THE VACANCY IN THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

INDECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. TOPERA, July 31 .- In other States of the Union, when a political enmpaign closes, the people for a time forget the issues which have divided them and caused neighbor to array against neighbor. This was for merly the case in Kansas, but since the day the first sub-alliance was formed in Kansas the political pot has been boiling. Elections sottle nothing. This new element in Kansas politics seems to thrive on defeat as well as victory. One year ago the new party commedded business in Kansas, and it can be found at the old stand 365 days in the year. Before this reform movement started the people of Kansas didn't take much interest in politics. Once in two years a State electron was held, but a Republican victory was assured, and aside from a short sparring mutch of 30 or 40 days between the two old parties there wasn't much in a political way to interest the people.

All this is changed, and now it seems queer that in a State which gave Harrison and Morton 82,000 majority, it should become necessary for the Republicans to organize on the Indiana plan and muster every vote in the various school districts of the State. The Farmers' Alliance movement grew up, as it were, in a day. The social features of the order caught the young men and women. The gallant young Kansan would accompany his best girl to the sub-alliance meeting or to the Alliance picnic, and no matter how strong his Republican proclivities, she would capture him per le's ties, if her father and the unfluence around her were in that direction. Thousands of young men who east their way. Mrs. Lease as she went about over the State making speeches, advised the girls to cut loose from their solid fellows if they did not vote with the Alliance forces. was a winning card and the leaders worked it for all it was worth.

Like all new movements, however, the Alliance is now having a hard time of it to keep together. There are several things which are weakening it. With a half dozen different levers all working at the same time it is no wonder the cause is

The netion of the Kansas Democratic with the Poople's party is a strong card against the movement. All of the 50 ediwho met in Topeka a few days ago have for the old party, and fighting any and all propositions looking toward a combination of these forces. They say without hesitation that if the policy is pursued as was followed last year in Kansas, there would not be any Democratic party in the State two years hence. They realize that to maintain ony standing with national Democracy they must get back to safe Democratic ground, and renounce the sub-treasury scheme and the Government control of railroads, which seems to be the corner to be the aim of both old parties.

seem to be the taking thing for young men and women, and since the Alliance has become an old thing these new orders have special attraction and thousands are joining.

Democratic clubs are to be organized also, Both old parties are working the club business thoroughly, and it is not difficult to forcehadow the result next year if this plan is carried out until after the election.

THE DISPATCH correspondent had a talk with Frank McGrath, President of the State Farmers' Alliance recently in which he said he was not enthusiastic over the prospects. He recognizes the fact that if there is not a general breaking up of the old parties in the South for the new party movement, there is the best advertising medium. All classes can be reached through its Classified Advertisement Columns. If you want anything you can get it by this method.

Democratic party as we have given up the Republican party in Kansas, we will meet them half way, but when the Southerners throw the third party movement overboard' down there and remain in the Democratic party, and at the same time expect and urge a third party ticket in Kansas, Nebraska and other States, then there are a number of us who will kick, and we will kick hard. The Southern Alliance fellows have been talking that the third party movement was a good thing in Kansas. We think it is, also, but we think it would be a good thing in Georgia and other Southern States. If it DEMOCRATS DESERT IN PROVES, is a good thing for Kansas Republicans to renounce their old party, obliterate sectional prejudice and join in a movement for the whole people, why would it not be a good thing for the Democrats of the South? They may fool some of our people, but there are several they cannot d ceive, and they must play fair or you will hear something drop in Kansas." President McGrath talked without reserve. He has always contended that if a third party is a good thing for Kansas it is a good thing for the South, and if the Alliance men down there cling to the Democratic party, as he believes they will, the third party strength will dwindle down to a fine point in Kansas. Especially is this true if the Democrats of this State carry out their programme, and win back 75 per cent of their voters who went into the people's novement last year.

There are many thousands of voters who will return to the old parties at the next election. Democrats are leaving the Alliance in great numbers, and altogether the prospect is not very encouraging for the leaders of the People's party.

CONFERRING WITH QUAY.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS DISCUSSING STATE POLITICS.

A Report That Thompson Is Now on the Sinte for Treasurer-Andrews Talks About the National Committee Va-

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE,) PHILADELPHIA, July 31 .- All day long the corridors of the Continental were crowded with politicians of high and low degree, all anxious to get a word with Senator Quay and all anxious to discover, if possible, what the silent statesman's next move would be. The first arrival at the hotel this morning was Chairman Andrews. Quay's resignation, Andrews' probable withdrawal and the naming of a successor to Quay in the National Committee are known to have been some of the subjects discussed. During the conference General Frank Reeder, of Easton, entered the room and immediately joined in the conversation. When the talk had been concluded Mr. Ouny entered a back and was driven to the om House, where he had a long talk with Collector Cooper.

Later, after a series of nearly two hours of short talks with the different leaders who called, it was whispered in the lobby that the ticket as the August conventice would be Mylin for Auditor General, Speaker Thompson for Treasurer and General Frank Reeder for State Chairman. This ticket, it be the ticket that would go through. John Morrison was also among the callers. It was said that he was making an active canvass for the nomination for State Treasurer, but was willing to stand in the background for the sake of harmony.

While State Chairman Andrews was in the corridor of the hotel he was asked whether he contemplated resigning the State Chairmanship.

"That is a matter that I cannot say anything about," was his reply.

