because He grew as all building does. We see how men become learned and wealthy and how buildings grow day by day, but we do not act on the fact that character grows in the same way; that it is the sum of what we are doing; the sum of the little acts of life. 'All possibilities are before the one who will work, work patiently, knowing that in due time he will reap if he faint not. This is the hardest lesson to impress on the minds of the young. In fact, none of us are wholly alive to it. Character needs a wise choice of material. Think for a mo-ment what kind of an edifice human character is. Think of its design and uses, and of the atmosphere in which it stands, and the storms of moral heat and cold it must endure, and of the time for which it ought to be built. The body we possess may not last a great many years, but the man who dwells in it will live forever. He will sur-vive not only the decay of his own body but the wreck of matter and the crash of Surely nothing but the best of worlds. material should be used in such a structure as this.

COWARDLINESS A CRIME.

A Wilkinsburg Preacher Who Says His Calling Is Not Free From It.

Rev. Mr. Bates, of St. Stephen's Episco pal Church, Wilkinsburg, preached yester-day morning on the subject: "We ought to obey God rather than man." He took his text from Acts v., verse 29. He commenced his discourse by a picturesque description of the Apostles preaching in the Temple, and their arrest by order of the authorities. Then Peter, when charged with being a disturber of the public peace, simply answered, "We ought to obey God rather than man." The pastor then went "Now, that was a very plain, self-evi on: "Now, that was a very plain, self-evident truth that Peter asserted, but it fook a good deal of manliness, after all, to stund up there and say it. And as I thought upon the matter I was impressed with the amaz-ing part that cowardliness plays in leading men into sin. How few are the Peters who when the critical moment comes, have the courage to stand up and assert that 'We ought to obey God rather than man.' speaker said he believed that cowardliness in the sight of their fellowmen is at the root of nine-tenths of the sin in the civil-ized world. He referred to the moral cowardice of young men who fall into vice beone in they lear the jeers of their compan-ions if they insist upon following the straight and narrow path of virtue.

The preacher paid his respects to doctors, lawyers and others, showing that they were all cowards in one way and another. He did not spare his own calling. "There are cowards in the pulpit, too—numbers of them—numbers of ministers who are afraid to preach what the word of God commands them to, for fear of what the people will them to, for fear of what the people will say—afraid to preach brotherly love, because of a feud in the great man's family upon whose patronage the church depends. Afraid to cry down too much the abuse of alcohol, for a certain large supporter of the church is known to indulge himself too freely, and he might take offense." He multiplied instances, and he spoke very plainly of the cowardice of clergymen in many directions. Mr. Bates concluded with these words: "When tempted to cowardliness remember the Great Presence remember the heroism of your Master, Christ, and boldly answer all temptation with the words, 'We ought to obey God rather than man.'"

JOHN HAMMILL DEAD.

An Ex-Superintendent of the Pittsburg Fire Department Dies From a Paralytic Stroke-Served Long and Faithfully for the Public Safety.

John Hammill, one of the oldest firemen and an ex-chief of the Pittsburg department, died at his home, No. 176 First avenue, yesterday morning, from the effects of an atterday morning, from the effects of an at-tack of paralysis. He was 55 years of age, and has been in the fire department nearly 30 years. Mr. Hammill was at one time an athlete of considerable reputation in his younger days, being extremely clever in the fistic art and an oarsman of great ability. He was a brother of Jimmy Hammill, who about 20 years ago was the champion single sculler of America.

In May, 1875, Hammill was elected superintendent of the paid fire department, succeeding William White, who had held the position for two years. In July, while on his way to a fire, Hammill was attacked with paralysis and had to be carried home. He lay in a helpless state for nearly a year but through the efforts of his friends kept his official position until the year for which he was elected expired, his duties being performed by John H. McElroy. William White was re-elected at the end of Hammill's term and served one year, being suc ceeded in 1877 by Superintendent Evans. After recovering from the stroke Hammill was made storekeeper for the fire department, a position he held at the time of the second paralytic attack about two weeks ago, which ended in his death.

His home was with Daniel Echols, of the No. 2 company, to whom he was related. He was unmarried. The remains will be interred from Mr. Echols' home at 9 o'clock o-morrow morning with the usual cere mony attendant upon a fireman's funeral,

A MOUNTAIN OF A MOLEHILL The Other Side of a Recent Conneautville Jr

O. U. A. M. Report. Writing to THE DISPATCH under date of July 18, a resident of Conneautville says: Your issue of to-day contains a statement from State Councilor Collins, of the Jr. O. U. is incorrect and very misleading in many particulars, making a "mountain of a mole-hill." As I am one of the "Many Citizens" referred to, I would like to give a correct referred to, I would like to give a correct version of the affair. 'Tis true there were some letters written, but instead of 51 the number was 24. The purpose was not to intimidate or frighten anyone, only to enlighten some of them, as a number of the would-be members claimed they nover heard of the order before.

The organizers of the council claimed it was simply a beneficial order, paying a certain amount a week to each member in case of sickness and didn't interfere with any man's rights, politically or otherwise, when tain amount a week to each member in case of sickness and didn't interfere with any man's rights, politically or otherwise, when it is well known the contrary is true. The letters sent to those people did not state one-half what could be said against it. I know scores of instances where the order has opposed men for office simply on account of their religion.

In regard to the new council formed at Conneautville, it does not contain the "foremost citizens" of the place, being made up largely of boys; nor is there a "large number of professional men included among the members." There is only one. Another misstatement in the interview is that the author of the letters was accused face to face and admitted his guilt. Such is not the case. Neither did the letters sent to the aspiring members "act as a boomerang." for several as good of tizens as there are in the place, who deprecated seeing an order started in their midst that will certainly do no good and can do a great deal of harm. They were sent in kindness, not in malice. Yours respectfully,
