The Potent High Chair.

place is kept at the table for his son-in-law, a celebrated warrior, David by name. The guests, jeweled and plumed, come in and take their places. When people are invited to a king's banquet, they are very apt to go. But before the covers are litted from the feast, Saul looks around and finds a vacant scat at the table. He says within himself, peritaps andfalls, "What does this mean? Where is my son-in-law? Where is David, the great warrior? I invited him. I ex-pected him. What a vacant chair at the King's banquet? The fact was that David, the warrior, had been scatted for the last time at his father-in-law's table. The day before Jonathan had coaxed David to go and occupy that place at the table, saving to David in the words of my text, "Thou shall trouble. A pioneer in California says that for the Toroble. A pioneer in California says that for the first year or two after his residence in Sierra Nevada county, there was not a single child in all the reach of a hundred miles. But the Fourth of July came, and the miners were gathered together, and they were celebrat-ing the Fourth with oration, and poem, and a boisterous brass band, and while the band was playing, an infant's voice was heard crying, and all the miners were startled, and the swarthy man began to think of their wives and children far away; and their hearts were thrilled with home-sickness as they heard the baby cry. But the music went on, and the child cried louder and loader, arying to down out the infantile in-terruption, when a swarthy miner, the tears rolling down his face, got up and shook his fist and said: "Stop that noisy band and give the baby a chance." Ohi there was pathos in it, as well as good cheer in it. There is nothing to arouse, and melt and subdue the soul like a child's voice. But when it goes away from you the high chair becomes a hicher chair, and there is hear before Jonatian had coaked David coaking to occupy that place at the table, saying to David in the words of my text, "Thou shalt be missed, because thy sent will be empty." The prediction was fulfilled. David was missed. His seat was empty. That one va-cant chair spoke louder than all the occu-pied chairs at the banquet.

Personality of Furniture.

In almost every house the articles of furniture take a living personality. That pic ure-a stranger would not see anything reture-a stranger would not see anything or markable cither in its design or execution but it is more to you than all the pictures of the Loncre and the Laxenheurg. You re-member who bought it and who modules the second strand strand is not the Loncre and the Laxenheurg. You re-member who bought it and who modules the second strand strand the Loncre and the Laxenheurg. You re-member who sang out of it, and that tradle-you remember who rocked it. And that Bible-you remember who rocked it. And that the second you remember who rocked in it. And that room-you remember who died in it. And that room-you remember house or elequent and so mighty voiced as the vacant chair. I suppose that before house or elequent and so mighty voice and the vacant chair. I suppose that before house or elequent and so mighty voice and the vacant chair. I suppose the vacant house of elequent and so mighty voice and the vacant chair. I suppose the vacant house of elequent and so mighty voice and the vacant chair in the vacant house of elequent and so mighty voice and the vacant chair in the vacant house of elequent and so mighty voice and the vacant chair in Windsor Castle, and at Prime was a great chair in the view probating the vacant chair in the view of rest due to you as compared with the probating the voice that and the rest of the the state of the rest to learn'. Are probating the voice the state of the rest to be and the rest and rest in windsor castle, and at Prime vacant chair in the view of the french nation: but all these chairs are probating the view of the state of the rest to be and the prime of the rest of the rest to be and the view of the the state of the rest to be and the view of the the state of the rest to be and the state of the the state of the rest to be and the state of the the state of the rest to be and the state of the the state of the rest to be and the state of the the state of the rest to be and the state of the the state of the rest to be and the state of the rest to be and the state of the state of the st markable either in its design or execution when it goes away from you the high chair becomes a higher chair, and there is deso-lation all about you. In three-fourths of the homes of this congregation there is a vacant high about high chair Somehow you never pet over it. There is no one to put to bed at night: no one to ask strange questions about God and heaven. Oh, what is the use of that high chair? It is to call you higher. What a drawing upward it is to have children in heaven! And then to call you higher. What a drawing upward it is to have children in heaven! And then it is such a preventive against sin. If a father is going away into sin he leaves his living children with their mother; but if a father is going away into sin what is he go-ing to do with his dead children floating about him and hovering over his every way-ward step? Oh, speak out, vacant high chair, and say. "Father, come back from sin; mother, come back from worldliness. I am watching you. I am waiting for you." With resp.-it to your child, the world of your with resp.-it to your child, the worlds of my text have been fulfilled: "Thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty." My hearers, I have gathered up the voices of your departed triends and tried to intone them into one invitation upward. I set in array all the vacant chairs of your homes and of your social circle, and I bid them ory out this morning: "Time is short. Eternity is near. Take my Savior. Be at peace with my God. Come up where I am. We lived together on earth, come let us live together in heaven." We answer that invitation. We come. Keep a seat for us, as Saul kept a seat for David, but that seat shall not be empty. And hi when we are all through with this world, and we have shaken hands all around for the last time, and all our chairs in the home circle and in the outside world shall be vacant, may we be worshiping God in that place from which we shall go out no more forever. First, I point out to you the father's vacant chair. Old men always like to sit in the same place and in the same chair. They somehow feel more at home, and some-times when you are in their place and they come into the room, you jump up suddenly and say, "here, father, here's your chair." The probab lity is, it is an armchair, for he The probability is, it is an armchair, for he is not so strong as he once was, and he needs a little upholding. His hair is a little frosty, his gums a little depressed, for in his early days there was not much dentistry. Per-haps a cane chair and old-fashioned apparel, for though you may have suggested some improvement. In there does not want any of your nonsense. Grandfather never had much admiration for new-fangled notions. I sat at the table of one of my partshioners in a former concregation; an aged man was at the table, and the son was presiding, and the father and the son was presiding and the table, somewhat abrabily addressed the son and suld: "My son, don't try to show off because the minister is here." Your father never liked any new one.