"Who will be Senator Quay's successor on the National Committee "I do not know. While I have not looked into the matter carefully, I presume that the National Committee would recognize any official action of any body representing the Republican party in Pennsylvania. In 1880 Senator Cameron was elected a mem-ber of the Republican National Committee by the Executive Committee of the Repub-lican State Committee to fill a vacancy. When Colonel Goodloe of Kentucky, wa killed a year ago the vacancy in the present National Committee was filled by the Re-publican State Committee of Kentucky. In Illinois this year General George R. Davis, who was appointed Director General of the World's Fair, resigned from the National Committee and his successor was elected by the Illinois Republican State Committee. While I do not recall any rule governing the case, not having looked the subject up, I should think that either the State Convention or the State Committee could fill the vacancy until the next National Convention meets.'

M'KINLEY'S OPENING GUN.

The Major Will Fire It at His Birthplace

Niles, on August 22. [SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] COLUMBUS, July 31 .- Major McKinley. Republican candidate for Governor, came from Lakeside this afternoon, and has been in consultation with Chairman Hahn. Th principal business is the arrangement of dates where McKinley will speak. The dates now arranged are for Grand Army events, agricultural fairs, and other occasions, all of which could not be considered in the line of political engagements. It was decided that the regular speaking campaign should open August 22, at Niles, Trumbull county, when McKinley will deliver his opening speech.

McKinley expressed himself highly gratified over the outlook in the State, and he has no doubt as to his election. The wool men, he says, are pleased with the workings of his bill and he will get the solid support of that element. On the question Jonat of the Senatorship, he wished to emphasize the point he is not a candidate and will no permit the use of his name. The Farmers' Alliance is the only uncertain element from the standpoint of McKinley, and he says his chances in the least.

Amalgamated Officials Array Themselves Against Importation.

MR.-NEIDRINGHAUS' CURT REPLY.

An Explanation as to Why the Strike at Steelton Was Lost.

GRIST OF A DAY FROM LABOR'S MILL

If F. G. Niedringhaus or any other tin plate manufacturer desires to import foreign workmen for that industry, he will first have to prove that it is impossible to secure competent workmen in this country. The efforts of the Amalgamated Association officials are now directed toward proving that there are enough men in Americs who are thoroughly acquainted with the business, and who have been only waiting for the industry to be established in order to secure employment.

Officials of the association have gathered considerable interesting data lately, and a remark dropped yesterday by Assistant President Garland would indicate that the association will array itself in an open fight against the wholesale importation of workmen, as suggested by Mr. Neidring. haus. Less than five days have been spent gathering this data, and Mr. Garland claims to be able now to call together within a few days' time more men than would be required to operate all the plants that will be in operation for the next two years, and in the meantime new men could that the officials differ from the ruling of Superintendent Owens, of the Treasury Department, on the grounds that the importation of any class of foreign workseen is a violation of the contract labor law. The other is that the said importation of cheap foreign labor would deprive American citizens of better paid employment to which they are justly entitled because of their citizenship. These objections to bringing foreign tin plate workers are Garland himself yesterday. Continuing on the subject Mr. Garland said: There can be no doubt that enough workmen can be had to supply the demand for this kind of labor. We have it from W. C. Cronemeyer himself that he has applications on file from 30 skilled workmen, all of whom he is compelled to refuse employ-ment because his force is full. business in and around Pittsburg. PLENTY OF MEN ELSEWHER "We have just received information that there is a large number in and about Wheeling. George A. Evans, a sheet mill roller of Bridgeport, O., who was a member of our conference committee this year, came from the tin plate district of Wales and he is reliably informed on the subject. He is in possession of scores of names of available people who could be secured in a short time. We Reserved. could be secured in a short time. Mr. Rees, of Preble avenue, Allegheny, can get 20 men in Woods' Run who are thoroughly acquainted with the business, and there are many others in this vicinity."

It was learned from another source that the force of workmen employed in Oliver's South Tenth street mill includes a large number of tin plate workers. Vice President Sheehan, who was present when Mr. Garland gave the above information, corroborated everything the Assistant President said, and then added: "I think this is conclusive proof that it is not necessary to import tin plate work-men. In the first place, there are not many needed. Suppose the average sheet mill has three trains of rolls. The output of one

THE NUMBER OF MEN NEEDED. "Well, 35 boxes is considered a good Well, 35 boxes is considered a good day's work for one man. A box of tin weighs 112 pounds. At that rate there would only be material enough in the product of an entire sheet mill with three trains of rolls to employ six men, but as there are three men employed on each stack, it would, as a matter of fact, give employment to 18 men.

"So you see less than 20 men will consume the entire product of any ordinary mill. While I am satisfied that there are enough men here to do all the work there is to do, I would grant, for the sake of an argument, that there were only half enough. It would be an easy matter to teach the other American workmen the trade. It is very simple. Any man of ordinary intelligence can learn the business in a few months. Boys are only required to serve an apprenticeship of one year in Wales. There are only three branches to learn-listing, washing and tinning, and when those are learned a man is a skilled workman. Mr. Demmler tells us that he has taken men from the coal mines and made good tin plate workers out of them. SOMETHING BACK OF IT ALL. "You can therefore rest assured there is something more than a mere claim, that skilled workmen cannot be had here, back of the openly avowed purpose to import tin plate workmen. The manufacturers ploying 20 men would secure foreign work-men at 7 cents, it would save over $8,000 in a year, as compared to what it would cost to operate the same plant with American citizens. The scheme is very plain. The manufacturers prefer the foreign workmen to American citizens, because their pay rolls would be less."