Some stand speechlees in their shock of delight. They sing. They quiver with excessive gladness. They gaze on the temples, on the palaces, on the waters, on each other. They weave their joy into gar-lands, they spring it into triumphal arches, they strike in on timbrels, and then all the oved ones gather in a great circle around loved ones gather in a great circle around the throne of God-itathers, mothers, broth-ers, sisters, sons and daughters, lovers and friends, haud to band around about the throne of God-the circle ever widening-hand to hand, joy to joy, jubilee to jubilee, victory to victory, "until the day break and the shadows flee away. English Bank of the River Platte was an-nounced in London this morning and caused materially lower prices for all kinds of stocks there. Our market felt the effects of this decline, and while the opening prices here were above the London equivalents, large fractions were knocked off most of the ctive shares. The opportunity to sell the narket down was not to be neglected by the market down was not to be neglected by the bears, however, and they joined with the foreign sellers in pressing the market down. der the circumstances, but burning om and Lackawanna led the down ward movement, the hear pressure being specially heavy on the latter on account of some supposed trouble in the coal trade. Each of these stocks lost 1 per cent, while the rest of the list declined only fractions if at all. The downward movement was checked before the expiration of the first half hour, however, and while there was no disposition to buy for the long account, the covering of shorts helped prices up a little, and later, when the bank statement was issued show-ing material gains in cash and surplus re-serve, the buying became more pronounced and the upward movement was accelerated. Prices in the last fow minutes were brought up to about the level of those of the opening, and the market closed firm though quiet at the recovery. The final changes are insig-nificant in all cases, being generally the losses made at the opening of business oily. The trading in railroad bonds went down to the smallest proportions again to-day, the two hours of business yielding sales of only $\text{yielding narrow limit. #### The Fate of Lear.

Perhaps, sometimes he was a little impatient, and sometimes told the same story twice; but over that old chair how many twice; but over that old chair how many blessed memories hover! I hope you did not crowd that old chair, and that if did not get very much in the way. Sometimes the old mau's chair gets very much in the way, especially if he has been so unvise zet to make over all his property to his children, with the understanding that they are to take care of him. I have seen in such cases children crowd the old man's chair to the floor, and then crowd it clear into the street, not then crowd it into the poor house and all then crowd it into the poor house, and eep on crowding it until the old man fell f it into his grave.

The children used to climb up on the rungs for a good-night kiss, and the longer he stayed the better you liked it. But that chair has been vacant now for some time. I remember it well. It was an of rockers. I remember it well. It was an old chair, and the rockers were almost worn out, for I was the youngest, and the chair had rocked the whole family.

The Mother's Throne.

It made a creaking noise as it moved; but there was music in the sound. It was just high enough to allow us children to put our heads into her lap. That was the bank where e deposited all our hurts and worries. Ah! what a chair that was. It was different from the father's chair; it was entirely difcrent. Perhaps there was about this chair more gentleness, more tenderness, more grief when we had done wrong. When we the wayward father scolded, but mother led. It was a very wakeful chair. In the k days of children other chairs could not ays of children other chairs could not wake: that chuir always kept awake-asily awake. That chuir knew all the old ily awake. That chair knew all the old s nich all those wordless songs which s sing to their sick children-songs mothers sing to their sick children—songs in which all pity, and compassion, and sym-pathetic influences are combined. That old chair has stopped rocking for a good many years. It may be set up in the loft or the garret, but it holds a queenly power yet. When at midnight you went into that grag-shop to get the intoxicating draught, did you not hear a voice that said. "My son, do not go in there?" And londer than the boister-rous encore of the pince of sinful musse-ment, a voice saying, "My son, what do you do here?" And you were provoked with yourself, and you charged yourself with su-perstition and fanaticism and your head got hot with your own thought, and you went home and you went to bed, and no pooner had you to ched the bed than a voice said: "What' a prayeriese pillow? "Oh, pshaw!" you say. "There's nothing in that; I'm 500 miles off from where I was born; I'm 3,000 miles off from the church whose bell was the first music I ever heard." I cannot help that; you are too near your mother's rocking chair. "Oh," you say, "there can't be anything in that; that chain has been vacant a great while." I cannot help that; it is all the mightier for that; it is mnipotent, that vacant mother's chair. hispers; it speaks; it weeps; it carols; it nourns; it prays; it warns; it thunders. A oung man went off and broke his mother's rt, and while he was away from home his nother died, and the telegraph brought the on, and he came into the room where she lay and looked upon her face, and he cried lay and looked upon her face, and he cried out. "Oh, mother; mother! what your life could not do your death shall effect. This moment I give my heart to God." And he kept his promise. Another victory for the vacant chait. With reference to your mather, the words of my text were fullfilled: "Thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty."

I go on a hitle further and I come to the invalid's chair. What' How long have you hoen sick? "O! I have been sick 10, 20, 30 years." Is it possible? What a story of en-durance. The Joyful Ending.

His Father Settles the Account With the Firm - The Youth Has Not Yet Renonneed His Evil Ways and Has Gone Wrong Again,

CINCINNATI, July 19 .- The pedestrian, astbound on Fifth street, will see, if he glances at the west wall of the Singer building left exposed by the demolition of a building, a patch of mortar chipped off the wall. This defacement was caused by detectives in capturing a criminal. The story told is that for a considerable time the Mortgage Loan Company, which had its office in the second story of the building, had been missing money from the safe. It was the habit of the company to deposit all the money on hand about 2:30 P. M., but a considerable sum came in after that hour and was placed in the safe. It was from this money that the sum was lost. There were several employes who remained late, but the firm was unable to determine who was the guilty one. At last suspicion fastened on one individual. He was seen to enter and leave the building at strange hours, and the detective studied out a plan to trap him. After a careful study of the room, it was decided to attempt detection by a novel plan. The keys to the empty building were secured, and from that side a brick wall to the paper on the other side. Over the aperture was suspended a large calendar which completely covered the hole. When the office was closed at night the money in the safe was removed and other money carefully marked was placed in the safe. A detective took his stand on the opposite side of the wall and watched through the opening. One night a step was heard in the room and the suspected man came to the safe, after having darkened the windows. He took some money, relocked the safe and de-parted. It was then arranged to take him the next time and from that on two de-tectives watched on the street. The young man was caught just as he was leaving the room. The representatives of the company accused the thief. He bitterly denied it. Then a roll of bills was taken from his unkle around which he had stowed them. He still denied and claimed he had won the money gambling. As a last resort the hole in the wall was shown him. Then he weakened and confessed to taking nearly $2,000, His father is a well-known and honored citizen and he refused to believe his son guilty even when shown how he had been detected until the marked money was exhibited; then he broke down and wept bitterly.
